(UPI)

'Limbs Strewn Everywhere'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A bomb which police said packed the punch of 20 to 25 sticks of dynamite exploded in a TWA baggage terminal at LaGuardia Airport Monday night, killing 11 persons and injuring about 75 others.

Human limbs were scattered across the terminal area and a UPI reporter who was waiting for a flight said she saw a "human head—just a head—on a window ledge."

Police said the powerful bomb was placed in a coin-operated locker close to the area where passengers collect baggage.

The FBI said bomb threats were telephoned to at least seven airports across the nation after the New York blast, but no more bombs were found.

An anonymous male caller told UPI in New York the explosion was carried out by the Palestine Liberation Organization. But a spokesman for the PLO at the United Nations denied any connection with the blast and condemned "the dastardly act against the innocent people at LaGuardia."

The New York airport was closed today. Hundreds of flights during the busy holiday travel season were diverted to Kennedy and Newark airports.

A Federal Aviation Administration official said that during normal hours a flight lands every two minutes at LaGuardia, and once a minute during rush hours.

"Usually a bomber picks a specific target for a specific reason," said one New York City police detective. "But this was just a senseless attack on innocent people."

A PLO spokesman in Beirut said the bomb appeared to be an attempt to embarrass the PLO prior to its participation in the U.N. Security Council Middle East debate beginning in two weeks. He said efforts to link the PLO to the bombing were an "effort to harm the struggle of our people ... at the international level, particularly at the United Nations and at the Security Council."

"It can hardly be coincidence that it occurred before the Security Council meeting on Jan. 12 to discuss the Palestine question."

New York City Police Chief Thomas Mitchelson said, "Two people were seen running from the scene shortly before the explosion." He declined to elaborate or to describe the two.

Police said nine of the dead—five men and four women—were killed instantly, one was declared dead on arrival at a hospital and another died in surgery.

In Washington, National Airport was closed for two hours Monday because of a bomb threat. Other bomb threats were telephoned to airports in Chicago, Los Angeles, had come to New York for a round-the-world trip with a friend; Ronald Presslaff, 32, a drug store manager from Long Beach, N.Y.; Frank Muscaro, 48, of Bayshore, N.Y.; and Bynum Patterson, 37, of Stamford, Conn.

Officials said several of the injured suffered severed limbs from flying slabs of jagged plate glass blown out of the windows of the modern steel-and-glass airport.

The Rev. Thomas Brady, Roman Catholic chaplain of the fire department, likened the scene to a June 24 Eastern Air Lines crash at Kennedy Airport that killed 113 persons.

"They're all badly battered," Brady said. "The place is a shambles. It's just like the Kennedy crash—limbs strewn everywhere."

H. Patrick Callaghan had just arrived from Indianapolis aboard a TWA flight for his first visit to New York and was waiting for a limousine to pick him up.

"If it had happened 15 minutes before, there would have been a full plane of people waiting for their luggage," he said while awaiting treatment for cuts. "Most of them (the people) had cleared out and there were just us waiting for the limousine."

By midmorning today, only four of the dead had been identified. They were Edythe Bull, 72, of Brevard, N.C., who Phoenix, Philadelphia, the Baltimore-Washington International Airport at Glen Burnie, Md., and Norfolk, Va. The airports were searched but no more bombs were found.

The LaGuardia blast blew a 10-to-15-foot hole through the ceiling of the downstairs baggage area. The ceiling was made of six to eight inches of reinforced concrete and steel. People were killed and injured as far as 200 feet from the explosion.

Police said the bomb—equivalent to 20 to 25 sticks of dynamite—had been placed in a locker between two baggage carousels on the lower level of the terminal.

By midmorning today, only four of the dead had been identified. They were Edythe Bull, 72, of Brevard, N.C., who

There is a backlog of some 100 pending cases going into 1976, but that figure is not considered out of the ordinary.

In an interview last week concerning his request that an additional judge be assigned to Ulster County during the first few months of 1976 to help clear up the pending criminal cases, County Judge Raymond J. Mino said the policy of the D.A.'s office has had no major effect on the backlog.

The number of criminal trials going to verdict in Ulster County did increase significantly in 1975, from four the previous year to 21, but the impact of the increased number of trials was softened by the assignment of extra judges to the county to help with the trial work.

The assignment of extra judges to help with the workload will be necessary again in 1976, according to Vogt. "We are going to continue it (the elimination of plea bargaining) assuming we continue to get the cooperation of the judiciary, as we did this year," he said.

Vogt added, however, that he is "still not satisfied" with the number of cases being disposed of. He said his office is ready to go to trial on many of the pending cases. "It seems to me that with the decrease in civil work occasioned by no fault insurance, this should free up some judges for criminal work," he suggested.

Of the 21 trials which went to verdict this year, 17 resulted in convictions, with a majority of the defendants found guilty as charged, and four resulted in hung juries, Vogt said. Two of the hung jury cases later resulted in guilty pleas to indictments, one has been dismissed, and one is still pending. Vogt noted that while only four cases went to verdict last year, more than four trials were begun, but many came to premature conclusions when defendants pleaded guilty to reduced charges.

About 25 of the felony cases disposed of this year were done so as the result of guilty pleas to prosecutor's informations. In such cases, the defendant waives indictment and pleads guilty to the charge laid out in the prosecutor's information.

Explaining that all prosecutor's informations are reviewed by himself or First Assistant D.A. Michael Kavanagh to make sure the plea is an accurate representation of what occurred and that adequate scope for punishment is provided, Vogt said such action has saved "a great deal of time and expense" as well as helping reduce the congestion in the court calendar.

Assessment Procedures Dominate City Hearing

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

The city's assessment procedures, which have contributed as much as anything to a projected 27 per cent increase in property taxes next year, dominated discussion at Mayor Francis R. Koenig's budget hearing Monday night.

Total assessed value of city property shows a staggering $2.9 million decline for 1976, almost exclusively the result of certiorari proceedings filed against the city by property owners who felt they were being overtaxed and overassessed. Without exception, the courts have agreed.

One suggestion repeated several times Monday night was a possible remedy to continued litigation: expand the city assessor's office so that it has the time and manpower to fairly and accurately assess and reassess city properties.

Bernard Singer of Pearl Street, citing a slight increase in proposed budget for the assessor's office in 1976 (up $50 to $21,515), said the city would do well to "spend a little more money for better service."

Harry M. Thayer of Crown Street said the assessments on many of the 9,000 properties in the city "should be updated, but they're not because we only have one assessor." Pointing out that the workload is too much for the assessor's staff to handle adequately, he suggested that the savings would far outweigh the costs of additional manpower for that office.

Walter Donnaruma of Franklin Street, representing WHITA, called for a "complete re-evaluation" of city assessments. He said that "serious inequities" in assessments have been reflected in recent certiorari judgments.

Referring to the city's string of certiorari setbacks, John Machione of Janet Street commented, "When you lose 20 or 25 straight, you get some new ballplayers." He didn't specify whether he thought changes should be made in the assessor's office or in the legal personnel that represented the city in court.

Following the hearing, Koenig was asked by reporters whether he thought those suggestions had merit. He indicated a belief that the assessor's office is not understaffed, but held off on specific recommendations until he can study a report submitted to him recently by a special committee he appointed to investigate the city's assessment problems. He said that report will be made public either today or Wednesday. There is some thought that the committee will recommend complete reassessment of the city.

In a related matter, Alderman Brian Smith (R-Third Ward) said the city should investigate the feasibility of hiring a full time corporation counsel. "Many of these certiorari cases are farmed out," said Smith. "There doesn't seem to be much interest on the part of the legal profession in representing the city in court. I don't think we're getting the best representation we can."

Only eight persons spoke at Monday's hearing, and four of those were connected in some way to city government. Although there were few specific proposals offered for budget cutbacks, some general suggestions were aired:

- Implement a water-sewer tax.
- Reduce manpower in the paid fire forces.
- Consolidate the water department into the Department of Public Works.
- Outlaw long-term borrowing.
- Award city insurance policies to the lowest competitive bidder.
- Utilize welfare recipients for public works projects, such as snow removal around fire hydrants and storm sewers.
- Utilize the services of qualified engineers currently employed by the city, rather than hiring consultants to plan and implement certain projects.

One particular aspect of the budget that several people surprisingly disagreed with was the mayor's imposition of a salary freeze in order to hold spending in line in 1976. Both Machione and Jonathan Clark of Highland Avenue suggested that the number of city employees be reduced, but that those left be paid "a decent salary." In addition, Donnaruma suggested higher wages for the city treasurer (who will receive $11,905 in 1976) and the city judge ($9,495).

Reacting to some criticisms leveled at city government during the hearing, Deputy City Clerk Rose Hogan maintained that city services are the best that can be offered, and that the budget reflects conservative and responsible spending attitudes without jeopardizing services.

Euell Gibbons Dead at 64

SUNBURY, Pa. — Euell Gibbons, nationally known naturalist and author, died Monday night at the age of 64 in a remote rural area which provided the backdrop for much of his writings on natural foods.

Gibbons, of Beavertown in central Pennsylvania, was dead on arrival at Sunbury Community Hospital.

Gibbons had written seven books on edible wildlife. His most famous books were "Stalking the Good Life" and "Stalking Far Away Places."

He also appeared on national television advertisements for a breakfast cereal.

Rules Against Rozelle Rule

MINNEAPOLIS — U.S. District Court Judge Earl Larson ruled today that the National Football League's Rozelle Rule violates federal antitrust laws.

The judge ruled five months after the end of a 55-day trial in which the NFL Players Association challenged the rule.

The rule is called the option compensation clause by the NFL and the "Rozelle ransom rule" by the players. It requires that a team losing a player who has played out his option receive compensation from the club signing the player.

Death Watch at Mine

CHASNALA COLLIERY, India — Pumps supplied by foreign countries were rushed to India today to help drain millions of gallons of water from a coal pit where relatives stand a death watch for hundreds of trapped miners.

Government officials held out almost no hope for any of the more than 350 men 1,000 feet below the surface Saturday in India's worst mine tragedy. But they pledged to continue pumping as long as there was the slightest chance.

India radio announced Monday the United States, France and Switzerland were flying in modern pumps capable of draining 2,500 gallons of water per minute in response to an urgent plea for help by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Hef Cleared on Drugs

CHICAGO — Drug peddling is not among the enterprises of Playboy Magazine magnate Hugh Hefner and his empire, according to federal investigators.

The government has investigated allegations that Hefner and his organization had been distributing cocaine at his Chicago and Los Angeles Playboy mansions. The investigation started after Hefner's former social secretary was convicted with her boyfriend and another man in a cocaine distribution conspiracy.

Higher Postage Rates

WASHINGTON — Make sure you get those tardy Christmas cards, thank you notes and holiday packages to the post office before closing today or you'll be among the first to suffer New Year's greetings from the Postal Service — higher postage rates.

The higher rates apply to all mail, including a three-cent increase for first-class letters to 13 cents an ounce. They go into effect at 12:01 a.m. local time Wednesday, representing 1975's last burst of inflation.

The increases average 26 per cent for all mail, but first class jumps the highest — 30 per cent.

Computer Bond Favored

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Legislature in a brief year-end session Monday voted an $87,200 bond issue to upgrade the county's computer to handle additional tax information.

The five-year bond issue will finance purchase from IBM of a "core upgrade" that will enable the existing computer to handle information submitted by the various towns under the new centralized tax record keeping system, which provides two-way submission and issuance of tax information with the town assessors.

By a 19-7 vote with one abstention, the legislators defeated a resolution put up by outgoing Legislator Lewis C. Kirschner (D-6th Dist.) that would have put Ulster County's insurance up for bids. Kirschner said the present system of awarding insurance without competitive bidding prevents many reputable local insurance agencies from competing for the county's business.

Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (D-City), serving his last session as minority leader, said he had favored the measure at first "but I have had some serious misgivings about it." Several legislators said a firm that did not have a claims office in Ulster County might win the bid, but Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6) said an Ulster County claims office could be made a requirement if the measure was adopted.

Legislature Chairman Peter

J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) in opposing the measure, noted that none of the major insurance carriers has an office in the county and said the City of Kingston "feels as we do" about awarding insurance contracts without competitive bidding.

Legislator Glenn A. DeBrosky (R-Dist. 6) serving at his last meeting, had better luck with a proposal calling for a study of medical assistance payments to see if loopholes could be closed by having recipients sign for services received.

Two resolutions sponsored by Democrats went down by 16-11 party line votes. One, sponsored by John H. Dwyer (D-City) would have directed the county treasurer to prepare quarterly financial reports for legislators. The other, sponsored by Kirschner, would have set up a study on the possible creation of "satellite" Motor Vehicle Department offices at various locations throughout the county on either a full-time or part-time basis.

Another outgoing legislator, Eugene B. Houck (D-Dist. 7) continued his lone hand role to the end, casting the only negative votes on proposals to pay expenses for Jack Reynolds, tax agency director, to an assessment conference in Syracuse and for Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer to a conference on legislative and fiscal programs in Rochester.

'Fleece Award' To Air Force

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the Air Force is running a $66 million fleet of 23 jets to transport government officials at a cost to taxpayers of more than $6 million a year.

Proxmire, who each month selects what he believes to be the most wasteful federal program, said the Air Force's "private airline for government bigshots" gets his "fleece of the year" award.

The Senator said the planes are kept on call 24 hours a day and are equipped to carry as many as 50 passengers, with small executive jets carrying up to five.

He said the planes are staffed with military aides who serve food and drinks and that some of the planes have sleeping facilities.

The fleet cost taxpayers $66.7 million to purchase. Operational and maintenance costs may run up to $2,206 an hour for the largest planes.

Proxmire said that in the first 10 months of this year the Air Force made 975 flights carrying government officials to various destinations, with 87 per cent of the flights taken by ranking defense officials or those requesting Defense Department flights.

The most frequent single user of the VIP service was Treasury Secretary William Simon, who took 58 flights in the first 10 months of this year at a cost to the government of $328,794.10.

Plea Bargaining Out for '76

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

The no plea bargaining policy of the Ulster County District Attorney's office which was instituted last January will be continued in 1976, according to District Attorney Francis J. Vogt.

The elimination of plea bargaining—a move apparently unprecedented in New York State—was made with respect to all felony indictments handed up after Jan. 1, 1975. The policy has proven "very successful" during its first year, Vogt told the Freeman.

"From a statistical standpoint, we have disposed of slightly more cases during the 1975 calendar year when we did not engage in plea bargain," Vogt said, noting that approximately 105 felony cases were disposed of last year compared with 110 this year.

"What's remarkable is that we came that close to last year's figure," the D.A. commented.

When Vogt's new policy was first announced last January, there was considerable concern that a huge backlog in court cases would result because alleged criminals would no longer be pleading guilty to reduced charges, but would insist on going to trial.

Aerosol Evidence Lacking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission says there isn't enough evidence yet to prove fluorocarbon gases are depleting the atmosphere's vital ozone layer.

The commission refused, on a 3-to-2 vote Monday, to grant the city of Los Angeles request for an across-the-board ban on use of fluorocarbons as propellants in sprays and as coolants in air conditioners and refrigerators.

The city said studies show fluorocarbons are eating away the stratosphere's ozone layer, which filters out the sun's ultraviolet rays. Scientists believe erosion of the ozone layer could lead to increased skin cancer, it noted.

Commissioner R. David Pittle, one of the dissenters, agreed there was "ample" evidence for the agency immediately to institute a ban.

But outgoing Chairman Richard O. Simpson and Commissioners Constance Newman and Lawrence Kushner voted to deny the petition.

Parents Held as Hostages

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — Michael P. Borria, 19, using three weapons and at least 20 rounds of ammunition, held his parents hostage in their home early today and fired at police for over two hours before surrendering.

"He used 20 to 30 rounds of ammunition, a 12 gauge shotgun and two rifles," a police spokesman said. "Most of the shots were aimed at police."

There were no injuries.

Dispute Reaches State

ALBANY — The continuing dispute between the City of Kingston and its firemen—and the ongoing dispute between the city and its police has now reached the state level.

The New York State Public Employment Relations Board in Albany has announced the appointment of a fact finder in both conflicts.

The same fact finder has been assigned to delve into both arguments, says a spokesman for the Public Employment Relations Board. He is Seth Towse of Loudonville, who has been appointed to the dispute between the City of Kingston and Kingston Patrolmen's Association.

Towse has also been assigned to the dispute between the City of Kingston and Kingston Professional Fire Fighters, Local 461.

New Year's Open House

KINGSTON Mayor and Mrs. Francis R. Koenig have extended an invitation to the public to visit with them on New Year's Day at their home at 51 Fairview Avenue.

The open house, a tradition with the Koenig family, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. It follows the noon inauguration ceremony of the mayor at City Hall and an organizational meeting of the Common Council.

Meeting Reset

The Town of Marbletown's organizational meeting for its town board 1976, originally scheduled for Friday at 7 p.m., has been rescheduled for Friday at 5 p.m. because of a prior commitment on the part of one of the board members. The meeting will be held at the town hall in Stone Ridge.

For Period Ending 7 a.m., EST Wednesday

Tonight will find snow covering most of the northern and central Plains regions while rain develops along the east Gulf coast and vicinity. Elsewhere, generally fair weather should prevail. Minimum temperatures include: (approx. Max. readings in parenthesis) Atlanta 39 (55), Boston 30 (43), Chicago 27 (38), Dallas 35 (60), Denver 21 (45), Duluth 11 (26), Houston 38 (64), Jacksonville 59 (68), Kansas City 26 (42), Los Angeles 46 (68), Miami 66 (77), New Orleans 43 (61), New York 35 (45), Phoenix 37 (64), San Francisco 45 (53), Seattle 30 (39), St. Louis 26 (44), Washington 37 (46). # Aims for Pa., Hits Greene Co.

TOWN OF LEXINGTON

A young student pilot who had misplotted his course from Danbury, Conn. to Pennsylvania, walked away uninjured Monday afternoon after his plane ran out of gas and crash landed in a shallow stream in this mountainous Greene County township.

Leeds State Police said the pilot, Dennis Morgan, 18, of Clarks Summit, Pa., climbed from the plane that landed upright in West Kill Creek after striking several trees and walked to a nearby house to summon troopers.

Police said Morgan had taken off alone from Danbury Airport en route to Pennsylvania, but miscalculated his course by 40 degrees.

At about 2:30 p.m., the single-engine Cessna Morgan was flying near out of gas over Greene County. The plane went down, coming to rest in shallow water about 100 yards west of Route 42.

Damage to the plane was estimated at about $12,000.

Escape Fire

The Douglas Tyan family of Dussol Road, Mt. Marion narrowly escaped from their burning home, which was destroyed by fire early today.

The Mt. Marion fire company was summoned to the Tyan home shortly before 2:30 a.m., and found the two-story stone residence fully involved in flame. Fire Chief James Kallos said Tyan told him that he, his wife and their child had gotten out of the house only moments earlier. There were no injuries.

Fire officials said Tyan told them the blaze apparently started in the kitchen area of the home.

Some 75 firemen from the Mt. Marion, Glasco, Ruby and Centerville fire departments battled the raging fire for more than four hours.

Crash Charges

Leeds State Police on Monday charged Victor Goff, 56, of Acra with second degree manslaughter and first degree assault in connection with a fatal crash in the Town of Coxsackie on Thanksgiving.

Police said the driver of the car which was involved in the collision with the Goff vehicle subsequently died at Albany Medical Center Hospital. She was identified as Ruth Jurgs, 69, of Cairo.

Bomb Scare

A bomb scare and a robbery threat were received a few minutes apart at the Mid-Hudson Citibank office in the Ulster Shopping Plaza Monday afternoon, according to Ulster County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the bomb threat was received at 3:11 p.m. At 3:17 p.m. a second call was received at the bank, with the male caller— apparently the same one who made the first call—warning that the bank would be robbed.

The bank was closed for the day and deputies searched for a bomb, but found none.

Community Calendar in Ulster

including youth scholarship and sports and the blind and hearing handicapped. Exploring the possibilities are (l-r): Joe Keller, Allen Stauble, Roy Olsen and Bill Glaser.

Jobless Rate Shows Increase

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Boosted by an increase in the number of long-term unemployed, the state's unemployment rate climbed to 10.2 per cent in November, according to the state Labor Department.

Buffalo had the highest jobless rate of any major industrial area, with 12.8 per cent of the work force out of a job.

New York City and Albany-Schenectady-Troy were the only two major areas where unemployment rolls shrank, the department said.

The state's jobless rate was 10.1 per cent in October, the department said. It was 10.2 per cent in September, 10.3 per cent in August and 10.7 per cent in July. In November 1974, the jobless rolls were at 6.7 per cent.

There were 780,700 unemployed persons in the state last month, Commissioner Louis L. Levine said, up 11,300 from October and 269,700 more than in November 1974.

Seasonal hiring by local education agencies and department stores created 14,200 non-manufacturing jobs, the department said, but losses in all other non-manufacturing areas offset this.

The state's hiring freeze and local governments' fiscal cutbacks helped to keep the seasonal increase in government hiring below normal levels, Levine added.

In addition, the state lost

6,300 manufacturing jobs in November through seasonal losses in the apparel, food and other soft-goods industries, he said.

Although there were 114,600 less manufacturing jobs last month than one year earlier, the department noted, the rate of job losses was shrinking.

Statewide, there were 6,853,200 employed persons in November, up 11,800 from October. Employment was down 225,700 one year earlier.

Following are unemployment figures for the state's major industrial areas:

Albany-Schenectady-Troy — 25,500 or 7.3 per cent, compared with 26,000 or 7.4 per cent in October and 20,000 or 5.7 per cent in November 1974. Binghamton — 10,100 or 7.9 per cent, compared with 8,900 or 7.1 per cent in October and 7,000 or 5.5 per cent in November 1974.

Buffalo — 68,600 or 12.8 per cent, compared with 66,200 or 12.4 per cent in October and 45,600 or 8.6 per cent in November 1974.

Elmira — 4,000 or 9.5 per cent, compared with 3,900 or 9.2 per cent in October and 3,400 or 7.9 per cent in November 1974.

Poughkeepsie — 5,900 or 6.0 per cent, compared with 5,800 or 5.9 per cent in October and 4,000 or 4.1 per cent in November 1974.

Greater Rochester — 35,900 or 7.8 per cent, compared with 35,000 or 7.7 per cent in October and 19,300 or 4.2 per cent in November 1974.

Syracuse — 26,700 or 9.3 per cent, compared with 25,800 or 9.1 per cent in October and 17,700 or 6.1 per cent in November 1974.

Utica — 13,500 or 10.6 per cent, compared with 12,800 or 9.9 per cent in October and 9,400 or 7.3 per cent in November 1974.

New York Combined Area — 502,200 or 10.6 per cent, compared with 502,400 or 10.7 per cent in October and 317,500 or 6.8 per cent in November 1974.

New York City — 365,000 or 11.5 per cent, compared with 367,500 or 11.7 per cent in October and 233,200 or 7.4 per cent in November 1974.

Nassau-Suffolk — 95,200 or 8.5 per cent, compared with 92,600 or 8.3 per cent in October and 57,500 or 5.2 per cent in November 1974.

Westchester — 33,200 or 9.5 per cent, compared with 33,400 or 9.6 per cent in October and 21,200 or 6.0 per cent in November 1974.

Rockland — 7,000 or 8.9 per cent, compared with 7,100 or 9.0 per cent in October and 4,500 or 5.7 per cent in November 1974.

Putnam — 1,800 or 9.4 per cent, compared with 1,800 or 9.5 per cent in October and 1,100 or 6.0 per cent in November 1974.

Sex Bias Probing Upheld

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state Court of Appeals has ruled that the New York City Commission on Human Rights has the authority to investigate an allegation of sex discrimination in the city school system.

The state's highest court Monday unanimously upheld an Appellate Division decision supporting the commission's right to probe such cases.

The Appellate Division had overturned a ruling by State Supreme Court in Manhattan that the commission did not have jurisdiction in the case.

The dispute involved a charge by a teacher at Seward Park High School that her performance was rated unsatisfactory by school officials in retaliation for an earlier complaint she had filed alleging sexual discrimination in the city's school system.

The city Board of Education sought an order barring the commission from considering the teacher's complaint. The teacher was not identified in the court papers.

The board maintained that the proper jurisdiction for such discrimination suits belonged to city and state education officials and the state Division of Human Rights.

The high court said that although "neither the commission nor the courts should invade, and only rarely assume academic oversight," in the case before it "the delicacy of the task is not sufficient to preclude inquiry."

In addition, the board claimed that human rights agencies should not become involved in the matter of teachers' ratings, which it said should be solely under its own jurisdiction.

However, Associate Judge Sol Wachtler, writing for the court, said, "If discrimination in employment is to be eliminated, discrimination in the vital rating process can hardly be ignored."

Providing an opportunity for about-to-become fathers and mothers to learn some of the facets of parental roles will be the Expectant Parents Classes, co-sponsored by the Ulster County Health Department and the YWCA. Classes are set to begin Tuesday, Jan. 6 and will be conducted by Mrs. Virginia Zwilling, Public Health Nurse with the County Health Department.

Set Classes For Parents-to-Be

KINGSTON — Providing an opportunity for about-to-become fathers and mothers to learn some of the facets of parental roles will be the Expectant Parents Classes, co-sponsored by the Ulster County Health Department and the YWCA. Classes are set to begin Tuesday, Jan. 6 and will be conducted by Mrs. Virginia Zwilling, Public Health Nurse with the County Health Department.

All sessions will be held at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. over a period of seven consecutive weeks. One or both parents may register by calling the Health Department or the YWCA. Participation in the course is aimed at providing expectant parents with the skill and sense of security necessary in the handling of newborn babies.

Class topics to be discussed at each session include: Jan. 6 — A Comfortable and Satisfyng Prenatal Period; Jan. 13 — Preparations for Hospital (Labor and Delivery); Jan. 20 — Tour of Maternity Floors; Jan. 27 — Newborn Characteristics and Family Nutrition and Bottle Feeding; Feb. 3 — Family Nutrition and Breast Feeding and Lactation; Feb. 17 — Daily Care of the Newborn; Feb. 24 — Growth and Development.

Signals to watch for, says the Ulster County Association for Mental Health, include: a general and all-encompassing feeling of hopelessness; inability to concentrate—making reading, writing and conversation difficult—and slowed down thinking resulting from the mind's occupation with inner anguish; a change in such physical activities as eating, sleeping and sex; loss of self-esteem and continual questioning of one's worth; and withdrawal from others because of a groundless fear of rejection.

Other signals to heed: threats of suicide as a way out of hostile surroundings—stemming from a belief that life is hopeless and worthless; oversensitivity to what others say or do—and general irritability; misdirected anger and trouble in handling most feelings, including anger at oneself based on feelings of worthlessness that spark general anger at others; frequent guilt feelings arising from the assumption that the depressed person is "in the wrong" or responsible for others' unhappiness; and extreme dependence on other people, leading to feelings of helplessness and, eventually, to anger at the helplessness.

Nadjari Allowed Six More Months

NEW YORK (UPI) — State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz has given Special Prosecutor Maurice Nadjari six more months in office, saying his dismissal would erode public confidence in the criminal justice system.

The move, which came after Gov. Hugh L. Carey formally asked Lefkowitz over the weekend to fire Nadjari, was a surprise to most observers who expected the attorney general to accede to the governor's wishes.

However, Lefkowitz said Monday, "I believe a summary dismissal of Mr. Nadjari would seriously erode public confidence in the criminal justice system."

"Six months should be sufficient" time for the special anti-corruption prosecutor to complete his investigations, said Lefkowitz. "At the end of that time, I will terminate Mr. Nadjari's appointment."

Though claiming he sought "no confrontation" with the governor, Lefkowitz said there had been mounting public concern that "the dismissal of Mr. Nadjari could serve to impede pending investigations by him of high political and public officials."

In a statement, Carey said he would incorporate the substance of Lefkowitz's recommendation into his "overall program for strengthening the office of the special prosecutor by placing the responsibility for its functioning in the hands of (Manhattan District Attorney) Robert Morgenthau."

Morgenthau, the man named by Carey to replace Nadjari, said he would not comment on Lefkowitz' action.

The governor said he had noted Lefkowitz' desire to avoid a confrontation and, to that end, in the future he would discuss details of his program with the attorney general.

A Carey spokesman said the governor would hold a news conference to discuss the matter at the state capitol today.

In a one-sentence statement, Nadjari, who like Lefkowitz is a Republican, said he was "deeply grateful" to Lefkowitz and "the people of New York City...for their support and confidence in me and the critically important work of my office."

Last Tuesday, Carey announced his intention to fire Nadjari because, the governor said, he felt Nadjari was no longer effective in prosecuting cases of official corruption.

EXTERIOR VIEW WHERE BOMB CAUSED HAVOC, DEATH

They Had One Thing in Common—Shock

NEW YORK (UPI)—There was a smudge of blood on the otherwise sparkling white uniform worn by assistant head nurse Karen Walsh at Booth Memorial Hospital.

She spoke haltingly. "They all had multiple lacerations—they were in a state of physical . . . and mental . . . shock."

"They said they heard an explosion. And the next thing they knew . . . there were ambulances coming," Mrs. Walsh said.

It was a scene of bedlam at Booth Memorial. And it was the same at Elmhurst General Hospital. It was something they had trained for, something they had always feared—a disaster.

Between them, the two hospitals treated more than 50 persons injured when a bomb went off at LaGuardia Airport Monday evening. At least 11 persons were killed. Nine were taken directly from the airport to the city morgue.

One was pronounced dead on arrival at Elmhurst General in Queens and another two died in surgery.

Injuries to those who survived ranged from the loss of limbs to minor cuts and bruises.

They had one thing in common—shock.

"Some were asking, 'What happened? What happened?'" According to a nursing supervisor, Mrs. Marion Saneon, at Booth Memorial.

Edward Toledo, 37, of New York, who was taken to Elmhurst General, said he was injured slightly while he was working in a baggage room loading bags for an outgoing flight.

"I saw a flash and the wall caved in and the ceiling collapsed," Toledo said. "It smelled like gunpowder."

New Soviet-Backed Angola Drive

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The Soviet-backed faction battling for supremacy in Angola plans a new military offensive to upstage African peacemaking efforts, diplomatic sources said.

A stockpile of sophisticated

Russian military equipment will be used to widen the faction's control of the former Portuguese colony, the sources said Monday.

The arms include a squadron of MIG21 fighters

recently assembled at the Marxist-held capital of Luanda, amphibious T34 tanks and mobile Russian-made surface-to-surface missiles that the sources said already have inflicted heavy losses on the two anti-Soviet groups.

The Marxist Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola is confined to its Atlantic port capital and a narrow central strip running into the resource-rich West African territory.

To the north, south and east, its 20,000-man army, bolstered by 5,000 Cubans and 400 Soviet advisers, faces the anti-Communist guerrillas of the two rival movements, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola and the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola.

The three-way civil war has been going on for months but heated up after Portugal formally pulled out of Angola Nov. 11.

According to the diplomatic sources, the new Marxist offensive is designed to preempt an emergency "peace summit" of the 46-nation Organization of African Unity scheduled for Jan. 10 at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

Western and African diplomats hold out slim hope of a reconciliation among the three groups and doubt the rival leaders will even attend the summit.

Growing black African support for a continent-wide appeal to end all foreign involvement in Angola is being encouraged by William Schaefele, U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, now on an African tour, the diplomats said.

South Africa, which has troops in Angola to bolster the anti-Soviet forces, has indicated its willingness to withdraw if the Soviets and Cubans also pull out.

Ford Grieved by Bombing

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Grieved over the "senseless" bombing at LaGuardia Airport in New York, President Ford has ordered a cabinet-level investigation and requested a complete report on the tragedy as soon as possible.

The President learned of the bombing, which devastated a TWA baggage area killing and injuring some 90 persons Monday night, as he was winding up his eight-day ski vacation at this Rocky Mountain resort.

He headed back to Washington today and was to arrive at the White House early tonight.

Ford issued a statement saying, "I am deeply grieved at the loss of lives and injuries . . . It appears this senseless act involved the use of a bomb."

He instructed Transportation Secretary William Coleman and the Federal Aviation Administration to begin an immediate investigation and ordered the Justice Department and FBI to assist local law enforcement agencies.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was kept informed on the situation by telephone Monday evening.

Ford went to a farewell dinner in his honor, hosted by his chief fund-raiser in Vail, who invited 52 couples by sending political contribution pledge cards in the same mail with the invitations, but in separate envelopes.

Nessen insisted to reporters the dinner was non-political but made it clear it was a cause of some embarrassment to the White House.

The dinner was hosted by Sheila Granshammer, a former Las Vegas showgirl, restaurant owner and long-time friend of the Fords. She was described by an aide as "an over-enthusiastic" fund-raiser for the President.

The aide said Mrs. Granshammer was told by a member of the President Ford Campaign Committee not to send out the cards — with pledges of up to $1,000 — until after the dinner. The aide said "she didn't understand."

Ford's trip to Vail had been billed as a working vacation. Nessen said the President would have had trouble with the government's financing of his trip if it included a political appearance.

But the Vail vacationers who got invitations also got the message. Many attending the dinner said they had contributed to Ford's campaign, or intended to.

Boston Transfers

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston School Committee has rubber-stamped the decision of U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr., to transfer South Boston High School Headmaster William Reid.

In its last meeting of the year Monday, the committee agreed on a voice vote to transfer Reid and South Boston High football coach Arthur A. Perdigao to the office of School Supt. Marion Fahey.

Reid, Perdigao and other administrators at South Boston High were ordered removed from the school by Garrity, who placed it in receivership to help implement a citywide school desegregation program he has ordered.

Garrity also stripped the School Committee of most of its powers in school desegregation matters. He said the committee was "obstructing and avoiding implementation of the desegregation plan."

Removal of Reid and Perdigao has been protested by the committee and many white students and faculty members at South Boston High.

Garrity had ordered a new administration at the school because he said he found on two unannounced visits limited education in process and his desegregation order was not being implemented. Perdigao, who had been charged by black students with discrimination in coaching the football team, was the only non-administrative staff member to be ordered removed.

Good News! Tax Deductible Individual and Self-employed Retirement Plans

The Keogh Plan for the self-employed

Doctors, dentists, carpenters, plumbers, actors . . . if you are in business for yourself, you can now put aside up to 15% of your annual income — up to a maximum of $7,500 — and deduct the amount from your income tax. These retirement dollars will earn the highest interest rates allowed by law, which are also tax-free until you retire.

The I.R.A. Plan for those whose companies do not have a retirement plan. The Individual Retirement Plan will now let you defer 15% of your annual earnings up to $1500 a year — and deduct the entire contribution from your income tax while it, too, earns the highest interest rate allowed.

Act now. Both of the above plans must be established by January 1, 1976, to meet with I.R.S. regulations.

Pals Share Sweepstake Winnings

DIAMOND SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — At first Tom Murphy thought the telegram was a joke.

"I didn't pay one minute's attention to it," he said.

But just in case, he called his pal Frank Buhlert. They got in touch with Western Union — and it confirmed that the $5 ticket they shared was a $150,000 winner in the Irish Sweepstakes.

Murphy and Buhlert, friends for nearly half a century in this rural town of 650, had chipped in over the years to play the sweepstakes. They had never won — until Saturday.

For Murphy, 76, a retired grocer who dabbles in real estate, the triumph was especially sweet. He was born in County Kerry, Ireland, and still speaks with a lilting brogue.

Murphy is a lifelong bachelor, but for Buhlert, 62, born in Diamond Springs, the money provides what his job as a crane operator could not — security for his family.

He has no retirement benefits from his job at a lime quarry. He and his wife, Rae June, have reared four children and have eight great-grandchildren. He said he will retire as soon as the company can find someone to replace him.

"We were thrilled," said Mrs. Buhlert from her mobile home. "We finally have something for our old age."

Murphy, who bought the ticket for himself and Buhlert, went to church Sunday "to thank the Lord for his gifts and graces."

"I've gone to church all my life — every Sunday and Holy Day," he said. He added with a laugh, "I guess I should do a little extra thanking today."

Murphy, who ran the Diamond Springs General Store until retiring several years ago, said he expects to give some of his winnings "to churches and charities and invest some of it in land — if the phone ever stops ringing."

Buhlert, son of a miner from San Francisco, was virtually speechless.

"He is so excited he really can't talk," said his wife.

Travel Season for Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While most Americans began packing the Christmas tinsel and worrying about paying holiday bills, many of those they sent to Congress were packing for trips abroad — at Uncle Sam's expense.

The semi-annual congressional travel season is here again. Destinations range from Peking's Forbidden City to palmstudded islands in the South Pacific.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is going to Hanoi. Eleven women members of the House are headed for China. Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., is going to South America. Some senators are taking a $35,000 trip to the South Seas.

"If I had my way every congressman would go overseas to find out about what is going on there," Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., said in an interview. "It is the function of the congressional branch to act on behalf of the people to check the actions of the executive branch. The executive branch flies everywhere, all the time."

Ryan, a member of the House International Relations Committee, is not taking any trips during this month-long congressional vacation. But he has been to the Middle East, Southeast Asia, most of Europe and a good share of South America.

"I tell everybody when I am going and where, and when I get back I tell them where I was and what I learned," Ryan said. "And if they want to check into the expenses and who paid for it, they can."

Not many members or committees of Congress operate that way. A few announce their trips but many more do not.

"There's a flock of trips going out of here this recess," one senior Senate staff aide says. "But if I talk about it, they'll have my neck."

Most trips ostensibly are for studying problems that fall within legislative purview.

Javits takes his trips seriously. On an 11-day trip to South America, he will meet with officials in Brazil, Peru, Panama and Venezuela.

"It's no fun to go anywhere with Javits," said a Capitol Hill staffer. "He works like hell and then he follows up when he gets back, which most of these guys don't."

Official trips are paid for by the government. Spouses who go along are supposed to pay their own way.

The State Department's Congressional Travel Office, which arranges much of the congressional travel and accommodations, declines to furnish information on the trips, citing the "wishes of Congress."

"We just do what we're told," said a State Department man. "They control our appropriations."

Two major trips for this recess have been announced: — Eleven women members of the House, with assorted husbands and children and headed by Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., began leaving Saturday for two weeks in China. All 19 women House members were invited, but eight declined for various reasons.

— On Jan. 2, a dozen senators and top Senate staffers begin an 18-day journey to the South Pacific on a $35,000 budget. On the agenda are visits with the U.S. commander-in-chief of the Pacific in Hawaii, an investigation of possible commonwealth status for the Marianas on Saipan, briefings about the Trust Territories on Guam, and meetings with leaders of Australia and New Zealand. The senators will stop in Mexico City on the way home.

McGovern, with his wife and four aides, will visit India, Bangladesh, Pakistan and Vietnam — with stops in Lisbon, Rome and London. In Hanoi, and possibly Saigon, he will assess Vietnamese interest in repairing relations with the United States.

Democrats Find Answer Is No

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last January, Democrats swaggered into town impressed by their own numbers. At that point, nothing seemed impossible for them in the 94th Congress.

After all, hadn't President Ford warned the nation against a "veto-proof" Congress in his campaign speeches the previous fall?

And hadn't the country — in the wake of Watergate scandals — elected Democrats in landslide proportions?

Wasn't a 290-145 majority in the House and 62-38 edge in the Senate large enough for a Democratic Congress to ram through legislation over Ford's objections?

After an arduous year, Democrats have discovered the answer to all of the above is no.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona properly labeled the first session of the 94th Congress a "standoff," and predicted the next session would be "more political, more acrimonious" as the 1976 election nears.

The "veto-proof" Congress proved to be a myth. Ford rejected 16 bills passed by the 94th Congress and 11 times, so far, made his vetoes stick.

The three times Congress managed to override his veto came on popular measures involving federal aid to education, health services and nurse training, and the school lunch program. Congress will not act until January on the other two — the $45 billion Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill and legislation to expand the picketing power of construction unions.

Faced with a President willing to tough it out, beset by internal disputes and held back by remnants of the old coalition between Republicans and southern conservatives, the Democrats turned out to be stronger on paper than in action.

As a result, it was a year of frustrating confrontation with the White House.

When New York City's financial plight became dire, Congress was ready to approve legislation providing federal loan guarantees. Ford said no. But the city and state started putting financial affairs in order and Ford agreed to support $2.3 billion in direct federal loans. Congress took him up on it.

Score one for Ford.

When Ford proposed extending tax cuts, he said they must be coupled with a $395 billion spending ceiling for fiscal 1977. Congress said no.

The President vetoed the first tax bill and the House sustained him. But Congress pushed through the same bill with an innocuous promise to cut spending to offset any reduction in taxes. Ford signed it.

Score it a tossup.

Ford insisted energy legislation lift the ceiling on the price of domestically produced oil, while Congress demanded a rollback.

Congress finally sent him a bill which rolls back prices but lets the president decontrol them over a 40-month period. Ford signed the bill.

Score one for Congress.

British Women's Lib

LONDON (UPI) — After today, you won't find any newspaper ads in Britain for night watchmen or tea ladies, thanks to a new anti sex-discrimination law.

Women outnumber men among Britain's 58 million citizens, and the 87 clauses of the new law provide them with equal pay, working conditions, job opportunities and union rights.

Under the law, persons who feel they have been discriminated against on grounds of sex can sue employers, establishments and public bodies. Violations are punishable by a maximum $800 fine.

The law, while attacking discriminatory practices, has tied the English language in knots and created a few unexpected anomalies besides.

The taxman has vanished overnight and so has the gasman, the dustman and the barmaid, all to return in a neutral — or neuter — guise.

Businessmen may no longer ask for a "smart lad" to take mail to the post office, nor advertise for a "girl Friday" office worker.

Au pair girls, however, are here to stay.

Women lost a few privileges for the gains they made.

British Rail, the state-owned rail network, will be closing its "ladies waiting rooms."

Females also have an equal chance to go into debt, now that they may take out mortgages, purchase goods on credit and buy drinks in bars that previously excluded them.

Sex discrimination still exists in public restrooms and in the underwear departments of clothing stores, and the law says women are not physically capable of being coal miners. It also does not affect church doctrine outlawing women priests.

But even royalty is not immune from some aspects of the new law.

While the Queen may never become known as the "throneperson," one member of Parliament has suggested the laws of succession favoring the male line be changed to make age the deciding factor, thus allowing Princess Anne to become second in line to the throne.

Princess Anne is fourth in line under the ancient laws of succession that give the sovereign's sons precedence over daughters.

New Marijuana Law

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Here are the do's and don'ts of the new California marijuana law that goes into effect at midnight Wednesday (Jan. 1):

—Possible felony penalties of up to 10 years in prison for simple possession will be ended.

—Under the one-ounce limit, violators will not even be arrested, providing they can identify themselves the same as they would if given a traffic ticket.

—The citation carries a maximum fine of $100, no matter how many times a person is apprehended. However, on the fourth offense within 24 months, an offender will be required to attend a drug treatment program.

—Unchanged are felony provisions against growing and selling marijuana and driving while under its influence. Marijuana laws affecting minors are not affected and juveniles will remain subject to arrest. Supplying any amount of marijuana to a minor remains a felony.

—Giving away amounts less than an ounce or transporting such quantities in a car will be subject to the citation-only fines. Repealed are prohibitions against possessing marijuana paraphernalia or being in a room where marijuana is smoked.

—The new law also carries provisions to erase criminal records for marijuana possession crimes.

—The 500,000 or more Californians with arrest records that preceded the new law will be allowed immediately to petition a court for purging of the record. This can cost up to $50 plus attorney's fees.

—Persons arrested beginning Jan. 1 will have their possession convictions automatically wiped off their records after two years.

Thank You, Thank You

Residents of Kingston and the Ulster County area did it from the heart during the Freeman sponsored drive to raise funds for the burned-out City Children's Library.

Starting with a Beggar's Night on Thanksgiving Eve and ending on Christmas Eve, a total of $15,040.51 was raised and the credit belongs to those who work, live and play in Ulster County.

It's not easy to generate a fund-raising drive on such short notice. The Children's Library was burned out during the middle of November. Less than two weeks later, the appeal went out to the community and like most appeals made to our wonderful friends in the city and county, there was cooperation.

Volunteer and paid firemen joined forces on Beggar's Night. School children went out with their parents and members of the library board of trustees and staff workers put in some valuable time. As a result, more than $5,000 was raised on that night and the five-week drive was underway.

IBM swelled the jackpot with a $2,000 contribution. There were other business firms, veterans organizations, service clubs and just hard-working private citizens who kept sending their monies to the Daily Freeman.

Despite all this, the library has a long way to go. A decision has to be made whether or not to relocate or build again on the same spot. Whatever the decision, more money will be needed. The insurance on the old building is hardly enough.

The Freeman is privileged to have had a part in the initial fund-raiser. In these days of hard times and during a month when people were spending money for holiday giving, it was gratifying that they were able to give something for one of the most valuable commodities in any community—a library.

From the bottom of our hearts, the Freeman family thanks those who contributed. Those who haven't and want to, the library staff will accept donations. This drive was just the start. It will be a long time before our community will be able to have its own children's library once again.

Inside Report

Pulling the Claws

By Rowland Evans

and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—The coming election-year session of Congress, having tasted blood in blocking secret Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) funds to Angola, any push to outlaw all convert CIA operations in the future.

"It's a little like a mirror image of the old McCarthyism," one critical Senate Democrat told us. "This time, instead of alleged Communism, it's the CIA that destroys everything it touches and is responsible for everything that goes wrong."

The troubled new African state of Angola, posing perplexing problems that might not be remedied by clandestine CIA activity, could become the catalyst for Congress decreeing an end, across the board, of all CIA "dirty tricks" and other secret operations abroad. Given months of anti-CIA headlines resurrecting attempted assassination of foreign leaders, few politicians here are willing to risk votes back home by defending the CIA as an important, even vital tool of U.S. foreign policy.

Just before taking its one-month Christmas recess, the Senate voted by an overwhelming 54 to 22 to bar secret financing of political factions in Angola opposed to the Soviet-backed MPLA, or Popular Movement. Junior liberal Democrats such as Sen. Dick Clark of Iowa, spawned by the anti-Vietnam movement, were naturally in the vanguard. More significant were conservative Republicans—such as Sens. Robert Taft, Jr., of Ohio and William Scott of Virginia—and even Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, once the epitome of the Democratic cold warrior, opposing CIA-channeled Angolan aid.

But the real goal of these Senators may extend far beyond Angola. "A showdown on the whole issue of covert aid abroad is coming," Sen. Gale McGee of Wyoming, a rare Democrat supporting Angolan aid, told us, "and in the worst possible time, the presidential election year of 1976." It so the irony is deep.

President Ford a year ago made a major concession to rabid CIA critics on Capitol Hill—signing a new law requiring notification of six congressional committees before he approves undercover CIA operations. On Angola, the administration informed not just six committees (the Appropriations, Armed Services and Foreign Relations panels in both Houses) but also the two select committees probing the CIA.

Exactly how many legislators thus were made privy to CIA's Angolan operations is unknown, but it probably exceeds 50 members—about 10 per cent of Congress.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee took special care to make available to all 17 members the private briefings on the Angolan intervention that CIA director William Colby gave last summer to Sens. John Sparkman of Alabama and Clifford Case of New Jersey, the committee's senior Democrat and Republican. Most Senators turned the offer down.

Similar lack of interest marked the CIA's briefings of other committees under the new law. At the first briefing of the seven-member Senate Armed Services subcommittee on CIA oversight, not one question, hostile or otherwise, was asked.

Accordingly, President Ford, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Colby could logically assume that having met the tightened requirements of the reporting law without congressional protest, the relatively low-level arms and financial aid planned for Angola could proceed.

An erroneous assumption. Almost overnight the hostility of anti-intervention, anti-CIA Senators became so virulent that Sen. John Tunney of California, author of the anti-aid amendment, actually started to walk out on Kissinger during a Dec. 18 closed-door meeting. The reason: Tunney thought Kissinger was about to reach a compromise, and compromise was one thing Tunney did not want.

Tunney was persuaded to stay, but the political gesture of a walkout was not lost on his fellow Senators. Running for reelection, Democrat Tunney has moved conspicuously toward the right on social-economic issues in keeping with the times. His leadership of the anti-CIA forces on Angola will balance that political shift for liberal Californians spawned on Vietnam.

Following his humiliating loss in last week's Angolan vote, President Ford is now looking to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota to bail him out. As a former Vice President, and the leading Democratic presidential prospect, Humphrey knows well enough the fearful risks in tying the hands of a President trying to compete on even terms with Moscow.

But the odds run strongly against Humphrey or anybody else in Congress bailing out Mr. Ford—or permitting U.S. competition with the Soviet Union on even terms.

Rather, the anti-CIA mood is running so strong and deep that a blanket ban on any clandestine role by the CIA seems more likely than retrieving the U.S. position in Angola.

It is precisely such a singular withdrawal from superpower responsibility that is now weakening the resolve of both Zaire and Zambia, U.S. supporters in the Angolan civil war, to risk continued opposition to Soviet-backed forces. Other nations are also watching, uneasily, as Congress systematically pulls the claws of the American eagle.

Sunday in Leningrad

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

LENINGRAD—Forget Gulag for a moment. In Russia it is also the little things. You are much better off traveling here in groups, because the Soviet state thinks macrocosmically. Twenty, thirty, a hundred people are palpable. One is a nuisance. But the trouble now was a subgroup. Twelve of us wanted to go to church on Sunday. This is not, by the way, a Provocative Act for a foreigner in Russia—he is free to attend church, and leave the country peacefully.

We are at the newest, largest hotel in Leningrad, a city of four million people. You would suppose that the lobby is bustling at 8:30 in the morning. It is not. You look outside the door, into the Arctic dark, and there is no taxi line. You go to the desk where the sign tells you they will call you a taxi for 30 kopecks, but there is no one there. You go to one end of the ain desk, and the lady hears you out; and thin points to another woman, at the other end of the desk—she is the one who speaks English.

You go through it again. She tells you you must go to Information on B Floor. You go to Information on B Floor. There is nobody there. You return to the main desk. She tells you to talk to the lady at your own floor who keeps the room keys. You explain that she does not speak English. You are told she will understand you. You go back to Floor 5 and explain that you desire f-o-u-r taxis, counting the fingers on your hand as in This Little Piggy Went to Market, to take t-w-o-l-v-e people to church. She nods, and picks up her telephone. But it does not work. She says something in Russian which has got to be earthy. FLASH! She reaches for a key, obviously to an unoccupied guest room, halfway down the hall. In two minutes she is back, and scribbles the number of a cab which will come to the door of the hotel in a matter of minutes.

What about the other three cabs? Go down, she says, and advise four members of your party to occupy the cab with number 76-30. Then come back here, and I will tell you the number of the next cab. You go to the elevators, but four of them are out of order, and three are not enough to handle rush hour traffic, which has now begun. So you run down 4, 3, 2, 1, PAST THE MYSTERY FLOOR—nobody knows what's there; perhaps Howard Hughes has hedged his bets—B, A, bark your orders to four communicants, and bound back up the six flights.

She is at her desk. As you reach her, she hears the telephone ring, bounds down the hall, returns with the number of the second cab, and instructs you to rush down and Fire Two. You ask if you might not simply wait downstairs as all the taxis arrive, and she says No! Under no circumstances! How would you know what the number is of the cab that is dispatched for your use?

You do not argue in Russia. I expect you would not argue even if you knew how to argue in Russian. The logical gears are non-reciprocating. On the one hand the management of the largest hotel in the most cosmopolitan center of Russia finds nothing abnormal in organizing something like Houston Control to round up four taxis at nine in the morning on Sunday. On the other hand, you have the feeling that if you had appeared at the main desk and asked for six B-52's, you would not have been required to make any extra exertions.

We got there. There were perhaps two hundred parishioners. The priest was venerable, and he spoke to a congregation that must have been born, every one of them, before the revolution. The priest read extensively in Russian—from the scriptures, one supposes. You take fugitive delight in calculating that there probably isn't enough religion left in Russia to attract the attention of the new liturgists. They will worry about religion in Russian only when it is more widely practiced. That will be the signal to come on in and ruin the liturgy.

So the old priest spoke the mass in Latin, in the old rite, and the old women, and a few men, bowed their heads. Behind the altar is a huge florid painting of the romantic school, the cross figuring large with the legend, IN HOC SIGNO VINCES: by this sign, ye shall conquer. You sigh under the weight of all that is undone, in Russia, and outside Russia, before the church can be called triumphant; but then you ponder the fact that it—the little tatterdemalion church—is still there; and pnder even the demisemiquaver of a miracle—that all twelve American tourists got there. And anyway, after a half century's experience with Communism in Russia, impatience with chilitastic Christianity is childlike. Some day, when the statues of Lenin are as windblown as his thoughts, the major shrine in Leningrad will probably be that little Christian church, that went on and on, Sunday after Sunday, as though nothing had happened.

It's a Long Wave Down

WASHINGTON—The nicest thing we could do for ourselves for New Year's is have Ronald Reagan appointed Jerry Ford's legal guardian. This would satisfy the reactionary ultras without depriving the rest of us of a source of year-round mirth and merriment.

The nicest thing we could do for the Democrats is call off the elections. This would relieve them of a burden they obviously can't carry, while keeping the office of president in the hands of the Republicans who covet it with a peculiar and eccentric ferocity. Those hundreds of Democratic candidates would be allowed to keep the campaign money they've collected tax free to spend it on their wives, children and girl friends.

To give the Reagan Administration the bipartisan tone, so favored by contemporary American statesmen, he should pick Hubert Humphrey for vice president. He's experienced in the work, he has demonstrated a capacity for loyalty to anyone who strokes him regularly, and in that office he can run on at the mouth without danger of being taken seriously.

Something more elaborate is called for to keep the grim-voiced Cuddles Kissinger content over the course of the next 12 months. He needs a country, a nation of his own to play his games in. We could call it Crisis Land, and it would be a state in perpetual jeopardy of being "taken over" by whoever. Here, but here alone, Henry would be able to pursue any course of action, any policy, any and every elaborate chicane to calm his complex and duplicitous nature. In this cold-war romper room, he and his Moscow buddies would be allowed to wage depolatory warfare, plant plasticine in the mollusks and assassinate anyone with any weapon from dart guns and club to laser beams.

DIRE OMENS

Having attended to the needs of our leaders, we can now focus on what's in store for ourselves in '76. The omens, alas, are not favorable.

Kidding aside, Tom Holt in his Holt Executive Advisory newsletter is not optimistic, and no economic analyst has had a higher percentage of good predictions over bad ones these past years.

The recovery, such as it is, has about blown out, according to Holt, and don't be deceived by those happy-peppy announcements of carefully selected and highly misleading figures on the evening TV news shows. Remember you probably know more about this stuff than the person reading it to you does.

So don't think that the squeeze is over and you can go back to swinging when you

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Election Commission Has Much Chaos

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—Under normal bureaucratic pressures, it takes a little time for a new agency to make a muddle of things. But the Federal Election Commission has succeeded in less than a year to botch its mission.

The commission was established last Spring to administer the campaign laws. The first priority of every worthy federal institution is to hire as many bureaucrats as possible at the highest salaries possible.

Although the new commission is confined to a modest $5 million budget, it managed to acquire 127 bureaucrats at an average salary of $17,463.

Then the bureaucrats, true to form, began to produce complex solutions for simple problems. Since bureaucrats are judged by the amount of paperwork they generate, the paper began to fly—with seven carbon copies of everything.

Ultimately, the busy bureaucrats designed a new disclosure form for political candidates to fill out. This was completed, unfortunately, before the commission adopted regulations setting forth what was to be disclosed.

The culmination of the bureaucratic process is publication in the Federal Register. This is the supreme moment when a new proposal or regulation is unveiled, as required by law, for public viewing.

The new disclosure reports, having been pushed into the bureaucratic mill ahead of the disclosure regulations, reached the Federal Register first. Accordingly, the forms were published, at a cost of $9,000 to taxpayers, before it was settled what should be reported on the forms.

Or to state it simply, the commission put the cart before the horse. This was bound to cause some confusion, which the commission tried to allay with this footnote in the Federal Register: "Persons comparing the proposed regulations with these forms should not be disturbed by any evident discrepancies."

The House Administration Committee, nevertheless, was disturbed. Its staff found nine discrepancies between the proposed regulations and the new campaign law.

For instance, the law is supposed to prevent any large, hidden campaign spending. But one of the commission's proposed rules would permit a group of individuals each staying below the $100 minimum, to join in a major expenditure without having to report it.

The House staff pointed this out in a confidential memo. "Thus," explained the memo, "a group of 1,000 individuals could contribute $100 each and spend $100,000 on a single transaction for 10 daily full-page political advertisements in a newspaper for the ten-day period immediately preceding an election, and NOBODY would have to report either the contributions or expenditures."

The disclosure rules and forms should have been ready months ago for the presidential candidates to file on January 31, 1976. But the fuddle factory, which was supposed to produce the new regulations, has been spinning its wheels. Short of a bureaucratic miracle, the candidates will have to use old, out-dated 1972 forms.

Footnote: A spokesman told our associate Bob Owens that the Federal Election Commission "would wait to respond to questions" at congressional hearings next month.

FORD'S TESTINESS: President Ford, an admirer of the late Harry Truman, can be just as testy. Confidential White House minutes show frequent Trumanesque utterances coming from the President.

For example, Ford chafed the other day over the trouble he has had getting the bureaucracy to economize. Every time he orders a spending cut, the bureaucrats invariably slash the wrong programs.

"The moment you tell 'em to cut something," grumped the President, "they all go to the most sensitive programs to make it tougher for us."

Nevertheless he stubbornly resisted heavy defense cuts. "I don't approve of overly severe cuts," he snorted tersely.

An associate told him that his top Pentagon people hadn't been fighting on Capitol Hill for military appropriations. Snapped the President: "That's inexcusable!"

Another time, the confidential minutes show Ford was discussing the de-regulation of natural gas prices. The measure was being held up before the congressional recess by House Commerce Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va.

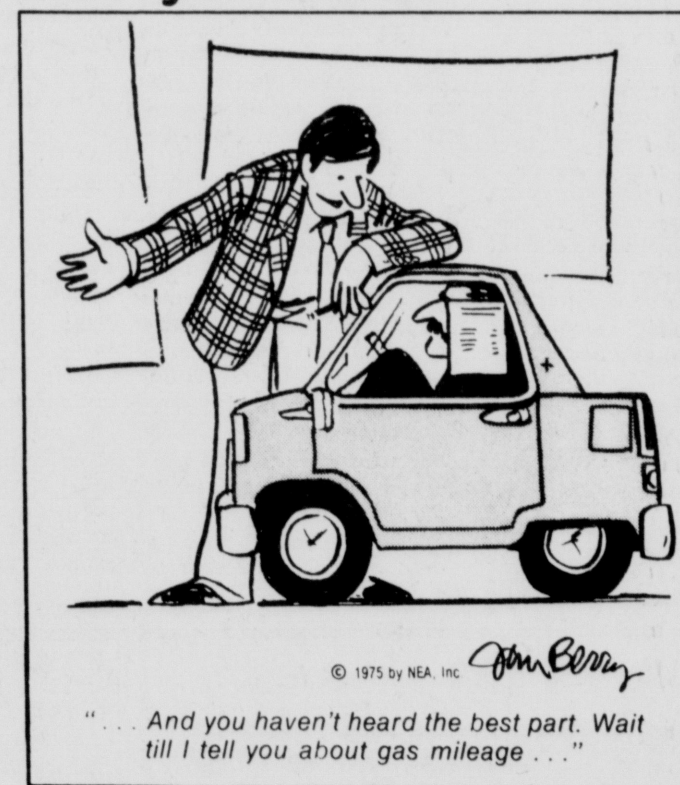

Bellyached the President: "Why should this country let one man hold up means to provide the necessary natural gas?" He threatened to seek a discharge petition to force the bill out of Staggers' committee.

The President also bluntly rejected the private appeals of two powerful Senators Republican Conference Chairman Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Republican Policy Chairman John Tower, R-Tex., that he veto the energy bill.

An associate commented afterward: "You're faced with some real tough decisions."

"You think I don't know it?!" retorted the President.

Snack the Old Year Out

KINGSTON
In homes across the country, scores of house-parties are being planned to see the old year out and to welcome in the new.

Entertaining is simpler these days... more casual... more fun. There aren't as many rules and regulations to hamper the style of the host and hostess.

Below are several easy-to-make hors d'oeuvres recipes suggested by area party-givers.

MAPLE APPETIZERS

1 20-oz. can pineapple chunks
3 8-oz. pkg. brown and serve sausage links
4 tsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
½ cup maple syrup

½ cup water
½ cup vinegar
2 large green peppers, cut approx. ¼" squares
10 oz. jar Maraschino cherries, without stems, drained.

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Cut sausages in bite-sized pieces, brown in skillet. Blend cornstarch, salt, reserved pineapple syrup, maple syrup, water, vinegar. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Add pineapple, sausage, peppers and cherries. Cook 5 minutes. Keep warm in chafing dish. Serve with cocktail picks.

Mrs. Alan Sparks
O'Neil Street

ZUCCHINI PATTIES
4 to 6 small grated zucchini

3 eggs
½ cup pancake flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. chopped parsley
1 heaping T. Italian grated cheese

Mix thoroughly. Batter will be watery. Make quarter-sized patties on griddle. Serve warm. Will serve at least 10.

HOT BEEF DIP

¼ cup chopped onions
1 T. margarine
1 cup milk
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
1 13-oz. pkg. chopped dried beef
½ cup mushroom pieces
¼ cup Parmesan cheese
2 T. chopped parsley
Cook onion in margarine. Stir in milk and cream cheese until well blended. Add remaining ingredients. Serve as a hot dip with toasted rounds or your favorite crackers.

Serves 10-12.

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

24 medium fresh mushrooms
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 envelope onion soup mix
¾ cup dried bread crumbs
½ cup chopped blanched almonds
½ cup sherry
2 T. melted butter
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Remove stems from mushrooms and chop finely. In skillet melt butter, add stems, cook until tender. Add onion soup mix, bread crumbs, almonds; mix well. Stir in sherry. Fill caps with onion mixture. Place cap-side up on well greased pan. Brush with remaining butter. Sprinkle with cheese. Broil approx. 5 minutes.

Nordic Ham 'n Vegetable Dip, served in a royal purple eggplant boat, is a delectable relish dip to grace the koldtbord table. It makes a tasty topping for sardines and crackers, nice for simple suppers, cocktail party appetizers or afternoon snacks for football fans who follow the games on TV. Brought to you by the makers of the tiny fish that's a whale of a value, the Norway sardine. NORDIC HAM 'n

VEGETABLE DIP
1 medium eggplant
1 cup each chopped celery, onion and green pepper
1 clove garlic, chopped
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
1 cup diced cooked ham
2 Tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon each oregano and salt
2 to 3 drops Tabasco sauce
2 cans (3¼ ounces each) Norway sardines, drained
Crisp crackers or toast points
Parsley for garnish
Halve the eggplant. With sharp knife, carefully remove center, leaving a 1 inch shell. Reserve shell. Chop pulp and combine with celery, onion, green pepper and garlic. In skillet, saute vegetables slowly in hot oil, until almost tender, stirring frequently. Add tomato paste, ham, parsley and seasonings. Bring to boil; lower heat, cover and simmer 10 minutes, adding a little water as needed, to prevent sticking. Cool mixture; then puree in blender or food mill. Pour into reserved eggplant shells and chill. At serving time, arrange filled shells on tray. Garnish with parsley. Arrange sardines on crackers around dips. Spoon dip over sardines.

Makes about 4 dozen appetizers.

Add a fiesta touch to party appetizers with Green Chile Wrappetizers. Strips of canned green chiles and cheese give the North American hot dog a zesty South-of-the-border flavor. Refrigerated fresh dough for wieners makes these appetizers remarkably quick and easy to put together.

Look for whole green chiles where canned Mexican foods are sold. They're only mildly hot, so you might want to have taco sauce or chile salsa for aficionados of fiery foods to use as a dip.

Cream Cheese-Bacon Roll-ups is another party snack which uses the same idea of splitting and filling hot dogs, baking them in a blanket of refrigerated dough for wieners and slicing the baked wieners into appetizer-sized pieces.

CREAM CHEESE-BACON ROLL-UPS

3 oz. package cream cheese, softened
1 teaspoon milk
3 strips bacon, fried and crumbled
1½ tablespoons finely chopped onion
5 wieners
4-oz. can WIENER WRAP® brand dough from Pillsbury — plain, cheese, onion or barbecue flavor
½ cup buttered bread crumbs
Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

Lightly grease a cookie sheet. In small bowl, blend cream cheese and milk. Mix in bacon and onions; set aside. Cut a lengthwise slit in each wiener, to within ½ inch of each end. Fill each wiener with about 1 tablespoon cream cheese mixture. Unroll Wiener Wrap brand dough and separate into 5 rectangles. Place one wiener lengthwise on each piece of dough. Stretch dough to roll around each wiener. Roll each wiener in buttered bread crumbs. Place on cookie sheet cheese side up. Bake at 375 degrees for 14 to 18 minutes until golden brown. Slice each wiener into 4 pieces. Serve hot. 20 appetizers. Refrigerate any leftovers.

GREEN CHILE WRAPPETIZERS
4-oz. can whole green chiles

5 wieners
5 strips (3x½ inches thick) Monterey Jack or Mozzarella cheese
4-oz. can WIENER WRAP® brand dough from Pillsbury — plain, onion, cheese or Mexican flavor
½ cup crushed taco or corn chips

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Lightly grease a cookie sheet. Rinse green chiles; remove seeds. Lay pieces flat and pat dry with paper towel. Cut chiles into 5 strips, 1½-2 inches wide. Cut a lengthwise slit in each wiener, to within ½ inch of each end. Insert cheese strip in each wiener. Cover with strip of green chile. Unroll Wiener Wrap brand dough and separate into 5 rectangles. Place one wiener lengthwise on each piece of dough. Stretch dough to roll around wiener. Roll each wiener in crushed taco or corn chips; place on cookie sheet cheese side up. Bake at 375 degrees for 14 to 18 minutes until golden brown. Slice each wiener into 4 pieces. Serve hot. If desired, serve with chile salsa or taco sauce. 20 appetizers. Refrigerate any leftovers.

LIFE TODAY

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a fine, devoted professional man for 17 years. We have a beautiful family, and I have never had any reason to doubt his fidelity.

Out of the blue, I received a phone call from a woman who spoke in a refined and cultured voice. She called me by name and said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman in his office!

I was so shocked I could hardly speak, but I managed to ask her who she was.

She said, "A friend," and then she hung up.

Abby, I got so weak I had to sit down. Then I became nauseated.

My first inclination was to believe her. I wondered, "Why would anyone want to make up a story like that?" Then, I tried to recall if there had been any tell-tale signs — late nights or unexplained absences, but there were none.

When my husband came home, I told him about it. He was as dumbfounded as I and assured me there was nothing to it.

Now I'm asking you. Why would anyone want to make such a call? I love my husband and trust him, but I am . . .

BAFFLED
DEAR BAFFLED: Miserable people try to make others miserable. Your caller was such a person. The word from her is, forget it!

DEAR ABBY: There are four of us married "girls" who have lunch together once a week, and today one of us presented a problem so unusual that only you could answer for us.

She has known this local undertaker for over 25 years, and they have always had a lot of laughs at parties and enjoyed one another's company.

Her question was, should she have her body sent to him when she passes away, and let him see her body (now that it's in its "older" state), or should she leave instructions to give her business to one of his competitors? (She's still a cute cookie in our book, even if she is over 65.)

DEAR FOUR: What a ghoulish topic for a girlish lunch! I'm sorry to let "cute cookie" down prematurely, but only she can answer that question.

Growing Older

Condominiums: Blessing or Burden?

By Harold Blumenfeld

More and more people now retired or planning early retirement are buying condominiums because they seem to offer a better way to live as we grow older. And a condominium seems to be a good investment because the maintenance is often lower over the years than escalating rents.

We bought our condominium after my mandatory retirement. It was evenrying we had hoped for. The layout was ideal for our needs. On the Intracoastal Waterway, it had a magnificent view of the Atlantic Ocean and a tree-shaded dead-end street offering a degree of safety for evening strolling. The purchase price, maintenance and taxes appeared to be just right at the time.

But, just like so many other people who have bought condominiums, my wife and I didn't read all the fine print. It was a shock to discover later that we had given the builder-developer a 99-year lease on the recreational facilities. We found these inadequate and usually in need of servicing or major repairs. However, we are luckier than other owners because our recreation lease has a fixed figure for monthly payments. The less fortunate have a built-in cost-of-living clause and recreation assessments in many areas have risen 25 per cent in the last couple of years.

For all this too many developers do nothing to maintain or improve the recreational facilities they left with the unit owners and condominium associations. They don't have to take picks and shovels down into the gold mines which provide them with millions of dollars for the next 99 years. For them it's like hitting the jackpot at the slot machine without even having to pull down the lever.

It isn't that unit owners, condominium associations and some legislators aren't aware of certain deceitful unfair and illegal recreation leases. Many states are working on legislation to prevent developers from inserting clauses in new condominium purchases agreements.

There are an estimated three million present owners of condominiums. It's a fair assumption that most bear the burden of monthly or annual recreation payments.

Forced to face these facts both houses of Florida State Legislature for example, have drafted bills to prevent condominium frauds, aiding prospective purchasers and helping current owners. One bill should make it impossible for developers to collect mandatory charges for recreational facilities in condominium complexes. To protect individual unit owners, other legislation should prevent developers from foreclosing on unit owners who do not pay the money due on recreation leases and won't permit developers to use liens to enforce recreation lease collections.

Recreation leases are blatant and unfair trade practices. I'm sure no developer would have sold a condominium unless the buyer agreed to the 99-year recreation lease. Yet this form of selling maneuver is really a tie-in sales gimmick, which has been carefully policed and prosecuted by the Federal Trade Commission since 1910.

The FTC has a mandate to look after the rights of buyers, and not the sellers. It also has a duty to enforce the federal laws which make tie-in sales illegal. For two years the FTC has been investigating the 99-year leases, and in my opinion, listening to the arguments of developers and their high-priced batteries of lawyers but not paying too much attention to the unit owners and condominium associations.

We should have been shocked again when Lewis A. Engman, FTC chairman, announced after a secret 3-to-2 vote that the commission has discontinued investigation of recreational leases. He reportedly gave as his reason a lack of interest based on the volume of mail he had received from condominium unit owners.

Millions of present and future condominium owners face life on fixed incomes. There's still time to save much-needed money by getting rid of the 99-year leases. If you agree, write now. Demand that this investigation be reopened. Send your letters to Lewis A. Engman, Chairman, Federal Trade Commission, Pennsylvania Avenue at Sixth Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

Coping

By Joanne Koch

Is rape always against a woman's will or does the victim secretly desire to be vanquished? Is there something about her dress or behavior that provokes a normal red-blooded male beyond tolerable attraction into uncontrolled brutality?

These are questions that have made rape the most unreported of major felonies. For years women from 8 to 80 who have been brutally attacked have been made to feel that the rape was somehow their fault. Even today if they overcame this guilt and actually report the attack, they will often be put through a humiliating series of questions in which the victim must prove that she actually resisted the attack.

Assault and robbery carry no such requirement. The man at gunpoint is urged to empty his cash register or hand over his wallet to avoid being shot, but the woman facing a razor at her throat, a knife in her back, a garrote ready for strangulation nevertheless is expected to resist and later prove that she resisted.

The excuse for these distorted legal practices, as author Susan Brownmiller explains in the first major history of rape, is based on the notion that rape can easily be a false charge, as it was in the Old Testament tale of Potiphar's wife who falsely accused Joseph because he rejected her advances.

In "Against Our Will" Brownmiller reveals a deeper cause for our treatment or maltreatment of rape as different from other crimes. She makes a strong case for rape as inextricably bound to the notion that males have the right to aggress, to conquer, to appropriate goods and women. Rape, as she sees it, becomes another expression of machismo.

Realizing that such a charge would make many readers

bristle and others dismiss her with innuendoes concerning her feminism, Brownmiller was wisely devoted much of her book to a long catalogue of wartime atrocities against women. She takes us from the Biblical tale of rape of Dinah through knightly conquests during the Crusades, to the pogroms against the Jewish settlements of Eastern Europe, the rape of Belgian women turned to the uses of propaganda during World War I, the Nazi atrocities against women, the rape of the Chinese by the Japanese (in Nanking alone there were approximately 21,000 such attacks between 1937 and 1938), the rape of Vietnamese women by Americans, the Belgian Congo rampage of blacks against white women, the institutionalized rapes of blacks by white slave masters, of American Indian women by whites and white women by American Indians, the tragic case of the raped women of Bangladesh who were rejected by their own husbands.

All the incidents meticulously documented begin to lead inexorably to one conclusion. Rape will not take its properly ignominious place as a violent crime until sexual equality becomes a fact of life for men and for women.

Even though Brownmiller builds a brilliant case for rape as an extension of our cultural notions of male dominance and female passivity, there are a few nagging doubts left when one has completed her grueling book. If the need for male protection has been so keenly felt by women from the caveperson's day to the present, might there be some biological or anthropological balance in the pattern of male-female relationships? How can we expose false rape testimony without humiliating those who have actually been victimized?

Whatever the answers, "Against Our Will" provides sufficient evidence to prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that rape laws and their enforcement should be radically changed.

Cerruti: Fashions for the Famous

By Marian Christy

NEW YORK—When French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing was invited to a top echelon meeting in Rome, he quickly sent for men's wear designer Nino Cerruti, whose Paris salon in the Rue Royale section caters to the who's-who types.

"Mr. d'Estaing confided that he wanted to dress in a way that would please fashion-conscious Italians," says Cerruti, an Italian by birth and a Frenchman by adoption. Cerruti, whose collection is now in 400 American stores, sold the French president his first "body-aware" suit.

Did the president, who never had a strong fashion image, like the double-breasted dark blue suit with dropped shoulders, pinched waist, flared jacket and stovepipe-straight trousers?

Cerruti says: "Diplomats like Mr. d'Estaing never make comments that reflect approval or disapproval. He's very, very close-mouthed. Ah, maybe I shouldn't say it, but he's more open with women. Oh, yes, he liked that suit," says Cerruti, who now sends his most talented tailors to the presidential palace with tape measures and fabric swatches. "He has ordered several in the same style. An order is worth a thousand words."

Cerruti, who's 45 and divorced, is fast finding room at the top with physique-defining jackets and straight trousers in basic colors and fine fabrics. Custom-made suits are $400—or more. Those reproduced by Chicago's Hart-Schaffner-Marx, the company that makes the Johnny Carson line, are roughly half the price.

"All a man needs are a few well-chosen essentials," says Cerruti, who tells his clients to travel anywhere in the world with one good suit, 10 shirts and 10 ties. "That way you've got 10 looks and only one suitcase to carry," he says. "Fashion should never be a burden."

Men who want to change their image invariably seek out

Cerruti. When outspoken French singer-actor Jean-Paul Belmondo got bored with wearing hippie-type leather vests and denim from Left Bank boutiques, he asked a neighbor who lives on the same island on the Seine River who could overhaul his image? The neighbor sent him to Cerruti.

"I put Belmondo in an austere gray flannel suit," says the designer about the switch which changed Belmondo's character. Usually Belmondo is loquacious about taking direction but: "He didn't say a word except thank you and will you take my check?" says Cerruti.

The designer was born in Biella, an Italian town famous for exquisite fabrics, especially the family-owned Cerruti materials sought by such Paris couturiers as Dior, Givenchy, Patou and St. Laurent. When Cerruti was 21 and in his third year at Milan's Catholic University, his father died unexpectedly.

He says: "I had to leave school immediately to replace my father as head of the firm. Within two years, I had a very bad nervous breakdown. You see, I was very distressed at having the enormous executive pressures. All I've really wanted to do is design."

Eight years ago, Cerruti decided to come to Paris and open a men's wear salon. He bypassed Rome, a competitive fashion city, because "Paris is international and Rome is provincial."

One of his first customers was Francois Mitterand, chief of Paris's Socialist Party, and a stocky-chunky man with a paunch. Mitterand expressed a desire to "improve" in order to get what Cerruti calls the "important female vote."

Cerruti dressed him in charcoal gray double-breasted suits that disguised his girth and suggested a cosmopolitan image.

"French socialists are not all poor people who are without education and therefore have no way of surviving in the professional world," says Cerruti. "They want to be known for their achievements and good taste. Mitterand has been buying that look now for years. He says smart clothes give him an air of assurance—and people respond to what he has to say."

One of Cerruti's best-selling accessories are soft felt hats with brims of various widths. Occasionally a woman will pop in and purchase one to wear herself. "I was in the shop the other day when Faye Dunaway bought a brimmed hat right out of the window. She didn't want it packaged. She wore it."

Cerruti, who often was guest on Aristotle Onassis's yacht, the Christina, never made suits for Onassis. He claims that the Greek millionaire never thought Cerruti suits were expensive enough. "Mr.

Onassis always let it be known that he preferred to fly in a tailor from London who charged air fare—plus expenses. He was always saying that he owned the world's most 'expensive' suits."

Cerruti, a fashion traditionalist, is doing a few offbeat looks that Paris men are buying—but that he says will "take time" to catch on in the United States. The 1976 collection features satin evening suits with quilted jackets. And, instead of "regular" suits, he's showing trousers coordinated to long, loose cardigan sweaters to replace the jacket.

"Men who are successful have a terrible life," he says. "Success is always riveted with problems, troubles, headaches and pressures. Dressing in an elegant, offbeat way gives a man the added dimension of pleasure. And I say—why not?"

Lamp Nostalgia Casts New Glow

By Jean Barnes

In the '30s on the farm "filling the lamps" was a privilege bestowed to the most responsible child and usually was performed as part of the "before school" ritual. Then, when chores were done and supper dishes were cleared away, the brightest lamp was set in the center of the table and homework was prepared for the next day.

More often than not in the midwestern states that lamp was a Coleman and many are still in use today.

In 1901, W. C. Coleman acquired the patent, contract and materials for the Efficient Lamp. Setting up his plant in Wichita, Kan., he began marketing, not lamps, but a lighting service to acquaint the public with his remarkable product. Unlike most lamps of that day the Coleman burned gasoline under pressure, producing a brilliant (300 candlepower) and safe light.

Those early lamps took time and effort to light. A torch generated the vaporizing unit. The torch required alcohol, an alcohol jar and a match, plus a minute to heat the vaporizing unit to produce light.

In those first years the lighting system was perfected which allowed business houses and homes to use a series of lamps fed from a single fuel tank outside the building. Fuel was fed to the lamps by means of a one-eighth-inch copper tube. It wasn't until 1908 that

Coleman manufactured the first completely portable lamp.

Constantly seeking improvements he patented the Quick-Lite lamp in 1913 which made the alcohol torch obsolete. His quest for "instant lighting" was rewarded. In 1929 a patent was issued for the Coleman Instant Lighting lamp.

A 1920 catalogue of Coleman products shows that the Quick-Lite was the lowest in price, selling for $11.50 new. It was 20 inches tall and fitted with a white opal shade. The nickel-plated fount held three pints of fuel.

If you wanted something with more class you could purchase for $18 a lamp with handpainted shade decorated with a four-inch crystal fringe. But the portable lamps were not really meant to be ornamental. They are functional in design and the design has changed very little in the past 50 years.

Coleman lamps were made in the United States as late as the 1940s and in Canada until last year. There are many, many Coleman lamps available to today's collectors. But with the public seeking alternate sources of energy and the present trend of "nostalgia" collecting this will undoubtedly affect the supply in the future.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Although nothing can change what has happened, I would appreciate your comments on a problem that has been bothering me.

Last spring my father, nearly 86, died suddenly after he had shoveled snow from our 12 by 18 foot patio. He came in the house, sat down, slumped over and was gone. He shoveled (pushed) snow for about 10 minutes.

It couldn't have been more than two or three minutes after I talked to him that I came back into the room and he was slumped over. I straightened him up, but there was no indication of breathing and his eyes were closed. I have multiple sclerosis and am in a wheelchair which limits my ability to help.

He was as active as he could be, but had begun to decline in strength the last several months especially. He had to rest a lot when he was doing physical work and he went slowly.

Do you think there was anything I could or should have done to save him? I can't completely shake the feeling that I let him down at the most critical point in his life.

DEAR READER — I have been getting variations of this question a lot more frequently of late. That is a good sign, because it means people are becoming more aware that immediate assistance often saves a life when the heart suddenly stops. A large number of sudden deaths can be prevented by prompt effective emergency treatment. It is a lot like saving a person from drowning, and the need to know how to help a person with sudden cardiac arrest is so much more common than there is no comparison.

Some communities have developed programs to teach all the citizens how to save a life when such a sudden emergency occurs. I think this is wise and recommend that all communities develop such a program. The individual person who is interested should contact the local chapter of the American Heart Assn. to see if they have any training programs available. The Heart Association does sponsor a number of programs to teach people what to do. This includes giving external chest compression to provide emergency circulation and artificial respiration when needed. I do think you need training to know how to do this properly.

What could you have done? This is strictly a guess. The first few minutes are critical, and if you are not there when it first happens the chances of doing something decrease rapidly. The second danger is that by starting too late the victim can end up with permanent brain damage and still be alive, which is of questionable value if the damage is severe.

With your disability I doubt very much you could have done anything useful by yourself. To provide both external cardiac massage and artificial respiration you need to be fairly agile, more so than I would guess you to be.

Incidentally, shoveling or even pushing snow can be a lot more work than many people realize, particularly if it is wet snow. I suggest caution in shoveling snow for all of those who are not in tip-top shape from regular activity of a comparable amount.

I would like to leave you with the thought that while you hate to lose your father, just living to 86 and going so peacefully without lingering or a period of suffering is about as serene an end as one could ask for.

The Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, a United Way Agency, is now prepared to offer courses in Home Nursing (offered for the first time in 25 years)—Home Health Care, Mother's Aide, and Good Grooming to all persons interested. With home care of the sick and elderly being recognized as desirable in contrast to institutional care, knowledge of good home nursing practice is expected to be increasingly in demand.

Mrs. Sophie G. Hamilton, RN, Director of the Nursing and Health Programs for the Eastern New York Division of the Red Cross taught the courses in which the following persons were authorized as volunteer instructors in Good Grooming: Mrs. Lucille Canino, RN, of Highland, NY, Mrs. Florence Carroll, LPN, of High Falls, NY, and Mrs. E. Lorraine Lazala, LPN, of Shokan, NY, and in which the following were authorized as instructors in Home Nursing and Mother's Aide: Mrs. Arline Breitung, RN, of Saugerties, NY, Mrs. Lucille Canino, RN, of Highland, NY, Mrs. Florence Carroll, LPN, of High Falls, NY, Miss Denise Rahm, RN, of Hurley, NY, Mrs. Madeleine Wanda, LPN, of Kingston, NY, and Ms. Nadya Spassenko, Executive Director of the Ulster County Chapter.

Church or senior citizen groups, 4-H clubs, Scout troops, other groups, and interested citizens are invited to call the Red Cross office 338-7020 to request enrollment in the course of their choosing.

May Takes Control for Indiana

By UPI

Top-ranked Indiana attracted a New York record crowd for a college basketball game and almost paid dearly for it.

The Hoosiers, teetering on the brink of disaster with four of its starters on the verge of fouling out, grittily hung on for a 76-69 victory over St. John's and the Holiday Festival championship.

As a crowd of 19,694 in Madison Square Garden screamed wildly for a St. John's upset, Indiana's Scott May took control of the game in the last five minutes to break a 65-65 tie and lead the Hoosiers to their ninth straight victory of the season.

Kent Benson, Quinn Buckner, Bob Wilkerson and May each was playing with four fouls when the All-America forward put the Hoosiers ahead, 67-65, on a short jumper. May then sank five free throws in the final 1:24 to guarantee the victory over 11th-ranked St. John's, now 9-1.

Bobby Knight was questioned about keeping his four foul-plagued players in the lineup with eight minutes to go and the Indiana coach replied, "When you get into the last eight minutes of a game like that, you've got to play the best you got."

The best proved to be May, who finished with 29 points and the tournament's Most Valuable Player award.

George Johnson, Alagia kept a tight reins on the pace of the St. John's offense and finished with 16 points, while Johnson scored 23 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and was responsible for Benson's foul problems.

The second-ranked Terrapins had a much easier time

52-48. Marques Johnson's 18 points led the Bruins, who will meet Purdue in tonight's title game. The Boilermakers topped St. Louis, 80-77, behind freshman guard Kyle Macy's 24-point performance. No. 5 Marquette got 17 points apiece from Earl Tatum

the Far West Classic final with a 70-57 victory over Northwestern. The Huskies, led by Clarence Ramsey's 17 points, will meet Texas Tech, which scored an easy 78-65 victory over No. 19 Duquesne.

No. 13 Tennessee had little trouble capturing the Sugar Bowl championship as Ernie Grunfeld and Bernard King combined for 73 points in a 97-73 victory over Tulane. King finished with 37 points and Grunfeld 36.

No. 14 Cincinnati continued to have problems in the Rainbow Classic, dropping its second game of the tournament, a 66-65 consolation loss to Holy Cross. But No. 18 Iowa remained unbeaten and earned a championship berth opposite Southern California with an 82-80 victory over Arizona on Dan Frost's two free throws with no time left.

No. 16 Rutgers also remained unbeaten as the Scarlet Knights belted The Citadel, 96-73, in the Pointsetta Classic. Hollis Copeland scored 21 points to lead the Scarlet Knights, who will meet Georgia Tech, a 98-81 victor over Furman, in the title game tonight.

SCOTT MAY (L), BEAVER SMITH GO FOR LOOSE BALL

SPORTS TODAY

Asked why Indiana never let up on its aggressive man-to-man defense and switched to a zone to protect its players from fouling out, Knight said, "We don't have a zone."

May played just as aggressively with four fouls as he had earlier in the game and explained, "At that time, we had no choice. We just had to play that way to win."

St. John's, 11th-ranked nationally, almost pulled off the big upset behind brilliant performances by 5-9 guard Frank Alagia and slender 6-7 center in their own Maryland Invitational tournament with a 104-69 rout of Seton Hall, but in the other first-round contest No. 7 Alabama was handed its first loss of the season by Princeton, 61-59.

John Lucas scored 21 points to pace the Terps' romp, while Armond Hill scored 20 points as the Tigers used a deliberate offense to knock off Alabama and set up tonight's championship game with the Terps.

No. 4 UCLA had to scramble to get by the first-round of its Bruin Classic, coming from behind to edge Santa Clara, and Bo Ellis to defeat Miami of Ohio, 79-52, in the first-round of the Milwaukee Classic and set up a title game with Wisconsin, a 70-64 victor over Wisconsin.

Ninth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas was another team enjoying its own holiday tournament as Eddie Owens scored 28 points and the Rebels rolled over Houston, 116-92, in a first-round game. However, Las Vegas will take its 11-0 record into the final against No. 15 Michigan, which topped LaSalle, 86-71.

Unbeaten Washington, 12th-ranked, earned a spot in

The Thrill of Victory

of defeat is etched in the face of Florida cheerleader Sharon Atkins. The final score was 13-0. (UPI)

It Was 'Mistake-Free Football'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — "We knew we had to play mistake-free football and we did."

Jubilant Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne explained that was why his "no-name" Terrapins upset Florida, 13-0, Monday night in the Gator Bowl football game.

"We knew we had to play good defense and we took time to prepare," said Claiborne. "The team played just super. They played a great defensive game and our offense moved the ball when it had to."

The fired-up Terrapins, seven-point underdogs, intercepted three passes, turning two of them into scores, and 225-pound freshman running back Steve Atkins rushed for 127 yards on 20 carries, allowing Maryland to control the rain-plagued game.

The lone touchdown came with 8:45 gone in the first period on a 19-yard pass from quarterback Larry Dick to wide receiver Kim Hoover. Place-kicker Mike Suchko got the other points with a conversion and two field goals, a 20-yarder in the second period and a 27-yarder in the fourth.

Suchko also handled Maryland's punting, averaging 40 yards in the rain.

Claiborne noted that Maryland didn't turn the ball over a single time on interceptions or fumbles.

"We had good pass coverage, good hitting, good pursuit, good pass rush," said Claiborne. "The interceptions and sacks were super plays. I think we convinced people we can win against Southeastern Conference teams."

The Terrapins lost to SEC teams in their two previous bowl outings, bowing 17-16 to Georgia in the 1973 Peach Bowl and 7-3 to Tennessee in the 1974 Liberty Bowl.

While Maryland's defense played near flawless football, the hapless Gator offense failed to mount a serious drive on the rain-soaked turf until the final moments when the clock ran out with the ball on Maryland's 10-yard line.

Florida coach Doug Dickey, unable to win a bowl game at Florida since he began coaching there in 1970, said the Gators "just played terrible."

"It was very frustrating. The harder we tried, the worse we played. We are a much better team than we showed, but there is no question that Maryland was the better team tonight and deserved to win."

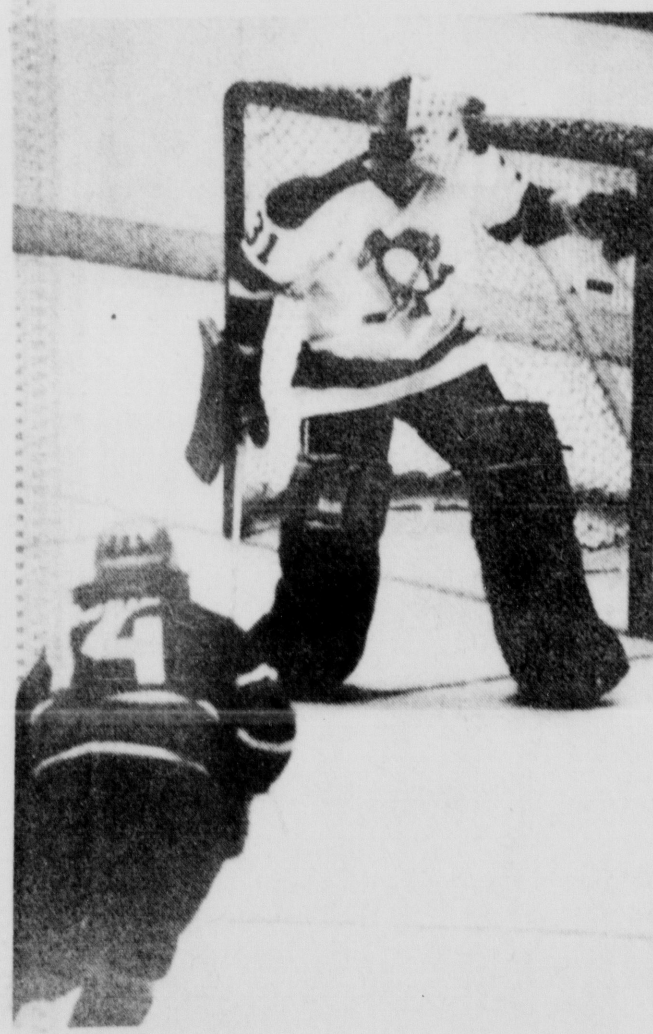

Claiborne, who has called his 1975 Terrapins "a no-name team" because of its lack of big stars, refused to single out any players, calling the win "a team effort."

"There's no big stars on this team, but they've got a lot of heart. They've also got a lot of pride. They wanted to convince people we belonged here and I think we did."

Atkins was modest about his Monday night performance. "I guess I got a little daylight."

Atkins said he didn't pay much attention to the criticism of Maryland as a Gator Bowl foe for 14th-ranked Florida, top offensive team in the SEC, but defensive guard Paul Divito, a 230-pound senior, was not at all reticent in expressing his feelings.

"They said a lot of things about us — that we didn't belong in the same league with Florida," said Divito, who caused and recovered a Florida fumble and sacked Florida quarterbacks three times. "We proved to them that Maryland can play with the best of them."

SOVIETS' VIACHESLAV ANISIN SCORES . . . on Pens' Michel Plasse

Penguins on Defeat: 'We Were Nervous'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Penguins and the Soviet Wings exchanged small tokens of good will Monday night and then got down to work.

Or at least the Wings did. The Penguins spent the first period being nervous hosts and gawking at their visitors before they began earnest play. That, not coaching or talent, is the reason the Wings' chalked up a 7-4 exhibition hockey victory in their North American debut, according to the Penguins.

"I don't think they can say they beat us, because we dominated them," said Pierre Larouche, who drew a misconduct penalty for complaining about the officiating of Soviet Victor Dombrowsky after scoring the Penguins' first goal. "We were nervous and throwing the puck away in the first period."

"I'm not saying they're not good, but I'm not saying they are better than us."

Team captain Ron Schock agreed neither the Penguins' loss or the New York Rangers' 7-3 defeat by the USSR's Central Army team Sunday night should be interpreted as meaning the two Soviet teams will be unbeatable during their eight-city tour.

"If the other (NHL) teams benefit from what happened to us and the New York Rangers, they will beat them," Schock said. "But I guarantee if they stand around and watch, this team has players who can skate and shoot."

Three forwards borrowed from the Soviet team Spartak — Vladimir Shadrin, Victor Schlalimov and Aleksandr Yakushev — directed the initial attack.

Shadrin set the pace when he stole the puck from Dennis Owchar after the opening faceoff and tried to score on a breakaway. Penguin goalie Michel Plasse blocked the shot, but succumbed to the steady pressure by the Wings.

The Wings were leading 5-0 before the clock had even ticked off two minutes of the second period, and members of the Spartak trio had a hand in four of the goals. They each ended up scoring one goal each, while Shadrin and Schlalimov also had three assists each, including assists on two goals by defenseman Yuri Liapkin.

Larouche put the Penguins on the board with 5:35 elapsed in the second period, and the hosts were a different team after that. "I think after the first period the Penguins got the right instructions from their coach," Wings Coach Boris Kulagin said through an interpreter. "They started to play more in the zone of the Russians, and they were more aggressive. They always had two Penguin players on the most dangerous places on the ice."

The Penguins, who had gotten only five first-period shots compared to the Wings' 15, outshot the visitors 25-20 and outscored them 4-3 over the last two periods.

Tarkenton: NFC Player of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton is gradually putting his name at the top of the list in all major National Football League passing categories and now stands just one category away from asserting himself as the greatest passer in the history of the game.

Tarkenton, who won the first passing title of his 15-year career this season, pushed Johnny Unitas off the top of the list in three major lifetime passing categories this year and should better the former Baltimore Colt great in the only other major record—most total yards — sometime midway through next season.

Tarkenton completed 273 passes in 425 attempts for a 64 per cent completion rate, an NFC high 2,994 yards and an NFL high 25 touchdowns last season to take over the all-time lead from Unitas in passes attempted, passes completed and touchdowns.

For his performance in leading the Vikings to a 12-2 record this year and their sixth National Football Conference Central Division title in the last seven seasons, Tarkenton has been named United Press International's player of the year in the NFC.

Tarkenton was the overwhelming choice of the UPI selection panel, polling 27 of a possible 39 votes. The panel is made up of three writers from each conference city.

Fellow Viking Chuck Foreman, who led the NFC in scoring and pass receiving, finished second in the balloting with six votes, followed by Washington quarterback Bill Kilmer and St. Louis running back Terry Metcalf each with three votes.

Since he broke in with the Vings in 1961, Tarkenton has thrown 5,225 passes with 2,931 completions for 291 touchdowns. The 2,994 yard he passed for this season marked the 15th consecutive year he has bettered the 1,000 yard mark, breaking Bobby Layne's mark of 14 seasons. It was also the 14 consecutive season he has thrown for more than 2,000 yards, topping another Unitas record by one season.

"Johnny Unitas will always be the best in my mind," says Alan Ameche, who played with Unitas on the Baltimore championship teams of 1958 and 1959. "But I'll tell one thing — Fran Tarkenton has proved a lot of things to a lot of people."

"I for one never thought a rollout quarterback could do the job in pro football. I thought a quarterback had to stay in the pocket to be a success. But Fran has proved me and a lot of other people wrong."

"Francis is thinking on his feet, not running for his life," Minnesota Coach Bud Grant emphasized. "He doesn't have to wait until the next play like most quarterbacks because he'll make the adjustment right in the middle of a play."

Tarkenton is 1,399 yards short of Unitas in total yards but scrambling Francis has a better lifetime completion rate than Unitas, 55 per cent to 54 per cent.

Tarkenton becomes the second Minnesota player ever to win the player of the year award, joining defensive tackle Alan Page who won the honor in 1971.

Pearl Sparks Streaking Knicks

CHICAGO (UPI) — "It's a real accomplishment when you can score that many against a Chicago team and Jerry Sloan," said guard Earl Monroe.

The "that many" referred to the season-high 37 points he scored Monday night to pace the New York Knicks to a 94-93 victory over the Bulls.

Monroe canned 16 of 22 field goal attempts and was five out of six from the free throw line.

"When you hold Monroe to making 50 per cent of his shots, you have a good chance of winning," said Sloan. "But tonight he was outstanding. The only thing I could make him do was work for his shots."

Sloan was assigned to guard Walt Frazier, but the continual switching of the Knicks' guards saw him facing Monroe very often.

The "Pearl" was averaging 20 points, but by halftime he already had 16 as the Knicks led 49-46.

Then, Monroe scored 13 points in the third quarter.

Chicago's rally fell short in the closing minutes after Monroe scored the Knicks' last basket with 2:32 left. The Bulls could score only four more points and when the Knicks rebounded the Bulls' missed shot with one second left, the victory was sealed.

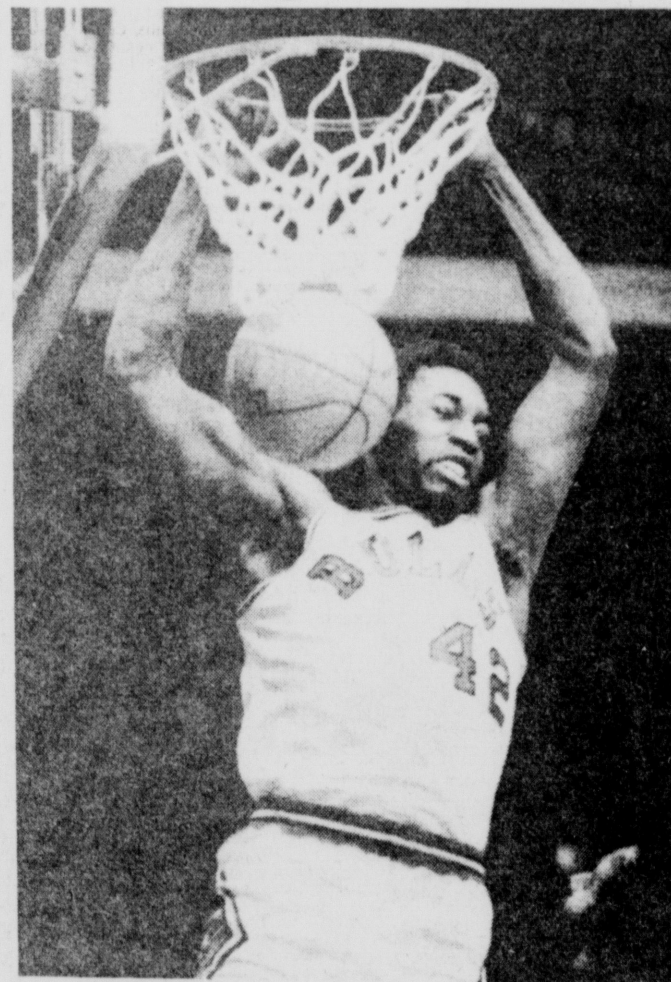

"We're developing a lot more poise and confidence in these close games we're playing," said New York coach Red Holzman. "I think we played well as a team. We played good defense, especially towards the end of the game."

"I wouldn't say that our backcourt beat their whole team. After all, (Bill) Bradley and (Spencer) Haywood scored some points and played good defense and John Gianelli held Bob Love well for a while."

Love had 15 points, all in the first half.

"This was the best I saw Monroe," said Chicago coach Dick Motta. "Monroe had 37 points tonight, and except for a layup, Norm Van Lier had his hand in Monroe's face for each shot."

In the only game in the American Basketball Association Monday night, Kentucky held on to beat the New York Nets, 110-102.

CLIFF PONDEXTER WITH A STUFF

Canadiens Appear Ready for Soviets

If Canadian fans will forgive the comparison, the Montreal Canadiens looked almost as good Monday night as the touring Russian teams which have embarrassed National Hockey League clubs in two straight games.

The Canadiens, traditionally the best skating team in the NHL, skated rings around the Washington Capitals in a 6-0 victory, which gave Montreal a 26-5-6 record and 58 points for the season. The Canadiens now lead Los Angeles by 16 points in the Norris Division of the Wales Conference.

The two visiting Soviet teams have made NHL rivals look bad in their first two games — the Soviet Army team beating the New York Rangers 7-3 Sunday night and the Soviet Stars whipping the Pittsburgh Penguins 7-4 Monday night. The Soviet teams have done it with the same elegant skating and close pass patterns which have been the mark of Montreal Canadiens teams over the years.

The Canadiens failed to score in the first period at Washington, but blew open the game with four goals in the second period. Steve Shutt scored two goals and Guy Lafleur and Yvon Lambert added one each during the blitz.

The goal by Lafleur raised his season total to 22 and gave him 55 points. Pete Mahovlich and Doug Jarvis added goals for Montreal in the third period as the Caps' non-winning skien was extended to 14 games.

After the game, Milt Schmidt, the veteran hockey man who accepted the tough task of making the expansionist Caps a winner, resigned as coach and general manager.

"All-in-all, perhaps a change is for the best and it would be a shot in the arm if someone else did take over," Schmidt said.

The Caps called a 2 p.m. news conference today to announce Schmidt's replacement or replacements.

The Toronto Maple Leafs defeated the Atlanta Flames 6-2 and the Minnesota North Stars edged out the Kings 2-1 in the other Monday night NHL games. There were no games in the World Hockey Association.

Leafs 6, Flames 2

A pair of goals and two assists by Lanny McDonald paced the Leafs to their win over the Flames. McDonald scored his goals at 1:18 and 9:14 of the first period as the Leafs crept to within 10 points of the idle Boston Bruins in the Adams Division. Atlanta is 12 points behind Philadelphia in the Patrick Division.

Stars 2, Kings 1

Tim Young's power-play goal at 17:20 of the second period broke a 1-1 tie and Cesare Maniago's fine goaltending made it stand up for the victory as the North Stars snapped a five-game losing streak. The Stars also have a seven-game home winning streak in December.

By VIC WATIA
(UPI Outdoor Expert)

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hunters and target shooters with itchy fingers for new firearms to add to their collections should be warned that the prices are climbing again in 1976. One only has to flip through the new gun catalogs for the news, wander among the booths at a local gun show or talk to a gun dealer.

In many instances, suggested gun prices for 1976 represent an increase of 10 per cent or less, especially for moderately priced guns such as .22 caliber rifles. However, increases of more than 20 per cent also are shown, especially on some popular firearms, such as over-and-under shotguns.

A visit to a local gun show will reveal that not only are new guns increasing in price, but used firearms are bringing premium prices — in some instances more than the new models are selling for.

Some consumers are blaming the increasing prices of guns, especially premium prices on used pistols and revolvers, to continuing campaigns to ban handguns and for tighter gun control.

Obviously, it has had some effect on the used gun market and consumer demand.

But used shotguns are another matter. The attitude that "they don't make things like they used to" is reflected in the prices of quality smoothbores.

For instance, I recently visited a show in Illinois where dealers from several parts of the country were displaying their wares.

"How much are you asking for that used Winchester Model 12 trap gun," I asked one of the dealers.

"I've got three," he said, looking me over similar to a used car salesman. "The one on the top of the rack is a Model 12 with pigeon grade wood (not a pigeon grade, just pigeon grade wood). Only $700 for that beauty. The next is a Black Diamond, and not too many were made. Only $625 for it. The third used Model 12 you can have for $425."

Now, according to suggested prices for 1976, a new Model 12 for trap shooting with a Monte Carlo stock should list for about $470. Last year, the same gun listed for about $435.

But, some shooters believe that when Winchester first revived the Model 12, it wasn't as good as the earlier models. This, of course, is a matter of opinion. I've talked to Winchester spokesmen who said the new Model 12 is as good as it ever was, and shooters who agree.

However, the more popular the gun, the more difficult it is to find on the used market, and those available command higher prices.

For instance, a Parker double with modern steel barrels, depending on grade and condition, can sell for upwards of $1,000.

The continuing popularity of over-and-under shotguns also is reflected in suggested new price lists. For example, the field model Browning Citori was supposed to sell in 1975 for about $325. In 1976, that suggested price jumps to about $395.

The novice who is interested in purchasing a used gun, should take a few precautionary steps.

First, he should find an experienced friend who knows about guns to take shopping with him. Often, the friend can point out faults in the firearm the novice may overlook in his excitement to purchase.

Regardless of how good a used gun may look, it is best if the purchaser can test fire it before he buys. This is not always possible, especially if the firearm is purchased at a gun show. But, often when buying from a local dealer, the gun can be test fired.

One of the most important points is to know if the gun fits the purchaser. Of course, a gunsmith can alter a gun to make it fit, but that's an added expense that must be taken into consideration.

The novice who purchases a new gun has the advantage of a warranty, and he can return the firearm if something goes wrong during the warranty period. Also, a local dealer can insure a new gun will fit properly before money exchanges hands.

Would You Believe, a $3,000 Baseball Card?

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Big news on the baseball card front. Three enthusiastic collectors believe they have found "the most valuable baseball card in existence" — worth perhaps $3,000.

Can a baseball card — those little pictures of ballplayers you get with bubble gum, tobacco and other products — be worth $3,000?

"That's right," says Bob Rathgeber, 29, one of several hundred serious adult collectors around the country and part-owner of the card in question. "This card has got to be worth from $2,500 to $3,000, maybe more."

The tiny, one-inch by two-inch card was issued in 1910 by the Piedmont Tobacco Co. and depicts Pittsburgh Pirates Hall-of-Famer Honus Wagner in a batting stance.

Up until now, another Honus Wagner card from the same set of Piedmont cards had been considered the most valuable of all the millions of cards in existence — worth about $1,000.

"Our card appears to be a sister card to that one," says Rathgeber. "Until now, our card was never known to exist."

A little background information is needed to explain why a Honus Wagner card is valuable.

It seems that Wagner did not appreciate his name linked with tobacco and told the Piedmont people to remove his picture from the set of some 500 cards they issued in 1910.

As in stamp collecting and many other hobbies, a "legend" and the rarity of an item often make it valuable and so the 25 or so "Wagner tobacco" cards that managed to get out before Wagner complained are now worth about $1,000 each.

"But our Wagner card is much more valuable because it depicts him in a new pose," explains Rathgeber. "All the other Wagner cards were the same picture — just a straight portrait. Ours shows him batting — a card nobody even knew existed."

It was not unusual from some players in the Piedmont set to be depicted on several cards in different poses, says Rathgeber.

Rathgeber, who has several hundred thousand cards, says he and co-owners Dick Reuss and Tom Wickman of Manassas, Va., "lucked into" the new Wagner card.

"We bought a set of 300 old cards for about 40 cents a card from an antique dealer in Virginia," he recalls. "We had no idea it was in there. Our first reaction was, 'No, it can't be,' because no one had ever heard of such a card."

"So, we took the card to a paper restoration expert in Washington, and he authenticated it."

The card, a color lithograph made from an apparently retouched photograph, is in "good" condition, according to Rathgeber, and is now in a safe deposit box in Washington.

"We're going to take it around to some baseball card collectors' conventions early next year," says Rathgeber. "We plan to have it in Indianapolis in February, in St. Louis in April and in Chicago in May."

"I don't know what we will eventually do with it, maybe sell it or trade it," he adds. "But right now, we're going to show it off."

Retains World Title

UCLA Hero Remembers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "I can still remember the officials placing the ball on my side of the field and thinking, 'Oh no, they're coming my way.' It was an awful feeling."

Bob Stiles, UCLA's undersized and unlikely hero in the 1966 Rose Bowl, was reliving the past. And there's nothing to relive like old football glories.

"It looked like the whole Michigan State team was coming in my direction around their right end," he continued. "Bob Apisa, their fullback, had the ball and he looked as big as a house. I thought, 'Oh, my gosh,' and then one of our linebackers, Dallas Grider, grabbed him by the shoulder on about the three-yard line."

"Dallas held him up long enough for me to get an angle and somehow we were able to bring him down on about the three-inch line. It was an incredible experience."

At 5-9 and 175 pounds, Stiles stopped Apisa's two-point conversion attempt with 31 seconds left to preserve the Bruins' 14-12 upset of the national champion Spartans.

He was knocked unconscious by his leaping tackle but Apisa didn't make it and the Rose Bowl erupted into delirium. The Bruins' left cornerback was voted the Player of the Game.

Ten years later, Stiles is an actor still struggling to make it. He lives in an apartment in Westwood and is able to get by by making commercials. He's also done stunt work.

The biggest part of his seven-year acting career came in the movie "Dollars" starring Warren Beatty and Goldie Hawn and shot in Hamburg, Germany. He played a young West Point Army officer.

Stiles admits he's "sort" of a film nut. "Sort of" is an understatement.

"I once saw a different movie 63 nights in a row," he said. "I just simply love the film industry. I love being around it and I love being a part of it. I wouldn't want to do anything else."

"But I wouldn't suggest it for anybody. It's a helluva lot harder than being the Player of the Game in the Rose Bowl. The anxieties and frustrations are tremendous. Of course, it's different if you're working all the time but I don't work all the time."

"I'm able to pay my bills because I do commercials. I even did stunt work for awhile. The last stunt I did was three years ago. I went out a window and dropped 12 feet to the ground. I hobbled off and I haven't done another stunt since."

Stiles, 32, made the last tackle of his football life when he stopped Apisa on the goal line but he didn't lose his enthusiasm for the sport. Or for his old school.

He may be the loudest UCLA fan on New Year's Day when the Bruins, in their first Rose Bowl appearance since 1966, take on No. 1-ranked Ohio State. The Buckeyes are two-touchdown choices.

Once you pass the Utica Club Bar Exam, you're ready to try a case.

We think every beer should have its day in court. Or tavern. Or whatever.

To that end we've devised what we consider a fair trial.

We call it the Utica Club Bar Exam.

All you do is take any two beers of your choice. And one of ours. Utica Club. Pour them into mugs and mix the mugs up. Or, better yet, have someone blindfold you. Just to make sure you taste the beers, not the labels.

Before you judge the beers, we'd like to plead our case.

We make sure nothing but whole grains go into a Utica Club. Anything less would make for a lesser beer.

And the water that goes into a Utica Club is good enough to bottle and sell by itself.

Besides, everyday Utica Club makes the grade with the toughest testers we know of. Us.

If you don't prefer our beer to the others, we fail.

Penn Central Reports Some Very Big Losses

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Trustees of the Penn Central Transportation Co. have reported a net loss of $172,194,651 for the first 10 months of 1975, more than $52 million over the amount lost during the same period of 1974.

The trustees said Monday the net losses include a credit of $107.5 million in federal grants received this year, and $9.8 million received during 1974, under the Regional Rail Reorganization Act (RRRA).

These funds, the trustees said, were required to continue railroad operations. The net loss for the 10-month 1974 period was $120,393,683, according to the trustees financial statement.

Penn Central's losses before federal grants were $279,694,651 for the 10-month period this year and $130,187,525 for the 1974 period.

Not included in the trustee's financial report was an additional $20 million from RRRA which was received earlier this year and placed in escrow at the direction of the Federal Railroad Administration to be available for purposes designed by FRA.

Penn Central also received $96.9 million under the RRRA

for program maintenance costs, but under Interstate Commerce Commission accounting instructions these funds are not included in the statement either as revenues or expenses. The trustees said the railroad actually applied $87.1 million of this amount to program maintenance funded under the RRRA through October, 1975.

Welch's Remains Come Home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of Richard S. Welch, who was CIA station chief in Greece before he was murdered two days before Christmas, was returned to the United States for burial today and was accorded full military honors.

Top administration and White House officials as well as a military honor guard were on hand when the C141 Air Force cargo plane bearing Welch's body touched down about dawn at Andrews AFB, Md., outside Washington.

President Ford has authorized Welch to be buried at Arlington National Cemetery. The funeral and interment were scheduled for Friday.

It was a rare procedure for a CIA agent. Usually, the death of a CIA agent does not attract wide public notice.

Welch, 46, was shot outside his home in front of his wife, Kiki, as they were returning from a Christmas party given by the U.S. ambassador in Athens Dec. 23. The assailants escaped.

The Greek government Monday offered cash rewards ranging from $30,000 to $180,000 for information leading to the discovery of the killers.

Presidential counsel Philip Buchen, Assistant Secretary of State Arthur Hartman and Welch's first wife and their daughter were at Andrews when the plane landed. Welch's oldest son, Marine Corps 2nd Lt. Patrick T.

Welch, escorted the flag-draped casket on the flight from Athens.

An eight man honor guard carried the flag-draped, aluminum casket from the plane and placed it inside a hearse for the trip to a downtown Washington funeral home.

Welch's widow is ill in a Naples, Italy hospital. A State Department spokesman said if Mrs. Welch was well enough she would return to Washington Wednesday.

Welch was gunned down after he was identified as a CIA agent by an English-language newspaper in Athens.

Hearings On Gas

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Public Service Commission today scheduled hearings on a $29.3 million, or 11.3 per cent, natural gas rate increase proposed by the National Fuel Gas Distribution Corp.

Commission examiner Lawrence A. Gollomp will conduct the hearings Jan. 21 in Jamestown and Jan. 22 in Buffalo.

National asked for approval to increase all charges by a uniform amount of 2.08 cents per 100 cubic feet. However, the commission noted that such a uniform boost would "continue the rate tilt ... during times of serious gas supply shortages."

The commission suggested that "declining block rates may no longer be a suitable means of recovering revenue requirements. Serious consideration should be given to the establishment of flat rates for all consumption in excess of the minimum allowance."

National serves about 466,000 customers in all or parts of 11 western counties.

Idea Is Melting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — That new ice age which some experts have predicted may not be developing after all, according to two government environmentalists.

Donald Wiesnet and Michael Matson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration reported Monday snow and ice cover in the United States and Canada has not changed significantly in the past nine years.

Their findings were based on satellite pictures of snow and ice in the northern hemisphere since 1966.

Extension Refused

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Appellate Division of state Supreme Court has refused to push back the deadline for holders of short-term city notes to swap them for long-term bonds of the Municipal Assistance Corp.

From Memory

James Shock, 21, of St. Clair Shores, Mich., puts the finishing touches on his snow statue of Abraham Lincoln. Shock, a former commercial artist now employed by Chrysler, was visiting at the home of his in-laws when he decided to make a snowman. It ended up as a sculpture of Lincoln. A relative says Shock made the sculpture without reference—using only his memory of Lincoln's appearance. (UPI)

Arms Aid Affect Readiness of U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arms shipments to Vietnam and Israel between 1972 and 1974 created shortages in the military arsenal of the United States that are still being felt, according to a classified government audit.

A General Accounting Office audit on the effect of some $8.5 billion in U.S. weapons shipments to the two countries concluded Monday that the arms aid "adversely affected overall U.S. readiness."

It said that "Actions are currently underway to try to alleviate many of these shortages," but added that "for such items as tanks, production capability is limited ... Thus, inventories for several important items will remain depleted for a long time."

The details of the classified audit was disclosed by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, but a declassified summary of the report was released by the GAO.

The report found that: —Because of large quantities of tanks and armored personnel carriers shipped to Vietnam and Israel, the Army as of June 30, 1974 had a shortage of 4,943 tanks and 1,822 APCs.

—The Army withdrew 368 M60 tanks from equipment maintained for emergencies in Europe as well as 500 APCs. —"On-hand, available stocks" were depleted by the Air Force to supply Israel, leaving it "far short of the computed war reserve requirements in several instances."

—During the 1973 Middle East War, 400 air-to-ground missiles were withdrawn from stocks and sent to Israel, amounting to 5 per cent of the missiles on hand.

Survivor Charged

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — W.T. Zeigler was the only survivor of Christmas Eve shootings that killed his wife, in-laws and a customer at his furniture store. Today, he faced charges of murdering all four.

Police said statements by two witnesses and "a preponderance of physical evidence" led Monday to the arrest of Zeigler, himself wounded in the stomach.

Zeigler's attorney, Ralph Hadley, said following the arrest, "I'm probably as surprised as my client is."

Zeigler was transferred from West Orange Memorial Hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment, to Florida Hospital in Orlando, an Or-

Julie, David In China

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua met today with visiting Julie Nixon Eisenhower, daughter of former President Richard M. Nixon, and her husband David Eisenhower in Peking, the New China News Agency said.

The Eisenhowers arrived in China Monday. Their trip was arranged in 1972 when Nixon visited China.

No details of the meeting between the Eisenhowers and the Chinese foreign minister were given.

If you've ever been stumped about finding a good mechanic, here's the book for you.

There are lots of them around, but until now you couldn't tell a good mechanic just by looking.

Now you can. Just by looking in a new national directory that tells you exactly where to find a skilled mechanic. Here in this area, or anywhere in your travels.

That's because the key organizations concerned with repairing automobiles joined to form the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (NIASE). And the result is a first-time directory titled "Where to Find Certified Mechanics for Your Car." In it you'll find a list of new-car dealerships, service stations and repair garages employing mechanics whose skills have been certified by the Institute. These are expert mechanics. They've proven it by passing tough tests developed and administered by the Educational Testing Service — the same people who conduct college entrance exams.

The new directory is 170 pages, will fit in your glove compartment and costs $1.95. To get a copy, send a check with your name and address to:

National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence 1825 K Street, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20006

It's a sure way for you to find a good mechanic when you need one.

This shoulder patch is the sign of a highly skilled mechanic certified by the NIASE. Look for it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) As the day wears on, you tend to become a bit more serious. Let yourself go if you can, or you could spoil the good times of those around you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Conclude your business before early afternoon. By then you'll be in a more festive mood and won't be worried about tying up loose ends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're going out this evening and plan to share expenses, have a clear advance understanding as to who pays for what.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be too opinionated this evening. Be prepared to make concessions, especially to your mate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The way a situation works out today may stick with you some last-minute chores. Plan ahead. You can handle things and still have fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Go where the bright lights are tonight, but avoid crowds. You'll be better off with a small group of friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll have a better time with pals at home tonight. If you must go out, make it an early night and then bring the gang home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If there's someone older you'd like to visit to wish "Happy New Year," make sure you do it before you get caught up in the swirl of activities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't feel that a high price tag guarantees you'll excel in the pursuit of pleasure tonight. You'll just flatten the wallet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You tend to get peppier as the day wears on. Don't alter or cancel tonight's plans just because the early part of the day has a few lumps in it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The novelty of the funny hats, the confetti and the noisemakers will soon wear off tonight. Celebrate quietly with the one you love.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) By late afternoon you'll want to take a brief respite and let your hair down. No reason why you shouldn't.

New ambitions will be awakened in you this coming year. Begin now by laying firm foundations that could advance your work or career.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D

ASHAMED: (Q.) I used to go out with Donald. I really liked him a lot. Last week he called and asked me to meet him, I said yes, but now I regret it all. He tried to get something off me, and, without thinking, I let him. Now I'm ashamed of myself. I can't face him. I avoid him, and when I can't do that I ignore him. Is this natural?—Damaged in Pennsylvania.

(A.) It is quite natural to feel ashamed and guilty when we do what we know or think is wrong. If you want to remain friendly with Donald, tell him so, but tell him also that what you did was wrong and that you are ashamed of it and do not plan to do it again. That will make you feel better. And always think first—never do anything that you do not feel right about.

CLOSENESS: (Q.) I am afraid to get close to a guy. I really like Jonathan but am almost scared to touch him. I am 13. What is the matter with me?—Touchy in Oklahoma (A.) There is nothing the matter with you. You are simply not ready for closeness. Lots of girls aren't ready until they are several years older than you are now. Do not fret about it. You can like Jonathan without his even holding your hand. At 13 it's a good idea not to be too close. In time you will change your feelings and you won't mind being close to a boy.

Reviewing the Blue Laws . . .

The following is the first in a series of three reports on the blue law situation in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York State's "blue law" concerning Sunday sales has been violated so often it would be more apt to call it the "Black and Blue" law.

Like hay fever, however, breaking the blue law is mostly a seasonal malady — just as the sneezing season comes when the pollen count is high in early autumn, the "open-on-Sunday" season comes when wallets are high the month before Christmas.

Every year in various parts of the state there are concerted efforts by one district attorney or another to crack down on violations of the Blue law. By and large, the efforts are greeted with yawns by other law enforcement officials and the merchants halled into court for alleged violations.

The pressure starts just before Thanksgiving, when the stores that have decided on Sunday sales announce their plans. It ends the Sunday after Christmas, when the Sunday sales "sales" are held.

After that, the Blue law is packed away for another year somewhat like putting away the Christmas tree stand. Unlike the stand, however, the law, Section Nine of New York State's General Business Law, can always be found again.

Usually, it can be found clutched in the hand of a legislator who has just devised the "perfect solution." At last count, at least a billion "perfect solutions" had been introduced to correct the law whose roots go 300 years deep.

In the past five years, three such "perfect solutions" have been passed by the lawmakers, only to be vetoed by former governors Nelson Rockefeller and Malcolm Wilson. They rejected them mostly on the ground that the "perfect solution" was just as unworkable as the present statute.

The Court of Appeals has upheld the constitutionality of the Blue law on various occasions but the state's highest court has indicated rather clearly in recent years it is getting a little tired of dealing with the statute and has hinted broadly that the legislature should get around to changing it.

Last July, for example, the court overturned the conviction of a violator on the ground that the law was enforced so sporadically that the conviction represented "selective" prosecution.

Three of the judges voted to throw the law out entirely but four upheld its validity.

The law itself bans "all manner of public selling or offering for sale any property upon Sunday ... except" — and there is a long list of exceptions.

For instance, meals can be sold, caterers can serve meals, tobacco, bread, milk, eggs, ice, soda-water, fruit and flowers can be sold.

You can sell a cemetery monument, gasoline, oil, tires, drugs, medicine, and surgical instruments.

Between certain hours it's OK to sell and deliver prepared food — "elsewhere than in cities and villages having a population of 40,000 or more" which would indicate people in bigger cities don't get hungry.

Fishing tackle can be sold — but no rifles. You can sell beer, but no bottle liquor.

Incidentally, don't try to sell uncooked food — that's a violation punishable by a fine of $10. The minimal fine, incidentally, is why most businesses that do violate the law merely shrug when they are hauled into court.

Souvenirs can be sold, leading to some interesting items listed as souvenirs. Several years ago a man bought a "souvenir" in an Albany area store one Sunday and argued that his purchase — a power lawn mower — was certainly "memorable." There was a foot of snow on the ground.

Most district attorneys in the state prefer not to get involved. Because the law is on the books, most don't want to flatly say they won't enforce it. But most privately will admit that local law enforcement agencies have enough to do without seeing to it that sales on Sunday fall within the allowable limitations.

Many law enforcement officials would like to see a local option plan put into effect. That way, they say, a community could decide for itself if it wanted stores open on Sunday. Stores in communities opting against Sunday sales would be easy to spot and easy to close.

Said one legislator recently, "the Blue law is commercially convenient and it's like prohibition, not too many people really want it enforced."

'Limbs Strewn Everywhere'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A bomb which police said packed the punch of 20 to 25 sticks of dynamite exploded in a TWA baggage terminal at LaGuardia Airport Monday night, killing 11 persons and injuring about 75 others.

Human limbs were scattered across the terminal area and a UPI reporter who was waiting for a flight said she saw a "human head—just a head—on a window ledge."

Police said the powerful bomb was placed in a coin-operated locker close to the area where passengers collect baggage.

The FBI said bomb threats were telephoned to at least seven airports across the nation after the New York blast, but no more bombs were found.

An anonymous male caller told UPI in New York the explosion was carried out by the Palestine Liberation Organization. But a spokesman for the PLO at the United Nations denied any connection with the blast and condemned "the dastardly act against the innocent people at LaGuardia."

The New York airport was closed today. Hundreds of flights during the busy holiday travel season were diverted to Kennedy and Newark airports.

A Federal Aviation Administration official said that during normal hours a flight lands every two minutes at LaGuardia, and once a minute during rush hours.

"Usually a bomber picks a specific target for a specific reason," said one New York City police detective. "But this was just a senseless attack on innocent people."

Police said nine of the dead—five men and four women—were killed instantly, one was declared dead on arrival at a hospital and another died in surgery.

In Washington, National Airport was closed for two hours Monday because of a bomb threat. Other bomb threats were telephoned to airports in Chicago, Los Angeles, had come to New York for a round-the-world trip with a friend; Ronald Presslaff, 32, a drug store manager from Long Beach, N.Y.; Frank Muscareo, 48, of Bayshore, N.Y.; and Bynum Patterson, 37, of Stamford, Conn.

Officials said several of the injured suffered severed limbs from flying slabs of jagged plate glass blown out of the windows of the modern steel-and-glass airport.

The Rev. Thomas Brady, Roman Catholic chaplain of the fire department, likened the scene to a June 24 Eastern Air Lines crash at Kennedy Airport that killed 113 persons.

"They're all badly battered," Brady said. "The place is a shambles. It's just like the Kennedy crash—limbs strewn everywhere."

H. Patrick Callaghan had just arrived from Indianapolis aboard a TWA flight for his first visit to New York and was waiting for a limousine to pick him up.

"If it had happened 15 minutes before, there would have been a full plane of people waiting for their luggage," he said while awaiting treatment for cuts. "Most of them (the people) had cleared out and there were just us waiting for the limousine."

A PLO spokesman in Beirut said the bomb appeared to be an attempt to embarrass the PLO prior to its participation in the U.N. Security Council Middle East debate beginning in two weeks. He said efforts to link the PLO to the bombing were an "effort to harm the struggle of our people... at the international level, particularly at the United Nations and at the Security Council."

"It can hardly be coincidence that it occurred before the Security Council meeting on Jan. 12 to discuss the Palestine question."

New York City Police Chief Thomas Mitchellson said, "Two people were seen running from the scene shortly before the explosion." He declined to elaborate or to describe the two.

Phoenix, Philadelphia, the Baltimore-Washington International Airport at Glen Burnie, Md., and Norfolk, Va. The airports were searched but no more bombs were found.

The LaGuardia blast blew a 10-to-15-foot hole through the ceiling of the downstairs baggage area. The ceiling was made of six to eight inches of reinforced concrete and steel. People were killed and injured as far as 200 feet from the explosion.

Police said the bomb—equivalent to 20 to 25 sticks of dynamite—had been placed in a locker between two baggage carousels on the lower level of the terminal.

By midmorning today, only four of the dead had been identified. They were Edythe Bull, 72, of Brevard, N.C., who

Assessment Procedures Dominate City Hearing

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

The city's assessment procedures, which have contributed as much as anything to a projected 27 per cent increase in property taxes next year, dominated discussion at Mayor Francis R. Koenig's budget hearing Monday night.

Total assessed value of city property shows a staggering $2.9 million decline for 1976, almost exclusively the result of certiorari proceedings filed against the city by property owners who felt they were being overtaxed and overassessed. Without exception, the courts have agreed.

One suggestion repeated several times Monday night as a possible remedy to continued litigation: expand the city assessor's office so that it has the time and manpower to fairly and accurately assess and reassess city properties.

Bernard Singer of Pearl Street, citing a slight increase in proposed budget for the assessor's office in 1976 (up $50 to $21,515), said the city would do well to "spend a little more money for better service."

Harry M. Thayer of Crown Street said the assessments on many of the 9,000 properties in the city "should be updated, but they're not because we only have one assessor." Pointing out that the workload is too much for the assessor's staff to handle adequately, he suggested that the savings would far outweigh the costs of additional manpower for that office.

Walter Donnoruma of Franklin Street, representing WHITA, called for a "complete re-evaluation" of city assessments. He said that "serious inequities" in assessments have been reflected in recent certiorari judgments.

Referring to the city's string of certiorari setbacks, John Machione of Janet Street commented, "When you lose 20 or 25 straight, you get some new ballplayers." He didn't specify whether he thought changes should be made in the assessor's office or in the legal personnel that represented the city in court.

Following the hearing, Koenig was asked by reporters whether he thought those suggestions had merit. He indicated a belief that the assessor's office is not understaffed, but held off on specific recommendations until he can study a report submitted to him recently by a special committee he appointed to investigate the city's assessment problems. He said that report will be made public either today or Wednesday. There is some thought that the committee will recommend complete reassessment of the city.

In a related matter, Alderman Brian Smith (R-Third Ward) said the city should investigate the feasibility of hiring a full time corporation counsel. "Many of these certiorari cases are farmed out," said Smith. "There doesn't seem to be much interest on the part of the legal profession in representing the city in court. I don't think we're getting the best representation we can."

Only eight persons spoke at Monday's hearing, and four of those were connected in some way to city government. Although there were few specific proposals offered for budget cutbacks, some general suggestions were aired:

- Implement a water-sewer tax.
- Reduce manpower in the paid fire forces.
- Consolidate the water department into the Department of Public Works.
- Outlaw long-term borrowing.
- Award city insurance policies to the lowest competitive bidder.
- Utilize welfare recipients for public works projects, such as snow removal around fire hydrants and storm sewers.
- Utilize the services of qualified engineers currently employed by the city, rather than hiring consultants to plan and implement certain projects.

One particular aspect of the budget that several people surprisingly disagreed with was the mayor's imposition of a salary freeze in order to hold spending in line in 1976. Both Machione and Jonathan Clark of Highland Avenue suggested that the number of city employees be reduced, but that those left be paid "a decent salary." In addition, Donnoruma suggested higher wages for the city treasurer (who will receive $11,905 in 1976) and the city judge ($9,495).

Reacting to some criticisms leveled at city government during the hearing, Deputy City Clerk Rose Hogan maintained that city services are the best that can be offered, and that the budget reflects conservative and responsible spending attitudes without jeopardizing services.

Euell Gibbons Dead at 64

SUNBURY, Pa. — Euell Gibbons, nationally known naturalist and author, died Monday night at the age of 64 in a remote rural area which provided the backdrop for much of his writings on natural foods.

Gibbons, of Beavertown in central Pennsylvania, was dead on arrival at Sunbury Community Hospital.

Gibbons had written seven books on edible wildlife. His most famous books were "Stalking the Good Life," and "Stalking Far Away Places."

He also appeared on national television advertisements for a breakfast cereal.

Rules Against Rozelle Rule

MINNEAPOLIS — U.S. District Court Judge Earl Larson ruled today that the National Football League's Rozelle Rule violates federal antitrust laws.

The judge ruled five months after the end of a 55-day trial in which the NFL Players Association challenged the rule.

The rule is called the option/compensation clause by the NFL and the "Rozelle ransom rule" by the players. It requires that a team losing a player who has played out his option receive compensation from the club signing the player.

Death Watch at Mine

CHASNALA COLLIERY, India — Pumps supplied by foreign countries were rushed to India today to help drain millions of gallons of water from a coal pit where relatives stand a death watch for hundreds of trapped miners.

Government officials held out almost no hope for any of the more than 350 men 1,000 feet below the surface Saturday in India's worst mine tragedy. But they pledged to continue pumping as long as there was the slightest chance.

India radio announced Monday the United States, France and Switzerland were flying in modern pumps capable of draining 2,500 gallons of water per minute in response to an urgent plea for help by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Hef Cleared on Drugs

CHICAGO — Drug peddling is not among the enterprises of Playboy Magazine magnate Hugh Hefner and his empire, according to federal investigators.

The government has investigated allegations that Hefner and his organization had been distributing cocaine at his Chicago and Los Angeles Playboy mansions. The investigation started after Hefner's former social secretary was convicted with her boyfriend and another man in a cocaine distribution conspiracy.

Higher Postage Rates

WASHINGTON — Make sure you get those tardy Christmas cards, thank you notes and holiday packages to the post office before closing today or you'll be among the first to suffer New Year's greetings from the Postal Service higher postage rates.

The higher rates apply to all mail, including a three-cent increase for first-class letters to 13 cents an ounce. They go into effect at 12:01 a.m. local time Wednesday, representing 1975's last burst of inflation.

The increases average 26 per cent for all mail, but first class pumps the highest — 50 per cent.

Plea Bargaining Out for '76

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

The no plea bargaining policy of the Ulster County District Attorney's office which was instituted last January will be continued in 1976, according to District Attorney Francis J. Vogt.

The elimination of plea bargaining—a move apparently unprecedented in New York State—was made with respect to all felony indictments handed up after Jan. 1, 1975. The policy has proven "very successful" during its first year, Vogt told the Freeman.

"From a statistical standpoint, we have disposed of slightly more cases during the 1975 calendar year when we did not engage in plea bargain," Vogt said, noting that approximately 105 felony cases were disposed of last year compared with 110 this year.

"What's remarkable is that we came that close to last year's figure," the D.A. commented.

When Vogt's new policy was first announced last January, there was considerable concern that a huge backlog in court cases would result because alleged criminals would no longer be pleading guilty to reduced charges, but would insist on going to trial.

There is a backlog of some 100 pending cases going into 1976, but that figure is not considered out of the ordinary.

In an interview last week concerning his request that an additional judge be assigned to Ulster County during the first few months of 1976 to help clear up the pending criminal cases, County Judge Raymond J. Mino said the policy of the D.A.'s office has had no major effect on the backlog.

The number of criminal trials going to verdict in Ulster County did increase significantly in 1975, from four the previous year to 21, but the impact of the increased number of trials was softened by the assignment of extra judges to the county to help with the trial work.

The assignment of extra judges to help with the workload will be necessary again in 1976, according to Vogt. "We are going to continue it (the elimination of plea bargaining) assuming we continue to get the cooperation of the judiciary, as we did this year," he said.

Vogt added, however, that he is "still not satisfied" with the number of cases being disposed of. He said his office is ready to go to trial on many of the pending cases. "It seems to me that with the decrease in civil work occasioned by no fault insurance, this should free up some judges for criminal work," he suggested.

Of the 21 trials which went to verdict this year, 17 resulted in convictions, with a majority of the defendants found guilty as charged, and four resulted in hung juries, Vogt said. Two of the hung jury cases later resulted in guilty pleas to indictments, one has been dismissed, and one is still pending. Vogt noted that while only four cases went to verdict last year, more than four trials were begun, but many came to premature conclusions when defendants pleaded guilty to reduced charges.

About 25 of the felony cases disposed of this year were done so as the result of guilty pleas to prosecutor's informations. In such cases, the defendant waives indictment and pleads guilty to the charge laid out in the prosecutor's information.

Explaining that all prosecutor's informations are reviewed by himself or First Assistant D.A. Michael Kavanagh to make sure the plea is an accurate representation of what occurred and that adequate scope for punishment is provided, Vogt said such action has saved "a great deal of time and expense" as well as helping reduce the congestion in the court calendar.

Computer Bond Favored

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Legislature in a brief year-end session Monday voted an $87,200 bond issue to upgrade the county's computer to handle additional tax information.

The five-year bond issue will finance purchase from IBM of a "core upgrade" that will enable the existing computer to handle information submitted by the various towns under the new centralized tax record keeping system, which provides two-way submission and issuance of tax information with the town assessors.

By a 19-7 vote with one abstention, the legislators defeated a resolution put up by outgoing Legislator Lewis C. Kirschner (D-6th Dist.) that would have put Ulster County's insurance up for bids. Kirschner said the present system of awarding insurance without competitive bidding prevents many reputable local insurance agencies from competing for the county's business.

Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (D-City), serving his last session as minority leader, said he had favored the measure at first "but I have had some serious misgivings about it." Several legislators said a firm that did not have a claims office in Ulster County might win the bid, but Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6) said an Ulster County claims office could be made a requirement if the measure was adopted.

Legislature Chairman Peter

J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) in opposing the measure, noted that none of the major insurance carriers has an office in the county and said the City of Kingston "feels as we do" about awarding insurance contracts without competitive bidding.

Legislator Glenn A. DeBrosky (R-Dist. 6) serving at his last meeting, had better luck with a proposal calling for a study of medical assistance payments to see if loopholes could be closed by having recipients sign for services received.

Two resolutions sponsored by Democrats went down by 16-11 party line votes. One, sponsored by John H. Dwyer (D-City) would have directed the county treasurer to prepare quarterly financial reports for legislators. The other, sponsored by Kirschner, would have set up a study on the possible creation of "satellite" Motor Vehicle Department offices at various locations throughout the county on either a full-time or part-time basis.

Another outgoing legislator, Eugene B. Houck (D-Dist. 7) continued his lone hand role to the end, casting the only negative votes on proposals to pay expenses for Jack Reynolds, tax agency director, to an assessment conference in Syracuse and for Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer to a conference on legislative and fiscal programs in Rochester.

'Fleece Award' To Air Force

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the Air Force is running a $66 million fleet of 23 jets to transport government officials at a cost to taxpayers of more than $6 million a year.

Proxmire, who each month selects what he believes to be the most wasteful federal program, said the Air Force's "private airline for government bigshots" gets his "fleece of the year" award.

The Senator said the planes are kept on call 24 hours a day and are equipped to carry as many as 50 passengers, with small executive jets carrying up to five.

He said the planes are staffed with military aides who serve food and drinks and that some of the planes have sleeping facilities.

The fleet cost taxpayers $66.7 million to purchase. Operational and maintenance costs may run up to $2,206 an hour for the largest planes.

Proxmire said that in the first 10 months of this year the Air Force made 975 flights carrying government officials to various destinations, with 87 per cent of the flights taken by ranking defense officials or those requesting Defense Department flights.

The most frequent single user of the VIP service was Treasury Secretary William Simon, who took 58 flights in the first 10 months of this year at a cost to the government of $328,794.10.

Court Ruling on Teachers

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—A court will decide if a teachers' union on Long Island acted improperly when it subpoenaed 87 teachers to appear on the same day for a hearing.

The Court of Appeals Monday upheld, with a few modifications, an Appellate Division ruling allowing the Farmingdale Union Free School District to take the dispute to court.

The tangled controversy began in March 1972 when a number of teachers in the district missed two straight days of classes.

The state's Public Employment Relations Board charged the Farmingdale Classroom Teachers Association with violating the state's so-called Taylor Law, which forbids strikes by public employees.

Discharge

KINGSTON
William Dempewolf, 31, of Spring Lake Trailer Park was sentenced to an unconditional discharge in Ulster County Court on Monday.

Dempewolf, who was sentenced by County Judge Raymond J. Mino, had previously pleaded guilty to third degree grand larceny in connection with an alleged theft of merchandise from Caldor's, Town of Ulster, in September, 1974.

The unconditional discharge was recommended by the probation department. Dempewolf was represented by attorney Francis Martocci.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Consumer Product Safety Commission says there isn't enough evidence yet to prove fluorocarbon gases are depleting the atmosphere's vital ozone layer.

The commission refused, on a 3-to-2 vote Monday, to grant the city of Los Angeles' request for an across-the-board ban on use of fluorocarbons as propellants in sprays and as coolants in air conditioners and refrigerators.

The city said studies show fluorocarbons are eating away the stratosphere's ozone layer, which filters out the sun's ultraviolet rays. Scientists believe erosion of the ozone layer could lead to increased skin cancer, it noted.

Commissioner R. David Pittle, one of the dissenters, agreed there was "ample" evidence for the agency immediately to institute a ban.

Parents Held as Hostages

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI)—Michael P. Borria, 19, using three weapons and at least 20 rounds of ammunition, held his parents hostage in their home early today and fired at police for over two hours before surrendering.

"He used 20 to 30 rounds of ammunition, a 12 gauge shotgun and two rifles," a police spokesman said. "Most of the shots were aimed at police."

There were no injuries.

Dispute Reaches State

ALBANY
The continuing dispute between the City of Kingston and its firemen—and the ongoing dispute between the city and its police has now reached the state level.

The New York State Public Employment Relations Board in Albany has announced the appointment of a fact finder in both conflicts.

The same fact finder has been assigned to delve into both arguments, says a spokesman for the Public Employment Relations Board. He is Seth Towse of Loudonville, who has been appointed to the dispute between the City of Kingston and Kingston Patrolmen's Association. Towse has also been assigned to the dispute between the City of Kingston and Kingston Professional Fire Fighters, Local 461.

New Year's Open House

KINGSTON
Mayor and Mrs. Francis R. Koenig have extended an invitation to the public to visit with them on New Year's Day at their home at 51 Fairview Avenue.

The open house, a tradition with the Koenig family, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. It follows the noon inauguration ceremony of the mayor at City Hall and an organizational meeting of the Common Council.

Meeting Reset
The Town of Marlborough's organizational meeting for its town board 1976, originally scheduled for Friday at 7 p.m., has been rescheduled for Friday at 5 p.m. because of a prior commitment on the part of one of the board members. The meeting will be held at the town hall in Stone Ridge.

For Period Ending 7 a.m., EST Wednesday
Tonight will find snow covering most of the northern and central Plains regions while rain develops along the east Gulf coast and vicinity. Elsewhere, generally fair weather should prevail. Minimum temperatures include: (approx. # Aims for Pa., Hits Greene Co.

Police Beat

TOWN OF LEXINGTON
A young student pilot who had misplotted his course from Danbury, Conn. to Pennsylvania, walked away uninjured Monday afternoon after his plane ran out of gas and crash landed in a shallow stream in this mountainous Greene County township.

Leeds State Police said the pilot, Dennis Morgan, 18, of Clerks Summit, Pa. climbed from the plane that landed upright in West Kill Creek after striking several trees and walked to a nearby house to summon troopers.

Police said Morgan had taken off alone from Danbury Airport en route to Pennsylvania, but miscalculated his course by 40 degrees.

At about 2:30 p.m., the single-engine Cessna Morgan was flying ran out of gas over Greene County. The plane went down, coming to rest in shallow water about 100 yards west of Route 42.

Damage to the plane was estimated at about $12,000.

Escape Fire

The Douglas Tyan family of Dussol Road, Mt. Marion narrowly escaped from their burning home, which was destroyed by fire early today.

The Mt. Marion fire company was summoned to the Tyan home shortly before 2:30 a.m., and found the two-story stone residence fully involved in flame. Fire Chief James Kallos said Tyan told him that he, his wife and their child had gotten out of the house only moments earlier. There were no injuries.

Fire officials said Tyan told them the blaze apparently started in the kitchen area of the home.

Some 75 firemen from the Mt. Marion, Glasco, Ruby and Centerville fire departments battled the raging fire for more than four hours.

Crash Charges

Leeds State Police on Monday charged Victor Goff, 56, of Acra with second degree manslaughter and first degree assault in connection with a fatal crash in the Town of Cocksackie on Thanksgiving.

Police said the driver of the car which was involved in the collision with the Goff vehicle subsequently died at Albany Medical Center Hospital. She was identified as Ruth Jurges, 69, of Cairo.

Bomb Scare

A bomb scare and a robbery threat were received a few minutes apart at the Mid-Hudson Citibank office in the Ulster Shopping Plaza Monday afternoon, according to Ulster County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the bomb threat was received at 3:11 p.m. At 3:17 p.m. a second call was received at the bank, with the male caller—apparently the same one who made the first call—warning that the bank would be robbed.

The bank was closed for the day and deputies searched for a bomb, but found none.

Community Calendar in Ulster

including youth scholarship and sports and the blind and hearing handicapped. Exploring the possibilities are (l-r): Joe Keller, Allen Stauble, Roy Olsen and Bill Glaser.

Jobless Rate Shows Increase

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Boosted by an increase in the number of long-term unemployed, the state's unemployment rate climbed to 10.2 per cent in November, according to the state Labor Department.

Buffalo had the highest jobless rate of any major industrial area, with 12.8 per cent of the work force out of a job.

New York City and Albany-Schenectady-Troy were the only two major areas where unemployment rolls shrank, the department said.

The state's jobless rate was 10.1 per cent in October, the department said. It was 10.2 per cent in September, 10.3 per cent in August and 10.7 per cent in July. In November 1974, the jobless rolls were at 6.7 per cent.

There were 780,700 unemployed persons in the state last month, Commissioner Louis L. Levine said, up 11,300 from October and 269,700 more than in November 1974.

Seasonal hiring by local education agencies and department stores created 14,200 non-manufacturing jobs, the department said, but losses in all other non-manufacturing areas offset this.

The state's hiring freeze and local governments' fiscal cutbacks helped to keep the seasonal increase in government hiring below normal levels, Levine added.

In addition, the state lost

6,300 manufacturing jobs in November through seasonal losses in the apparel, food and other soft-goods industries, he said.

Although there were 114,600 less manufacturing jobs last month than one year earlier, the department noted, the rate of job losses was shrinking.

Statewide, there were 6,853,200 employed persons in November, up 11,800 from October. Employment was down 225,700 one year earlier.

Following are unemployment figures for the state's major industrial areas:

Albany-Schenectady-Troy — 25,500 or 7.3 per cent, compared with 26,000 or 7.4 per cent in October and 20,000 or 5.7 per cent in November 1974.

Binghamton — 10,100 or 7.9 per cent, compared with 8,900 or 7.1 per cent in October and 7,000 or 5.5 per cent in November 1974.

Buffalo — 68,600 or 12.8 per cent, compared with 66,200 or 12.4 per cent in October and 45,600 or 8.6 per cent in November 1974.

Elmira — 4,000 or 9.5 per cent, compared with 3,900 or 9.2 per cent in October and 3,400 or 7.9 per cent in November 1974.

Poughkeepsie — 5,900 or 6.0 per cent, compared with 5,800 or 5.9 per cent in October and 4,000 or 4.1 per cent in November 1974.

Greater Rochester — 35,900 or 7.8 per cent, compared with 35,000 or 7.7 per cent in October and 19,300 or 4.2 per cent in November 1974.

Syracuse — 26,700 or 9.3 per cent, compared with 25,800 or 9.1 per cent in October and 17,700 or 6.1 per cent in November 1974.

Utica — 13,500 or 10.6 per cent, compared with 12,800 or 9.9 per cent in October and 9,400 or 7.3 per cent in November 1974.

New York Combined Area — 502,200 or 10.6 per cent, compared with 502,400 or 10.7 per cent in October and 317,500 or 6.8 per cent in November 1974.

New York City — 365,000 or 11.5 per cent, compared with 367,500 or 11.7 per cent in October and 283,200 or 7.4 per cent in November 1974.

Nassau-Suffolk — 95,200 or 8.5 per cent, compared with 92,600 or 8.3 per cent in October and 57,500 or 5.2 per cent in November 1974.

Westchester — 33,200 or 9.5 per cent, compared with 33,400 or 9.6 per cent in October and 21,200 or 6.0 per cent in November 1974.

Rockland — 7,000 or 8.9 per cent, compared with 7,100 or 9.0 per cent in October and 4,500 or 5.7 per cent in November 1974.

Putnam — 1,800 or 9.4 per cent, compared with 1,800 or 9.5 per cent in October and 1,100 or 6.0 per cent in November 1974.

Sex Bias Probing Upheld

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state Court of Appeals has ruled that the New York City Commission on Human Rights has the authority to investigate an allegation of sex discrimination in the city school system.

The state's highest court Monday unanimously upheld an Appellate Division decision supporting the commission's right to probe such cases.

The Appellate Division had overturned a ruling by State Supreme Court in Manhattan that the commission did not have jurisdiction in the case.

The dispute involved a charge by a teacher at Seward Park High School that her performance was rated unsatisfactory by school officials in retaliation for an earlier complaint she had filed alleging sexual discrimination in the city's school system.

The city Board of Education sought an order barring the commission from considering the teacher's complaint. The teacher was not identified in the court papers.

The board maintained that the proper jurisdiction for such discrimination suits belonged to city and state education officials and the state Division of Human Rights.

The high court said that although "neither the commission nor the courts should invade, and only rarely assume academic oversight," in the case before it "the delicacy of the task is not sufficient to preclude inquiry."

In addition, the board claimed that human rights agencies should not become involved in the matter of teachers' ratings, which it said should be solely under its own jurisdiction.

However, Associate Judge Sol Wachtler, writing for the court, said, "If discrimination in employment is to be eliminated, discrimination in the vital rating process can hardly be ignored."

office of the special prosecutor by placing the responsibility for its functioning in the hands of (Manhattan District Attorney) Robert Morgenthau.

Morgenthau, the man named by Carey to replace Nadjari, said he would not comment on Lefkowitz' action.

The governor said he had noted Lefkowitz' desire to avoid a confrontation, and to that end, in the future he would discuss details of his program with the attorney general.

A Carey spokesman said the governor would hold a news conference to discuss the matter at the state capitol today.

In a one-sentence statement, Nadjari, who like Lefkowitz is a Republican, said he was "deeply grateful" to Lefkowitz and "the people of New York City...for their support and confidence in me and the critically important work of my office."

Last Tuesday, Carey announced his intention to fire Nadjari because, the governor said, he felt Nadjari was no longer effective in prosecuting cases of official corruption.

Nadjari Allowed Six More Months

NEW YORK (UPI) — State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz has given Special Prosecutor Maurice Nadjari six more months in office, saying his dismissal would erode public confidence in the criminal justice system.

The move, which came after Gov. Hugh L. Carey formally asked Lefkowitz over the weekend to fire Nadjari, was a surprise to most observers who expected the attorney general to accede to the governor's wishes.

However, Lefkowitz said Monday, "I believe a summary dismissal of Mr. Nadjari would seriously erode public confidence in the criminal justice system."

"Six months should be sufficient" time for the special anticorruption prosecutor to complete his investigations, said Lefkowitz, "At the end of that time, I will terminate Mr. Nadjari's appointment."

Though claiming he sought "no confrontation" with the governor, Lefkowitz said there had been mounting public concern that "the dismissal of Mr. Nadjari could serve to impede pending investigations by him of high political and public officials."

In a statement, Carey said he would incorporate the substance of Lefkowitz's recommendation into his "overall program for strengthening the

EXTERIOR VIEW WHERE BOMB CAUSED HAVOC, DEATH

They Had One Thing in Common—Shock

NEW YORK (UPI)—There was a smudge of blood on the otherwise sparkling white uniform worn by assistant head nurse Karen Walsh at Booth Memorial Hospital.

She spoke haltingly. "They all had multiple lacerations—they were in a state of physical . . . and mental . . . shock."

"They said they heard an explosion. And the next thing they knew . . . there were ambulances coming," Mrs. Walsh said.

It was a scene of bedlam at Booth Memorial. And it was the same at Elmhurst General Hospital. It was something they had trained for, something they had always feared—a disaster.

Between them, the two hospitals treated more than 50 persons injured when a bomb went off at LaGuardia Airport Monday evening. At least 11 persons were killed. Nine were taken directly from the airport to the city morgue.

One was pronounced dead on arrival at Elmhurst General in Queens and another two died in surgery.

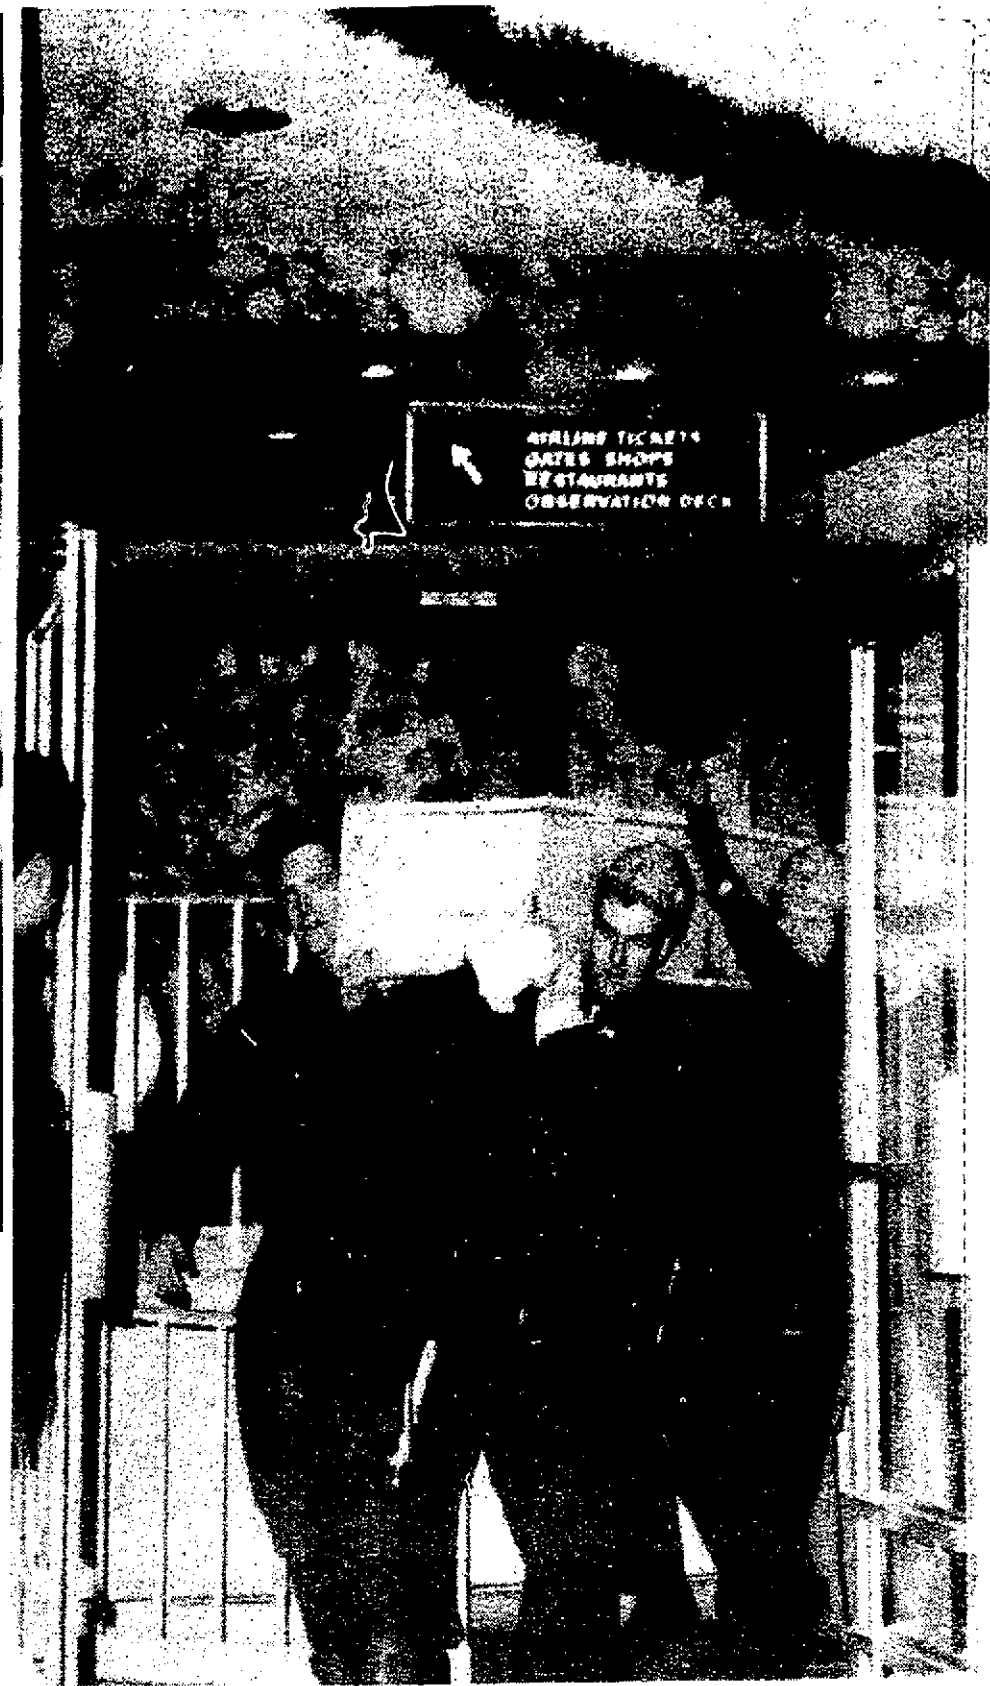

Injuries to those who survived ranged from the loss of limbs to minor cuts and bruises.

They had one thing in common—shock.

"Some were asking, 'What happened? What happened?'" According to a nursing supervisor, Mrs. Marion Saneon, at Booth Memorial.

Edward Toledo, 37, of New York, who was taken to Elmhurst General, said he was injured slightly while he was working in a baggage room loading bags for an outgoing flight.

"I saw a flash and the wall caved in and the ceiling collapsed," Toledo said. "It smelled like gunpowder."

New Soviet-Backed Angola Drive

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The Soviet-backed faction battling for supremacy in Angola plans a new military offensive to upstage African peacemaking efforts, diplomatic sources said.

A stockpile of sophisticated

Russian military equipment will be used to widen the faction's control of the former Portuguese colony, the sources said Monday.

The arms include a squadron of MIG21 fighters

recently assembled at the Marxist-held capital of Luanda, amphibious T34 tanks and mobile Russian-made surface-to-surface missiles that the sources said already have inflicted heavy losses on the two anti-Soviet groups.

The Marxist Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola is confined to its Atlantic port capital and a narrow central strip running into the resource-rich West African territory.

To the north, south and east, its 20,000-man army, bolstered by 5,000 Cubans and 400 Soviet advisers, faces the anti-Communist guerrillas of the two rival movements, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola and the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola.

The three-way civil war has been going on for months but heated up after Portugal formally pulled out of Angola Nov. 11.

According to the diplomatic sources, the new Marxist offensive is designed to preempt an emergency "peace summit" of the 46-nation Organization of African Unity scheduled for Jan. 10 at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

Western and African diplomats hold out slim hope of a reconciliation among the three groups and doubt the rival leaders will even attend the summit.

Growing black African support for a continent-wide appeal to end all foreign involvement in Angola is being encouraged by William Schaefele, U.S. assistant secretary of state for African affairs, now on an African tour, the diplomats said.

South Africa, which has troops in Angola to bolster the anti-Soviet forces, has indicated its willingness to withdraw if the Soviets and Cubans also pull out.

Ford Grieved by Bombing

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Grieved over the "senseless" bombing at LaGuardia Airport in New York, President Ford has ordered a cabinet-level investigation and requested a complete report on the tragedy as soon as possible.

The President learned of the bombing, which devastated a TWA baggage area killing and injuring some 90 persons Monday night, as he was winding up his eight-day ski vacation at this Rocky Mountain resort.

He headed back to Washington today and was to arrive at the White House early tonight.

Ford issued a statement saying, "I am deeply grieved at the loss of lives and injuries . . . It appears this senseless act involved the use of a bomb."

He instructed Transportation Secretary William Coleman and the Federal Aviation Administration to begin an immediate investigation and ordered the Justice Department and FBI to assist local law enforcement agencies.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was kept informed on the situation by telephone Monday evening.

Ford went to a farewell dinner in his honor, hosted by his chief fund-raiser in Vail, who invited 52 couples by sending political contribution pledge cards in the same mail with the invitations, but in separate envelopes.

Nessen insisted to reporters the dinner was non-political but made it clear it was a cause of some embarrassment to the White House.

The dinner was hosted by Sheika Granshammer, a former Las Vegas showgirl, restaurant owner and long-time friend of the Fords. She was described by an aide as "an over-enthusiastic" fund-raiser for the President.

The aide said Mrs. Granshammer was told by a member of the President Ford Campaign Committee not to send out the cards — with pledges of up to $1,000 — until after the dinner. The aide said "she didn't understand."

Ford's trip to Vail had been billed as a working vacation. Nessen said the President would have had trouble with the government's financing of his trip if it included a political appearance.

But the Vail vacationers who got invitations also got the message. Many attending the dinner said they had contributed to Ford's campaign, or intended to.

Boston Transfers

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston School Committee has rubber-stamped the decision of U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. to transfer South Boston High School Headmaster William Reid.

In its last meeting of the year Monday, the committee agreed on a voice vote to transfer Reid and South Boston High football coach Arthur A. Perdigao to the office of School Supt. Marion Fahey. Reid, Perdigao and other administrators at South Boston High were ordered removed from the school by Garrity, who placed it in receivership to help implement a citywide school desegregation program he has ordered.

Garrity also stripped the School Committee of most of its powers in school desegregation matters. He said the committee was "obstructing and avoiding implementation of the desegregation plan."

Removal of Reid and Perdigao has been protested by the committee and many white students and faculty members at South Boston High.

Garrity had ordered a new administration at the school because he said he found on two unannounced visits limited education in process and his desegregation order was not being implemented. Perdigao, who had been charged by black students with discrimination in coaching the football team, was the only non-administrative staff member to be ordered removed.

The Keogh Plan for the self-employed

Doctors, dentists, carpenters, plumbers, actors . . . if you are in business for yourself, you can now put aside up to 15% of your annual income — up to a maximum of $7,500 — and deduct the amount from your income tax. These retirement dollars will earn the highest interest rates allowed by law, which are also tax-free until you retire.

The I.R.A. Plan for those whose companies do not have a retirement plan. The Individual Retirement Plan will now let you defer 15% of your annual earnings up to $1500 a year — and deduct the entire contribution from your income tax while it, too, earns the highest interest rate allowed.

Act now. Both of the above plans must be established by January 1, 1976, to meet with I.R.S. regulations.

Travel Season for Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While most Americans began packing the Christmas tinsel and worrying about paying holiday bills, many of those they sent to Congress were packing for trips abroad — at Uncle Sam's expense.

The semi-annual congressional travel season is here again. Destinations range from Peking's Forbidden City to palmstudded islands in the South Pacific.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is going to Hanoi. Eleven women members of the House are headed for China. Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., is going to South America. Some senators are taking a $35,000 trip to the South Seas.

"If I had my way every congressman would go overseas to find out about what is going on there," Rep. Leo Ryan, D-Calif., said in an interview. "It is the function of the congressional branch to act on behalf of the people to check the actions of the executive branch. The executive branch flies everywhere, all the time."

Ryan, a member of the House International Relations Committee, is not taking any trips during this month-long congressional vacation. But he has been to the Middle East, Southeast Asia, most of Europe and a good share of South America.

"I tell everybody when I am going and where, and when I get back I tell them where I was and what I learned," Ryan said. "And if they want to check into the expenses and who paid for it, they can."

Not many members or committees of Congress operate that way. A few announce their trips but many more do not.

"There's a flock of trips going out of here this recess," one senior Senate staff aide says. "But if I talk about it, they'll have my neck."

Most trips ostensibly are for studying problems that fall within legislative purview.

Javits takes his trips seriously. On an 11-day trip to South America, he will meet with officials in Brazil, Peru, Panama and Venezuela.

"It's no fun to go anywhere with Javits," said a Capitol Hill staffer. "He works like hell and then he follows up when he gets back, which most of these guys don't."

Official trips are paid for by the government. Spouses who go along are supposed to pay their own way.

The State Department's Congressional Travel Office, which arranges much of the congressional travel and accommodations, declines to furnish information on the trips, citing the "wishes of Congress."

"We just do what we're told," said a State Department man. "They control our appropriations."

Two major trips for this recess have been announced:

— Eleven women members of the House, with assorted husbands and children and headed by Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., began leaving Saturday for two weeks in China. All 19 women House members were invited, but eight declined for various reasons.

— On Jan. 2, a dozen senators and top Senate staffers begin an 18-day journey to the South Pacific on a $35,000 budget. On the agenda are visits with the U.S. commander-in-chief of the Pacific in Hawaii, an investigation of possible commonwealth status for the Marianas on Saipan, briefings about the Trust Territories on Guam, and meetings with leaders of Australia and New Zealand. The senators will stop in Mexico City on the way home.

McGovern, with his wife and four aides, will visit India, Bangladesh, Pakistan and Vietnam — with stops in Lisbon, Rome and London. In Hanoi, and possibly Saigon, he will assess Vietnamese interest in repairing relations with the United States.

Democrats Find Answer Is No

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last January, Democrats swaggered into town impressed by their own numbers. At that point, nothing seemed impossible for them in the 94th Congress.

After all, hadn't President Ford warned the nation against a "veto-proof" Congress in his campaign speeches the previous fall?

And hadn't the country — in the wake of Watergate scandals — elected Democrats in landslide proportions?

Wasn't a 290-145 majority in the House and 62-38 edge in the Senate large enough for a Democratic Congress to ram through legislation over Ford's objections?

After an arduous year, Democrats have discovered the answer to all of the above is no.

House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona properly labeled the first session of the 94th Congress a "standoff," and predicted the next session would be "more political, more acrimonious" as the 1976 election nears.

The "veto-proof" Congress proved to be a myth. Ford rejected 16 bills passed by the 94th Congress and 11 times, so far, made his vetoes stick.

The three times Congress managed to override his veto came on popular measures involving federal aid to education, health services and nurse training, and the school lunch program. Congress will not act until January on the other two — the $45 billion Health, Education and Welfare appropriations bill and legislation to expand the picketing power of construction unions.

Faced with a President willing to tough it out, beset by internal disputes and held back by remnants of the old coalition between Republicans and southern conservatives, the Democrats turned out to be stronger on paper than in action.

As a result, it was a year of frustrating confrontation with the White House.

When New York City's financial plight became dire, Congress was ready to approve legislation providing federal loan guarantees. Ford said no. But the city and state started putting financial affairs in order and Ford agreed to support $2.3 billion in direct federal loans. Congress took him up on it.

Score one for Ford.

When Ford proposed extending tax cuts, he said they must be coupled with a $395 billion spending ceiling for fiscal 1977. Congress said no.

The President vetoed the first tax bill and the House sustained him. But Congress pushed through the same bill with an innocuous promise to cut spending to offset any reduction in taxes. Ford signed it.

Score it a tossup. Ford insisted energy legislation lift the ceiling on the price of domestically produced oil, while Congress demanded a rollback.

Congress finally sent him a bill which rolls back prices but lets the president decontrol them over a 40-month period. Ford signed the bill.

Score one for Congress

Pals Share Sweepstake Winnings

DIAMOND SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — At first Tom Murphy thought the telegram was a joke.

"I didn't pay one minute's attention to it," he said.

But just in case, he called his pal Frank Buhlert. They got in touch with Western Union — and it confirmed that the $5 ticket they shared was a $150,000 winner in the Irish Sweepstakes.

Murphy and Buhlert, friends for nearly half a century in this rural town of 650, had chipped in over the years to play the sweepstakes. They had never won — until Saturday.

For Murphy, 76, a retired grocer who dabbles in real estate, the triumph was especially sweet. He was born in County Kerry, Ireland, and still speaks with a lilting brogue.

Murphy is a lifelong bachelor, but for Buhlert, 62, born in Diamond Springs, the money provides what his job as a crane operator could not — security for his family.

He has no retirement benefits from his job at a lime quarry. He and his wife, Rae June, have reared four children and have eight great-grandchildren. He said he will retire as soon as the company can find someone to replace him.

"We were thrilled," said Mrs. Buhlert from her mobile home. "We finally have something for our old age."

Murphy, who bought the ticket for himself and Buhlert, went to church Sunday "to thank the Lord for his gifts and graces."

"I've gone to church all my life — every Sunday and Holy Day," he said. He added with a laugh, "I guess I should do a little extra thanking today."

Murphy, who ran the Diamond Springs General Store until retiring several years ago, said he expects to give some of his winnings "to churches and charities and invest some of it in land — if the phone ever stops ringing."

Buhlert, son of a miner from San Francisco, was virtually speechless.

"He is so excited he really can't talk," said his wife.

British Women's Lib

LONDON (UPI) — After today, you won't find any new-paper ads in Britain for night watchmen or tea ladies, thanks to a new anti sex-discrimination law.

Women outnumber men among Britain's 58 million citizens, and the 87 clauses of the new law provide them with equal pay, working conditions, job opportunities and union rights.

Under the law, persons who feel they have been discriminated against on grounds of sex can sue employers, establishments and public bodies. Violations are punishable by a maximum $800 fine.

The law, while attacking discriminatory practices, has tied the English language in knots and created a few unexpected anomalies besides.

The taxman has vanished overnight and so has the gasman, the dustman and the barmaid, all to return in a neutral — or neuter — guise.

Businessmen may no longer ask for a "smart lad" to take mail to the post office, nor advertise for a "girl Friday" office worker.

Au pair girls, however, are here to stay.

Women lost a few privileges for the gains they made.

British Rail, the state-owned rail network, will be closing its "ladies waiting rooms."

Females also have an equal chance to go into debt, now that they may take out mortgages, purchase goods on credit and buy drinks in bars that previously excluded them.

Sex discrimination still exists in public restrooms and in the underwear departments of clothing stores, and the law says women are not physically capable of being coal miners. It also does not affect church doctrine outlawing women priests.

But even royalty is not immune from some aspects of the new law.

While the Queen may never become known as the "throneperson," one member of Parliament has suggested the laws of succession favoring the male line be changed to make age the deciding factor, thus allowing Princess Anne to become second in line to the throne.

Princess Anne is fourth in line under the ancient laws of succession that give the sovereign's sons precedence over daughters.

New Marijuana Law

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Here are the do's and don'ts of the new California marijuana law that goes into effect at midnight Wednesday (Jan. 1):

—Possible felony penalties of up to 10 years in prison for simple possession will be ended.

—Under the one-ounce limit, violators will not even be arrested, providing they can identify themselves the same as they would if given a traffic ticket.

—The citation carries a maximum fine of $100, no matter how many times a person is apprehended. However, on the fourth offense within 24 months, an offender will be required to attend a drug treatment program.

—Unchanged are felony provisions against growing and selling marijuana and driving while under its influence. Marijuana laws affecting minors are not affected and juveniles will remain subject to arrest. Supplying any amount of marijuana to a minor remains a felony.

—Giving away amounts less than an ounce or transporting such quantities in a car will be subject to the citation-only fines. Repealed are prohibitions against possessing marijuana paraphernalia or being in a room where marijuana is smoked.

—The new law also carries provisions to erase criminal records for marijuana possession crimes.

—The 500,000 or more Californians with arrest records that predated the new law will be allowed immediately to petition a court for purging of the record. This can cost up to $50 plus attorney's fees.

—Persons arrested beginning Jan. 1 will have their possession convictions automatically wiped off their records after two years.

Thank You, Thank You

Residents of Kingston and the Ulster County area did it from the heart during the Freeman sponsored drive to raise funds for the burned-out City Children's Library.

Starting with a Beggar's Night on Thanksgiving Eve and ending on Christmas Eve, a total of $15,040.51 was raised and the credit belongs to those who work, live and play in Ulster County.

It's not easy to generate a fund-raising drive on such short notice. The Children's Library was burned out during the middle of November. Less than two weeks later, the appeal went out to the community and like most appeals made to our wonderful friends in the city and county, there was cooperation.

Volunteer and paid firemen joined forces on Beggar's Night. School children went out with their parents and members of the library board of trustees and staff workers put in some valuable time. As a result, more than $5,000 was raised on that night and the five-week drive was underway.

IBM swelled the jackpot with a $2,000 contribution. There were other business firms, veterans organizations, service clubs and just hard-working private citizens who kept sending their monies to the Daily Freeman.

Despite all this, the library has a long way to go. A decision has to be made whether or not to relocate or build again on the same spot. Whatever the decision, more money will be needed. The insurance on the old building is hardly enough.

The Freeman is privileged to have had a part in the initial fund-raiser. In these days of hard times and during a month when people were spending money for holiday giving, it was gratifying that they were able to give something for one of the most valuable commodities in any community—a library.

From the bottom of our hearts, the Freeman family thanks those who contributed. Those who haven't and want to, the library staff will accept donations. This drive was just the start. It will be a long time before our community will be able to have its own children's library once again.

Pulling the Claws

By Rowland Evans
and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—The coming election-year session of Congress, having tasted blood in blocking secret Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) funds to Angola, any push to outlaw all covert CIA operations in the future.

"It's a little like a mirror image of the old McCarthyism," one critical Senate Democrat told us. "This time, instead of alleged Communism, it's the CIA that destroys everything it touches and is responsible for everything that goes wrong."

The troubled new African state of Angola, posing perplexing problems that might not be remedied by clandestine CIA activity, could become the catalyst for Congress decreeing an end, across the board, of all CIA "dirty tricks" and other secret operations abroad. Given months of anti-CIA headlines resurrecting attempted assassination of foreign leaders, few politicians here are willing to risk votes back home by defending the CIA as an important, even vital tool of U.S. foreign policy.

Just before taking its one-month Christmas recess, the Senate voted by an overwhelming 54 to 22 to bar secret financing of political factions in Angola opposed to the Soviet-backed MPLA, or Popular Movement. Junior liberal Democrats such as Sen. Dick Clark of Iowa, spawned by the anti-Vietnam movement, were naturally in the vanguard. More significant were conservative Republicans—such as Sens. Robert Taft, Jr., of Ohio and William Scott of Virginia—and even Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, once the epitome of the Democratic cold warrior, opposing CIA-channeled Angolan aid.

But the real goal of these Senators may extend far beyond Angola. "A showdown on the whole issue of covert aid abroad is coming," Sen. Gale McGee of Wyoming, a rare Democrat supporting Angolan aid, told us, "and in the worst possible time, the presidential election year of 1976." If so the irony is deep.

President Ford a year ago made a major concession to rubid CIA critics on Capitol Hill signing a new law requiring notification of six congressional committees before he approves undercover CIA operations. On Angola, the administration informed not just six committees (the Appropriations, Armed Services and Foreign Relations panels in both Houses) but also the two select committees probing the CIA.

Exactly how many legislators thus were made privy to CIA's Angolan operations is unknown, but it probably exceeds 50 members—about 10 per cent of Congress.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee took special care to make available to all 17 members the private briefings on the Angolan intervention that CIA director William Colby gave last summer to Sens. John Sparkman of Alabama and Clifford Case of New Jersey, the committee's senior Democrat and Republican. Most Senators turned the offer down.

Similar lack of interest marked the CIA's briefings of other committees under the new law. At the first briefing of the seven-member Senate Armed Services subcommittee on CIA oversight, not one question, hostile or otherwise, was asked.

Accordingly, President Ford, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Colby could logically assume that having met the tightened requirements of the reporting law without congressional protest, the relatively low-level arms and financial aid planned for Angola could proceed.

An erroneous assumption. Almost overnight the hostility of anti-intervention, anti-CIA Senators became so virulent that Sen. John Tunney of California, author of the anti-aid amendment, actually started to walk out on Kissinger during a Dec. 18 closed-door meeting. The reason: Tunney thought Kissinger was about to reach a compromise, and compromise was one thing Tunney did not want.

Tunney was persuaded to stay, but the political gesture of a walkout was not lost on his fellow Senators. Running for reelection, Democrat Tunney has moved conspicuously toward the right on social-economic issues in keeping with the times. His leadership of the anti-CIA forces on Angola will balance that political shift for liberal Californians spawned on Vietnam.

Following his humiliating loss in last week's Angolan vote, President Ford is now looking to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota to bail him out. As a former Vice President, and the leading Democratic presidential prospect, Humphrey knows well enough the fearful risks in tying the hands of a President trying to compete on even terms with Moscow.

But the odds run strongly against Humphrey or anybody else in Congress bailing out Mr. Ford—or permitting U.S. competition with the Soviet Union on even terms.

Rather, the anti-CIA mood is running so strong and deep that a blanket ban on any clandestine role by the CIA seems more likely than retrieving the U.S. position in Angola.

It is precisely such a singular withdrawal from superpower responsibility that is now weakening the resolve of both Zaire and Zambia, U.S. supporters in the Angolan civil war, to risk continued opposition to Soviet-backed forces. Other nations are also watching, uneasily, as Congress systematically pulls the claws of the American eagle.

Sunday in Leningrad

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

LENINGRAD—Forget Gulag for a moment. In Russia it is also the little things. You are much better off traveling here in groups, because the Soviet state thinks macrocosmically. Twenty, thirty, a hundred people are palpable. One is a nuisance. But the trouble now was a subgroup. Twelve of us wanted to go to church on Sunday. This is not, by the way, a provocative act for a foreigner in Russia—he is free to attend church, and leave the country peacefully.

We are at the newest, largest hotel in Leningrad, a city of four million people. You would suppose that the lobby is bustling at 8:30 in the morning. It is not. You look outside the door, into the Arctic dark, and there is no taxi line. You go to the desk where the sign tells you they will call you a taxi for 30 kopecks, but there is no one there. You go to one end of the ain desk, and the lady hears you out; and then points to another woman, at the other end of the desk—she is the one who speaks English.

You go through it again. She tells you you must go to Information on B Floor. You go to Information on B Floor. There is nobody there. You return to the main desk. She tells you to talk to the lady at your own floor who keeps the room keys. You complain that she does not speak English. You are told she will understand you. You go back to Floor 5 and explain that you desire f-o-u-r taxis, counting the fingers on your hand as in This Little Piggy Went to Market, to take t-w-e-l-v-e people to church. She nods, and picks up her telephone. But it does not work. She says something in Russian which has got to be earthy. FLASH! She reaches for a key, obviously to an unoccupied guest room, halfway down the hall. In two minutes she is back, and scribbles the number of a cab which will come to the door of the hotel in a matter of minutes.

What about the other three cabs? Go down, she says, and advise four members of your party to occupy the cab with number 76-30. Then come back here, and I will tell you the number of the next cab. You go to the elevators, but four of them are out of order, and three are not enough to handle rush hour traffic, which has now begun. So you run down 4, 3, 2, 1, PAST THE MYSTERY FLOOR—nobody knows what's there; perhaps Howard Hughes has hedged his bets—B, A, bark your orders to four communicants, and bound back up the six flights.

She is at her desk. As you reach her, she hears the telephone ring, bounds down the hall, returns with the number of the second cab, and instructs you to rush down and Fire Two. You ask if you might not simply wait downstairs as all the taxis arrive, and she says No! Under no circumstances! How would you know what the number is of the cab that is dispatched for your use?

You do not argue in Russia. I expect you would not argue even if you knew how to argue in Russian. The logical gears are non-reciprocating. On the one hand the management of the largest hotel in the most cosmopolitan center of Russia finds nothing abnormal in organizing something like Houston Control to round up four taxis at nine in the morning on Sunday. On the other hand, you have the feeling that if you had appeared at the main desk and asked for six B-52's, you would not have been required to make any extra exertions.

We got there. There were perhaps two hundred parishioners. The priest was venerable, and he spoke to a congregation that must have been born, every one of them, before the revolution. The priest read extensively in Russian—from the scriptures, one supposes. You take fugitive delight in calculating that there probably isn't enough religion left in Russia to attract the attention of the new liturgists. They will worry about religion in Russian only when it is more widely practiced. That will be the signal to come on in and ruin the liturgy.

So the old priest spoke the mass in Latin, in the old rite, and the old women, and a few men, bowed their heads. Behind the altar is a huge florid painting of the romantic school, the cross figuring large with the legend, IN HOC SIGNO VINCES: by this sign, ye shall conquer. You sigh under the weight of all that is undone, in Russia, and outside Russia, before the church can be called triumphant; but then you ponder the fact that it—the little tatterdemalion church—is still there; and ponder even the demisemi-quaver of a miracle—that all twelve American tourists got there. And anyway, after a half century's experience with Communism in Russia, impatience with chilastic Christianity is childlike. Some day, when the statues of Lenin are as windblown as his thoughts, the major shrine in Leningrad will probably be that little Christian church, that went on and on, Sunday after Sunday, as though nothing had happened.

It's a Long Wave Down

WASHINGTON—The nicest thing we could do for ourselves for New Year's is have Ronald Reagan appointed Jerry Ford's legal guardian. This would satisfy the reactionary ultras without depriving the rest of us of a source of year-round mirth and merriment.

The nicest thing we could do for the Democrats is call off the elections. This would relieve them of a burden they obviously can't carry, while keeping the office of president in the hands of the Republicans who covet it with a peculiar and eccentric ferocity. Those hundreds of Democratic candidates would be allowed to keep the campaign money they've collected tax free to spend it on their wives, children and girl friends.

To give the Reagan Administration the bipartisan tone, so favored by contemporary American statesmen, he should pick Hubert Humphrey for vice president. He's experienced in the work, he has demonstrated a capacity for loyalty to anyone who strokes him regularly, and in that office he can run on at the mouth without danger of being taken seriously.

Something more elaborate is called for to keep the grim-voiced Cuddles Kissinger content over the course of the next 12 months. He needs a country, a nation of his own to play his games in. We could call it Crisis Land, and it would be a state in perpetual jeopardy of being "taken over" by whoever. Here, but here alone, Henry would be able to pursue any course of action, any policy, any and every elaborate chicane to calm his complex and duplicitous nature. In this cold-war romper room, he and his Moscow buddies would be allowed to wage depilatory warfare, plant plastique in the mollusks and assassinate anyone with any weapon from dart guns and club to laser beams.

DIRE OMENS

Having attended to the needs of our leaders, we can now focus on what's in store for ourselves in '76. The omens, alas, are not favorable.

Kidding aside, Tom Holt in his Holt Executive Advisory newsletter is not optimistic, and no economic analyst has had a higher percentage of good predictions over bad ones these past years.

The recovery, such as it is, has about blown out, according to Holt, and don't be deceived by those happy-peppy announcements of carefully selected and highly misleading figures on the evening TV news shows. Remember you probably know more about this stuff than the person reading it to you does.

So don't think that the squeeze is over and you can go back to swinging when you

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Election Commission Has Much Chaos

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—Under normal bureaucratic pressures, it takes a little time for a new agency to make a muddle of things. But the Federal Election Commission has succeeded in less than a year to botch its mission.

The commission was established last Spring to administer the campaign laws. The first priority of every worthy federal institution is to hire as many bureaucrats as possible at the highest salaries possible.

Although the new commission is confined to a modest $5 million budget, it managed to acquire 127 bureaucrats at an average salary of $17,463.

Then the bureaucrats, true to form, began to produce complex solutions for simple problems. Since bureaucrats are judged by the amount of paperwork they generate, the paper began to fly—with seven carbon copies of everything.

Ultimately, the busy bureaucrats designed a new disclosure form for political candidates to fill out. This was completed, unfortunately, before the commission adopted regulations setting forth what was to be disclosed.

The culmination of the bureaucratic process is publication in the Federal Register. This is the supreme moment when a new proposal or regulation is unveiled, as required by law, for public viewing.

The new disclosure reports, having been pushed into the bureaucratic mill ahead of the disclosure regulations, reached the Federal Register first. Accordingly, the forms were published, at a cost of $9,000 to taxpayers, before it was settled what should be reported on the forms.

Or to state it simply, the commission put the cart before the horse. This was bound to cause some confusion, which the commission tried to allay with this footnote in the Federal Register: "Persons comparing the proposed regulations with these forms should not be disturbed by any evident discrepancies."

The House Administration Committee, nevertheless, was disturbed. Its staff found nine discrepancies between the proposed regulations and the new campaign law.

For instance, the law is supposed to prevent any large, hidden campaign spending. But one of the commission's proposed rules would permit a group of individuals each staying below the $100 minimum, to join in a major expenditure without having to report it.

The House staff pointed this out in a confidential memo. "Thus," explained the memo, "a group of 1,000 individuals could contribute $100 each and spend $100,000 on a single transaction for 10 daily full-page political advertisements in a newspaper for the ten-day period immediately preceding an election, and NOBODY would have to report either the contributions or expenditures."

The disclosure rules and forms should have been ready months ago for the presidential candidates to file on January 31, 1976. But the fuddle factory, which was supposed to produce the new regulations, has been spinning its wheels. Short of a bureaucratic miracle, the candidates will have to use old, out-dated 1972 forms.

Footnote: A spokesman told our associate Bob Owens that the Federal Election Commission "would wait to respond to questions" at congressional hearings next month.

FORD'S TESTINESS: President Ford, an admirer of the late Harry Truman, can be just as testy. Confidential White House minutes show frequent Trumanesque utterances coming from the President.

For example, Ford chafed the other day over the trouble he has had getting the bureaucracy to economize. Every time he orders a spending cut, the bureaucrats invariably slash the wrong programs:

"The moment you tell 'em to cut something," grumped the President, "they all go to the most sensitive programs to make it tougher for us."

Nevertheless he stubbornly resisted heavy defense cuts. "I don't approve of overly severe cuts," he snorted tersely.

An associate told him that his top Pentagon people hadn't been fighting on Capitol Hill for military appropriations. Snapped the President: "That's inexcusable!"

Another time, the confidential minutes show Ford was discussing the de-regulation of natural gas prices. The measure was being held up before the congressional recess by House Commerce Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W.Va.

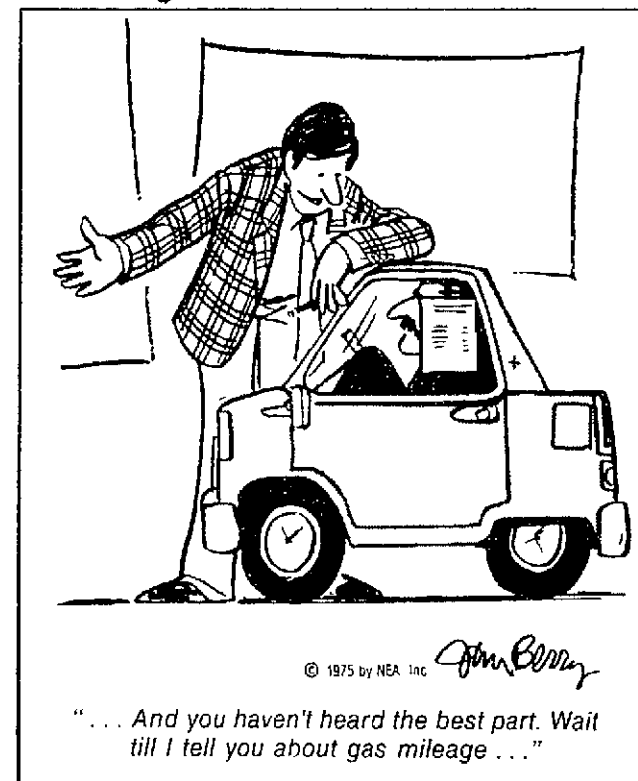

Bellyached the President: "Why should this country let one man hold up means to provide the necessary natural gas?" He threatened to seek a discharge petition to force the bill out of Staggers' committee.

The President also bluntly rejected the private appeals of two powerful Senators Republican Conference Chairman Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Republican Policy Chairman John Tower, R-Tex., that he veto the energy bill.

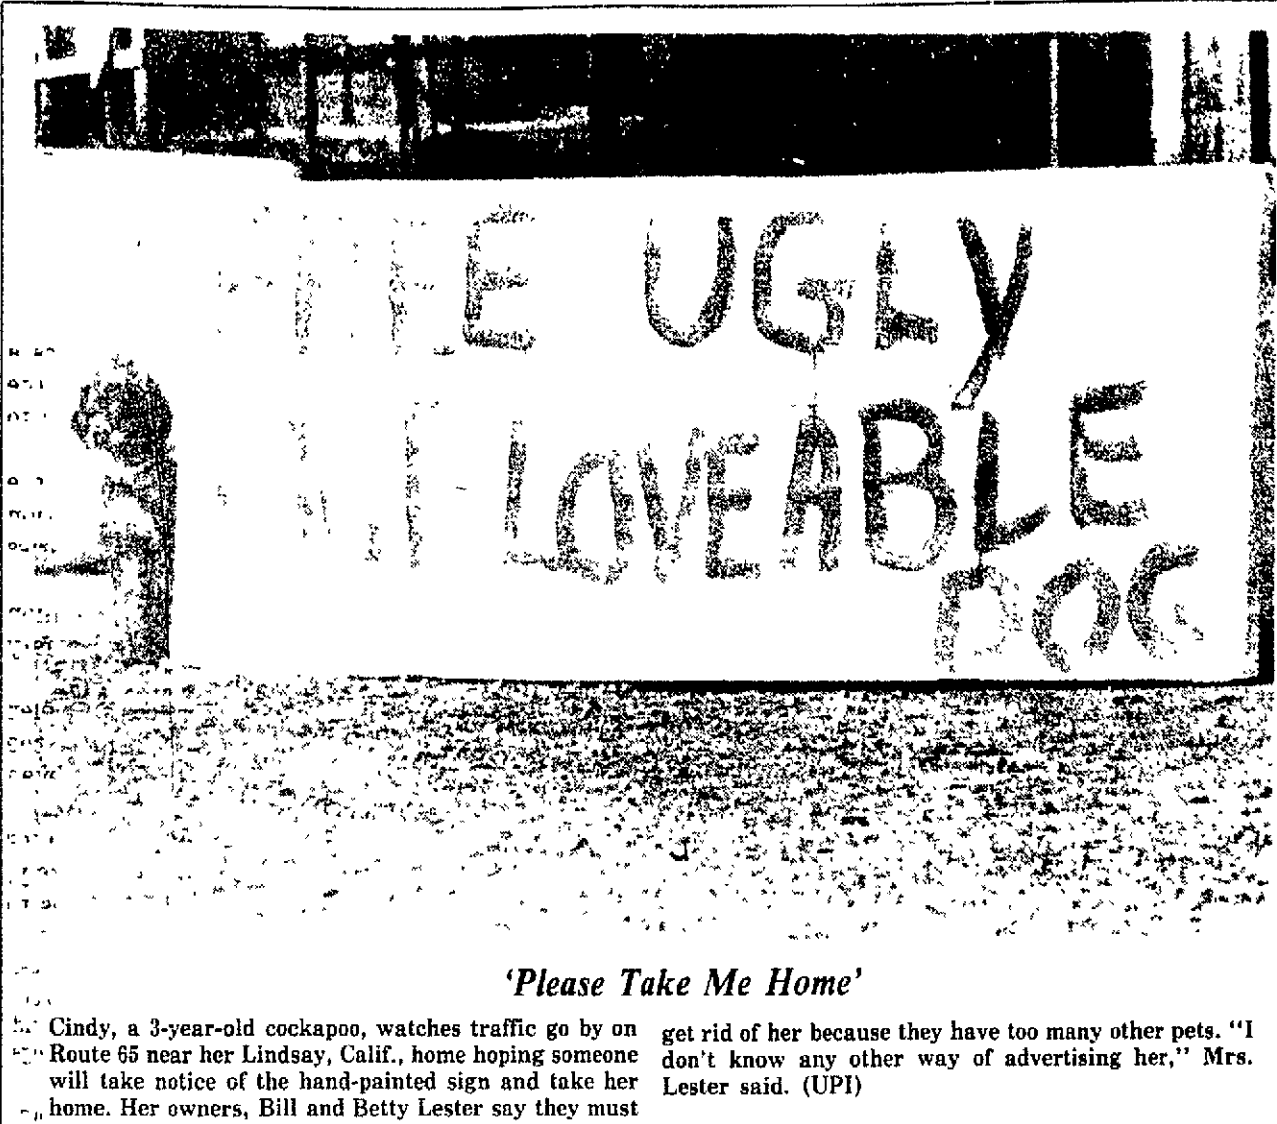

An associate commented afterward: "You're faced with some real tough decisions."

"You think I don't know it?" retorted the President.

For Ivan: A Bleak Five Years

By NEA/London
Economist News Service

MOSCOW—(LENS)—The ordinary Russian, still shocked by the news of his country's disastrous harvest, can hardly have been cheered by the prospect for 1980 outlined last week by the Soviet planners.

The main features of the new five-year plan, which will be duly approved in February by the party congress, are a slower rate of growth, a renewed emphasis on heavy industry and the continued pouring of resources into farming in the persistent hope of achieving a breakthrough.

Leonid Brezhnev, billed as the star performer for the February congress, will talk there about cost-cutting and the improvement of quality. He will not be able to argue, as his optimistic predecessor, Nikita Khrushchev, did on a similar occasion, that an age of plenty is just around the corner.

The Soviet economy is slackening pace. In the next five years it is hoped that the national income will rise by about 25 per cent. This is less than both the 39 per cent increase originally planned and even the 28 per cent claimed to have been achieved in the past five years. Industrial production is now expected to rise by 37 per cent by 1980, compared with the 47 per cent increase planned and the 43 per cent claimed between 1970 and 1975. But all branches of industry are not affected in the same way.

The originality of the previous plan lay in its break with the Stalinist tradition in that a slight priority was given for the first time to consumer goods. The promise was not really kept.

This time it is not even being made.

Heavy industry is supposed to increase its output by 40 per cent, light industry by only 31 per cent. Harnessing the resources of its eastern regions, the Soviet Union aims to expand output by 1980 to 800 million tons of coal, 1,360 billion kilowatt hours of electricity, 6300 tons of crude oil, 420 billion cubic meters of natural gas and 165 million tons of crude steel. Machine building and chemicals are to be given top priority. But both nominal and real wages are to rise less than in recent years. The less splendid future for the consumer is symbolized by the fact that the car industry, for which 1971-75 were boom years, is now to mark time.

One of the reasons why the consumer is to be relatively neglected is the planners' decision to go on pouring resources into farming. More tractors, more harvesters, more fertilizers are to be shipped to the countryside. Investment in farming is to rise faster than total investment and its share in the total, already about a quarter will soon be close to a third. With the aid of all this outlay the Russians hope to get their grain crop up to 215 million

By NEA/London
Economist News Service

Portugal's democrats can now glimpse light at the end of the maze of tunnels they have been groping their way through for the past 20 months. Last week, the Supreme Revolutionary Council pledged itself to revise the document—forced on the unwilling civilian parties in April—which gave dictatorial powers to the country's soldiers for the next three to five years. The council did not go so far as to promise a fully civilian government after the general election which is to be held next spring.

Some of the army leaders, including the foreign minister, Maj. Melo Antunes, powerfully resist the suggestion of a quick march back to the barracks. But, for the first time, Portugal's soldiers are talking in terms of abdication.

The men mainly responsible for the army's second thoughts are the political soldiers who emerged from the shadows last month to put down an insurrection by left-wing paratroopers, Gen. Ramalho Eanes, the new army chief of staff, and Col. Jaime Neves, commander of the Amadora commando regiment, are set on restoring discipline to the shambles that politics has made of Portugal's army. They are also sensitive to the widespread popular criticism of military rule—and want to avoid the armed forces being held responsible for the tough measures that will have to be imposed if the runaway economy is to be rescued.

The economy's rescue is a vital first step. Portugal's democratic forces are edging gingerly to the front; they could swiftly be trampled under foot once again if the economy sweeps out of control. While the country's soldier rulers were scrapping for power, production and investment fell to disastrous levels, the trade gap widened to over $1 billion, and wild inflation was held at bay only by selling off most of Portugal's foreign exchange reserves.

Portugal has been hit by all the blows raining down on the non-oil-producing world, but its problems were compounded and made chaotic by the piecemeal and hasty nationalization of most of its industries, by workers' takeovers in many firms, by the return of its settlers from Africa, and by overgenerous wage increases.

The task of getting Portuguese industry back on its feet will be superhuman unless foreign money comes swiftly to hand. The next month could be decisive. With financial help from outside, Portugal's civilian economic ministers may be able to build a solvent framework for emergent democracy, without it, the economy, and the hopes for democracy, could crumble together.

The Ford Administration would eagerly crusade to the rescue, Congress willing, but is unsure of its welcome; the United States is regarded with suspicion by much of the Portuguese left. Western Europe is far better placed politically to give aid, and this week Germany's Herr Schmidt dropped hints about a loan on similar lines to the $1.8 billion credit that Germany gave Italy last year. Until now the European Economic Community has promised only an inadequate $200 million to help the Portuguese along the road to democracy.

It used to be argued that aid should wait until there was a true hope of democracy taking root. This excuse no longer exists. Foreign aid may not turn Portugal democratic; the lack of it could ensure the reverse.

Portugal's Communists, now on the defensive but still very powerful, may decide it to be in their interests to sabotage a concerted rescue bid. Senhor Alvaro Cunhal, the Communist leader, has been deliberately noncommittal in recent speeches: "The working masses must understand the new realities," he said earlier this month, and then added cryptically that "certain words" were needed before the party could resume the offensive.

Words from Leonid Brezhnev? American representations to Moscow are thought to have resulted in the Russians serving notice on their Portuguese loyalists to stop short of the kind of actions that might have provoked civil war. Many Portuguese politicians believe the Soviet Union is prepared to write off Portugal. On the other hand, Henry Kissinger is making it very evident that he at least is not prepared, in any kind of remote exchange, to write off Portugal's ex-colony, Angola. The situations—at least in the fevered American imagination—are not unconnected. And both are still open-ended.

Tax Shelters Not All Bad

By Don Oakley

Few questions facing the American people today are more vital, more debated—and more confusing—than the question of oil.

Barely two years after the United States decided to make itself independent of foreign oil, we find ourselves more dependent than ever. Americans currently consume 17 millions of barrels of oil each day and produce less than 10 million. According to one study, even if there is only a modest 2.5 per cent annual increase in oil consumption over the next decade, by 1985 we will be consuming 23 million barrels a day, while our presently known domestic reserves will be supplying less than 5 million barrels.

Yet it is the vogue to attack the petroleum industry, especially in Congress, where some members seem determined not only to roll back the price of oil being produced today but to abolish the investment incentives that are needed if the industry is to find and develop the oil the nation will need tomorrow.

Few people will shed a tear over the problems of Exxon, Gulf, Shell and the like. The fact is, however, that drilling by the nation's 4,000 small, independent oil companies accounts for 80 per cent of all onshore oil discoveries, and these companies are perhaps even more dependent than the giants of the industry on investment capital from private individuals.

Not many Americans, of course, can afford to take a "bath" in a dry hole to the tune of $5,000 or $10,000, the usual investments in one well these days. But apparently, despite the recession and its lingering after effects, there are still many individuals in the U.S. with a minimum net worth of $200,000 who can.

This is the criterion required by ENI Corporation the nation's largest brokerage house specializing in tax-related investment opportunities for high-income individuals and corporations—in short, tax shelters. ENI is the largest supplier of funds to the independent oil industry.

"It is important to recognize the vital role played by the independent oil companies and to give them the kind of encouragement necessary to continue drilling on-shore wells," ENI president Joseph L. Schocken recently told a meeting of faculty and students at the Harvard Business School.

Schocken agrees that a "tough and comprehensive" tax reform bill is badly needed. Certain abuses are permitted within the tax code which severely undermine the morale of other taxpayers.

There are, for example, situations whereby an investor can make an investment in a program and have a profit the instant he writes the check merely from the tax savings he realizes. Such possibilities are flagrant abuses of the tax code and ought to be curbed.

At the same time, he points out, tax shelters can serve as a means of channeling needed capital to areas of national priority. Construction of low-income housing, as well as the further development of domestic petroleum resources, are very much needed national goals, and the flow of investor capital to those areas is significantly enhanced by tax benefits.

Objectives such as these can be retained while putting together a tax reform bill designed to eliminate any current abuses, Schocken believes.

Unquestionably, fortunes are being made in oil. But fortunes are also being lost in oil. If the time ever comes when investors no longer have the tax-shelter cushion to encourage them to take the gamble, we could all end up losing our shirts to the Arabs. —NEW PAPER SENTINEL/PHILIP ASS.

Hors D'Oeuvres Recipes from Area Hostesses:

Snack the Old Year Out

KINGSTON
In homes across the country, scores of house-parties are being planned to see the old year out and to welcome in the new.

Entertaining is simpler these days... more casual... more fun. There aren't as many rules and regulations to hamper the style of the host and hostess.

Below are several easy-to-make hors d'oeuvres recipes suggested by area party-givers.

MAPLE APPETIZERS

1 20-oz. can pineapple chunks
3 8-oz. pkg. brown and serve sausage links
4 tsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
½ cup maple syrup

¼ cup water
¼ cup vinegar
2 large green peppers, cut approx. ¼" squares
10 oz. jar Maraschino cherries, without stems, drained.

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Cut sausages in bite-sized pieces, brown in skillet. Blend cornstarch, salt, reserved pineapple syrup, maple syrup, water, vinegar. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Add pineapple, sausage, peppers and cherries. Cook 5 minutes. Keep warm in chafing dish. Serve with cocktail picks.

ZUCCHINI PATTIES

4 to 6 small grated zucchini

3 eggs
¼ cup pancake flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. chopped parsley
1 heaping T. Italian grated cheese

Mix thoroughly. Batter will be watery. Make quarter-sized patties on griddle. Serve warm. Will serve at least 10.

HOT BEEF DIP

¼ cup chopped onions
1 T. margarine
1 cup milk
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese
1 13-oz. pkg. chopped dried beef

½ cup mushroom pieces
¼ cup Parmesan cheese
2 T. chopped parsley
Cook onion in margarine. Stir in milk and cream cheese until well blended. Add remaining ingredients. Serve as a hot dip with toasted rounds or your favorite crackers.

Serves 10-12.

Mrs. Frank Simpson
Albany Avenue

STUFFED MUSHROOMS

24 medium fresh mushrooms
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 envelope onion soup mix
¾ cup dried bread crumbs
½ cup chopped blanched almonds
½ cup sherry
2 T. melted butter
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Remove stems from mushrooms and chop finely. In skillet melt butter, add stems, cook until tender. Add onion soup mix, bread crumbs, almonds; mix well. Stir in sherry. Fill caps with onion mixture. Place cap-side up on well greased pan. Brush with remaining butter. Sprinkle with cheese. Broil approx. 5 minutes.

Nordic Ham 'n Vegetable Dip, served in a royal purple eggplant boat, is a delectable relish dip to grace the koldbord table. It makes a tasty topping for sardines and crackers, nice for simple suppers, cocktail party appetizers or afternoon snacks for football fans who follow the games on TV. Brought to you by the makers of the tiny fish that's a whale of a value, the Norway sardine. NORDIC HAM 'n

VEGETABLE DIP

1 medium eggplant
1 cup each chopped celery, onion and green pepper
1 clove garlic, chopped
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste

1 cup diced cooked ham
2 Tablespoons chopped parsley

1 teaspoon each oregano and salt
2 to 3 drops Tabasco sauce
2 cans (3½ ounces each) Norway sardines, drained

Crisp crackers or toast points
Parsley for garnish

Halve the eggplant. With sharp knife, carefully remove center, leaving a 1 inch shell. Reserve shell. Chop pulp and combine with celery, onion, green pepper and garlic. In skillet, saute vegetables slowly in hot oil, until almost tender, stirring frequently. Add tomato paste, ham, parsley and seasonings. Bring to boil; lower heat, cover and simmer 10 minutes, adding a little water as needed, to prevent sticking. Cool mixture; then puree in blender or food mill. Pour into reserved eggplant shells and chill. At serving time, arrange filled shells on tray. Garnish with parsley. Arrange sardines on crackers around dips. Spoon dip over sardines.

Makes about 4 dozen appetizers.

Add a fiesta touch to party appetizers with Green Chile Wrappetizers. Strips of canned green chiles and cheese give the North American hot dog a zesty South-of-the-border flavor. Refrigerated fresh dough for wieners makes these appetizers remarkably quick and easy to put together.

Look for whole green chiles where canned Mexican foods are sold. They're only mildly hot, so you might want to have taco sauce or chile salsa for aficionados of fiery foods to use as a dip.

Cream Cheese-Bacon Roll-ups is another party snack which uses the same idea of splitting and filling hot dogs, baking them in a blanket of refrigerated dough for wieners and slicing the baked wieners into appetizer-sized pieces.

CREAM CHEESE-BACON ROLL-UPS

3 oz. package cream cheese, softened

1 teaspoon milk
3 strips bacon, fried and crumbled

1½ tablespoons finely chopped onion
5 wieners

4-oz. can WIENER WRAP brand dough from Pillsbury—plain, cheese, onion or barbecue flavor

¼ cup buttered bread crumbs

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

Lightly grease a cookie sheet. In small bowl, blend cream cheese and milk. Mix in bacon and onions; set aside. Cut a lengthwise slit in each wiener, to within ½ inch of each end.

Fill each wiener with about 1 tablespoon cream cheese mixture. Unroll Wiener Wrap brand dough and separate into 5 rectangles. Place one wiener lengthwise on each piece of dough. Stretch dough to roll around each wiener. Roll each wiener in buttered bread crumbs. Place on cookie sheet cheese side up. Bake at 375 degrees for 14 to 18 minutes until golden brown. Slice each wiener into 4 pieces. Serve hot. 20 appetizers. Refrigerate any leftovers.

GREEN CHILE WRAPPETIZERS

4-oz. can whole green chiles

5 wieners
5 strips (3x1½ inches thick) Monterey Jack or Mozzarella cheese

4-oz. can WIENER WRAP brand dough from Pillsbury—plain, onion, cheese or Mexican flavor

1 cup crushed taco or corn chips

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Lightly grease a cookie sheet. Rinse green chiles, remove seeds. Lay pieces flat and pat dry with paper towel. Cut chiles into 5 strips, 1½-2 inches wide. Cut a lengthwise slit in each wiener, to within ½ inch of each end. Insert cheese strip in each wiener. Cover with strip of green chile. Unroll Wiener Wrap brand dough and separate into 5 rectangles. Place one wiener lengthwise on each piece of dough. Stretch dough to roll around wiener. Roll each wiener in crushed taco or corn chips, place on cookie sheet cheese side up. Bake at 375 degrees for 14 to 18 minutes until golden brown. Slice each wiener into 4 pieces. Serve hot. If desired, serve with chile salsa or taco sauce. 20 appetizers. Refrigerate any leftovers.

Wintery meal may be simply crisp crackers, Norway sardines, sausage and a zesty ham 'n vegetable dip.

Growing Older

Condominiums: Blessing or Burden?

By Harold Blumenfeld

More and more people now retired or planning early retirement are buying condominiums because they seem to offer a better way to live as we grow older. And a condominium seems to be a good investment because the maintenance is often lower over the years than escalating rents.

We bought our condominium after my mandatory retirement. It was even-rything we had hoped for. The layout was ideal for our needs. On the Intracoastal Waterway, it had a magnificent view of the Atlantic Ocean and a tree-shaded dead-end street offering a degree of safety for evening strolling. The purchase price, maintenance and taxes appeared to be just right at the time.

But, just like so many other people who have bought condominiums, my wife and I didn't read all the fine print. It was a shock to discover later that we had given the builder-developer a 99-year lease on the recreational facilities. We found these inadequate and usually in need of servicing or major repairs. However, we are luckier than other owners because our recreation lease has a fixed figure for monthly payments. The less fortunate have a built-in cost-of-living clause and recreation assessment, in many areas have risen 25 per cent in the last couple of years.

For all this too many developers do nothing to maintain or improve the recreational facilities they left with the unit owners and condominium associations. They don't have to take picks and shovels down into the gold mines which provide them with millions of dollars for the next 99 years. For them it's like hitting the jackpot at the slot machine without even having to pull down the lever.

It isn't that unit owners, condominium associations and some legislators aren't aware of certain deceitful unfair and illegal recreation leases. Many states are working on legislation to prevent developers from inserting clauses in new condominium purchases agreements.

There are an estimated three million present owners of condominiums. It's a fair assumption that most bear the burden of monthly or annual recreation payments.

Forced to face these facts both houses of Florida State Legislature for example, have drafted bills to prevent condominium frauds, aiding prospective purchasers and helping current owners. One bill should make it impossible for developers to collect mandatory charges for recreational facilities in condominium complexes. To protect individual unit owners, other legislation should prevent developers from foreclosing on unit owners who do not pay the money due on recreation leases and won't permit developers to use liens to enforce recreation lease collections.

Recreation leases are blatant and unfair trade practices. I'm sure no developer would have sold a condominium unless the buyer agreed to the 99-year recreation lease. Yet this form of selling maneuver is really a tie-in sales gimmick, which has been carefully policed and prosecuted by the Federal Trade Commission since 1910.

The FTC has a mandate to look after the rights of buyers, and not the sellers. It also has a duty to enforce the federal laws which make tie-in sales illegal. For two years the FTC has been investigating the 99-year leases, and in my opinion, listening to the arguments of developers and their high-priced batteries of lawyers but not paying too much attention to the unit owners and condominium associations.

We should have been shocked again when Lewis A. Engman, FTC chairman, announced after a secret 3-to-2 vote that the commission has discontinued investigation of recreational leases. He reportedly gave as his reason a lack of interest based on the volume of mail he had received from condominium unit owners.

Millions of present and future condominium owners face life on fixed incomes. There's still time to save much-needed money by getting rid of the 99-year leases. If you agree, write now. Demand that this investigation be reopened. Send your letters to Lewis A. Engman, Chairman, Federal Trade Commission, Pennsylvania Avenue at Sixth Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a fine, devoted professional man for 17 years. We have a beautiful family, and I have never had any reason to doubt his fidelity.

Out of the blue, I received a phone call from a woman who spoke in a refined and cultured voice. She called me by name and said she thought I should know that my husband was having an affair with a young woman in his office!

I was so shocked I could hardly speak, but I managed to ask her who she was. She said, "A friend," and then she hung up.

Abby, I got so weak I had to sit down. Then I became nauseated.

My first inclination was to believe her. I wondered, "Why would anyone want to make up a story like that?" Then, I tried to recall if there had been any tell-tale signs — late nights or unexplained absences, but there were none.

When my husband came home, I told him about it. He was as dumbfounded as I and assured me there was nothing to it.

Now I'm asking you. Why would anyone want to make such a call? I love my husband and trust him, but I am . . .

BAFFLED
DEAR BAFFLED: Miserable people try to make others miserable. Your caller was such a person. The word from her is, forget it!

DEAR ABBY: There are four of us married "girls" who have lunch together once a week, and today one of us presented a problem so unusual that only you could answer for us.

She has known this local undertaker for over 25 years, and they have always had a lot of laughs at parties and enjoyed one another's company.

Her question was, should she have her body sent to him when she passes away, and let him see her body (now that it's in its "older" state), or should she leave instructions to give her business to one of his competitors? (She's still a cute cookie in our book, even if she is over 65.)

FOUR IN FLORIDA

DEAR FOUR: What a ghoulish topic for a girlish lunch! I'm sorry to let "cute cookie" down prematurely, but only she can answer that question.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SUCCESSFUL BUT TALKED ABOUT IN BEVERLY HILLS": That's the price of fame. If you want a place in the sun you've got to put up with a few bad blisters.

Coping

"Against Our Will" Explores Rape

By Joanne Koch

Is rape always against a woman's will or does the victim secretly desire to be vanquished? Is there something about her dress or behavior that provokes a normal red-blooded male beyond tolerable attraction into uncontrolled brutality?

These are questions that have made rape the most unreported of major felonies. For years women from 8 to 80 who have been brutally attacked have been made to feel that the rape was somehow their fault. Even today if they overcome this guilt and actually report the attack, they will often be put through a humiliating series of questions in which the victim must prove that she actually resisted the attack.

Assault and robbery carry no such requirement. The man at gunpoint is urged to empty his cash register or hand over his wallet to avoid being shot, but the woman facing a razor at her throat, a knife in her back, a garrote ready for strangulation nevertheless is expected to resist and later prove that she resisted.

The excuse for these distorted legal practices, as author Susan Brownmiller explains in the first major history of rape, is based on the notion that rape can easily be a false charge, as it was in the Old Testament tale of Potiphar's wife who falsely accused Joseph because he rejected her advances.

In "Against Our Will" Brownmiller reveals a deeper cause for our treatment or maltreatment of rape as different from other crimes. She makes a strong case for rape as inextricably bound to the notion that males have the right to aggress, to conquer, to appropriate goods and women. Rape, as she sees it, becomes another expression of machismo.

Realizing that such a charge would make many readers

bristle and others dismiss her with unnuances concerning her feminism, Brownmiller has wisely devoted much of her book to a long catalogue of wartime atrocities against women. She takes us from the Biblical tale of rape of Dinah through knightly conquests during the Crusades, to the pogroms against the Jewish settlements of Eastern Europe, the rape of Belgian women turned to the uses of propaganda during World War I, the Nazi atrocities against women, the rape of the Chinese by the Japanese (in Nanking alone there were approximately 21,000 such attacks between 1937 and 1938), the rape of Vietnamese women by Americans, the Belgian Congo rampage of blacks against white women, the institutionalized rapes of blacks by white slave masters, of American Indian women by whites and white women by American Indians, the tragic case of the raped women of Bangladesh who were rejected by their own husbands.

All the incidents meticulously documented begin to lead inexorably to one conclusion: Rape will not take its properly ignominious place as a violent crime until sexual equality becomes a fact of life for men and for women.

Even though Brownmiller builds a brilliant case for rape as an extension of our cultural notions of male dominance and female passivity, there are a few nagging doubts left when one has completed her grueling book. If the need for male protection has been so keenly felt by women from the caveperson's day to the present, might there be some biological or anthropological balance in the pattern of male-female relationships? How can we expose false rape testimony without humiliating those who have actually been victimized?

Whatever the answers "Against Our Will" provides sufficient evidence to prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that rape laws and their enforcement should be radically changed.

Cerruti: Fashions for the Famous

By Marian Christy

NEW YORK—When French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing was invited to a top echelon meeting in Rome, he quickly sent for men's wear designer Nino Cerruti, whose Paris salon in the Rue Royale section caters to the who's-who types.

"Mr. d'Estaing confided that he wanted to dress in a way that would please fashion-conscious Italians," says Cerruti, an Italian by birth and a Frenchman by adoption. Cerruti, whose collection is now in 400 American stores, sold the French president his first "body-aware" suit.

Did the president, who never had a strong fashion image, like the double-breasted dark blue suit with dropped shoulders, pinched waist, flared jacket and stovepipe-straight trousers?

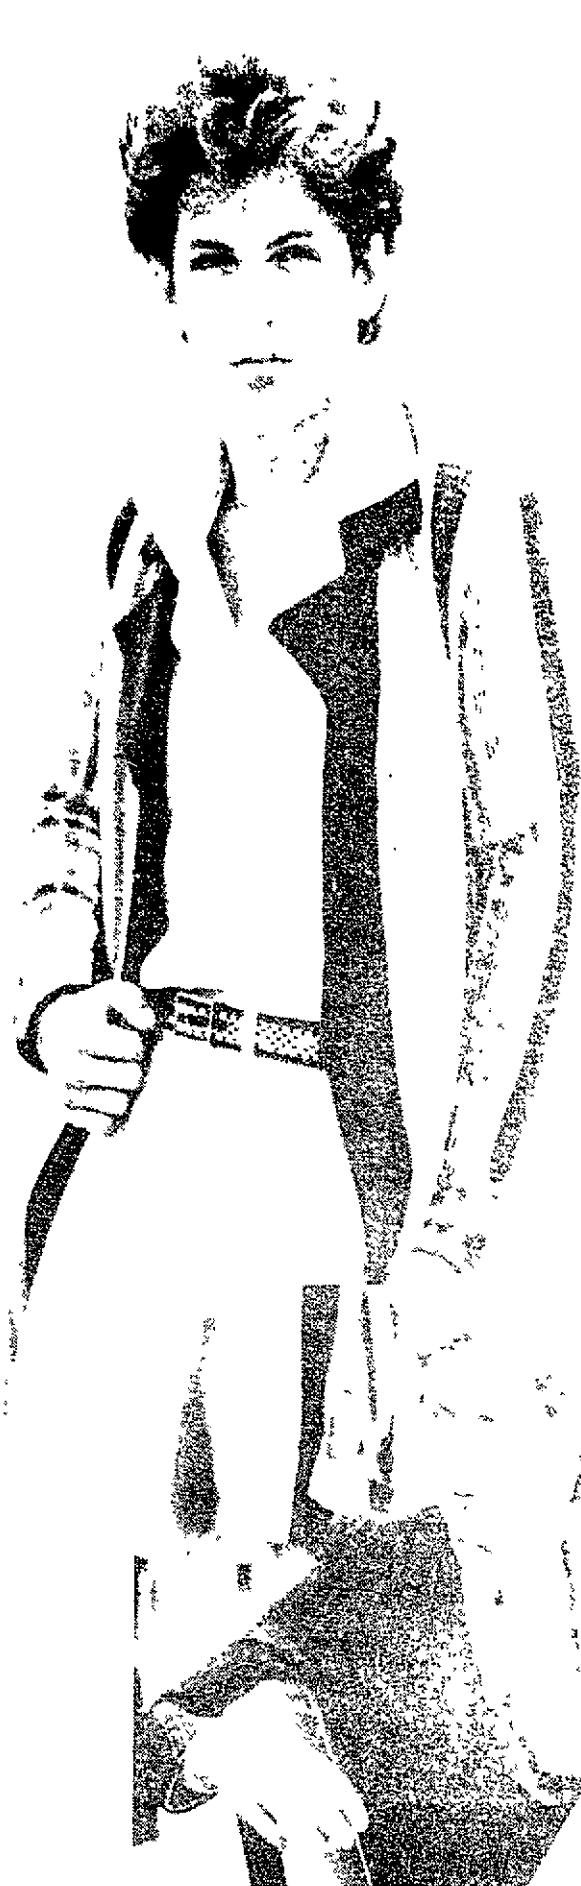

Cerruti says: "Diplomats like Mr. d'Estaing never make comments that reflect approval or disapproval. He's very, very close-mouthed. Ah, maybe I shouldn't say it, but he's more open with women. Oh, yes, he liked that suit," says Cerruti, who now sends his most talented tailors to the presidential palace with tape measures and fabric swatches. "He has ordered several in the same style. An order is worth a thousand words."

Cerruti, who's 45 and divorced, is fast finding room at the top with physique-defining jackets and straight trousers in basic colors and fine fabrics. Custom-made suits are $400—or more. Those reproduced by Chicago's Hart-Schaffner-Marx, the company that makes the Johnny Carson line, are roughly half the price.

"All a man needs are a few well-chosen essentials," says Cerruti, who tells his clients to travel anywhere in the world with one good suit, 10 shirts and 10 ties. "That way you've got 10 looks and only one suitcase to carry," he says. "Fashion should never be a burden."

Men who want to change their image invariably seek out

Cerruti. When outspoken French singer-actor Jean-Paul Belmondo got bored with wearing hippie-type leather vests and denim from Left Bank boutiques, he asked a neighbor who lives on the same island on the Seine River who could overhaul his image? The neighbor sent him to Cerruti.

"I put Belmondo in an austere gray flannel suit," says the designer about the switch which changed Belmondo's character. Usually Belmondo is loquacious about taking direction but, "He didn't say a word except thank you and will you take my check?" says Cerruti.

The designer was born in Biella, an Italian town famous for exquisite fabrics, especially the family-owned Cerruti materials sought by such Paris couturiers as Dior, Givenchy, Patou and St. Laurent. When Cerruti was 21 and in his third year at Milan's Catholic University, his father died unexpectedly.

He says "I had to leave school immediately to replace my father as head of the firm. Within two years, I had a very bad nervous breakdown. You see, I was very distressed at having the enormous executive pressures. All I've really wanted to do is design."

Eight years ago, Cerruti decided to come to Paris and open a men's wear salon. He bypassed Rome, a competitive fashion city, because "Paris is international and Rome is provincial."

One of his first customers was Francois Mitterand, chief of Paris's Socialist Party, and a stocky-chunky man with a paunch. Mitterand expressed a desire to "improve" in order to get what Cerruti calls the "important female vote."

Cerruti dressed him in charcoal gray double-breasted suits that disguised his girth and suggested a cosmopolitan image.

"French socialists are not all poor people who are without education and therefore have no way of surviving in the professional world," says Cerruti. "They want to be known for their achievements and good taste. Mitterand has been buying that look now for years. He says smart clothes give him an air of assurance—and people respond to what he has to say."

One of Cerruti's best-selling accessories are soft felt hats with brims of various widths. Occasionally a woman will pop in and purchase one to wear herself. "I was in the shop the other day when Faye Dunaway bought a brimmed hat right out of the window. She didn't want it packaged. She wore it."

Cerruti, who often was guest on Aristotle Onassis's yacht, the Christina, never made suits for Onassis. He claims that the Greek millionaire never thought Cerruti suits were expensive enough. "Mr.

Onassis always let it be known that he preferred to fly in a tailor from London who charged air fare plus expenses—he was always saying that he owned the world's most expensive suits."

Cerruti, a fashion traditionalist, is doing a few offbeat looks that Paris men are buying—but that he says will "take time" to catch on in the United States. The 1976 collection features satin evening suits with quilted jackets. And instead of regular suits, he's showing trousers coordinated to long, loose cardigan sweaters to replace the jacket.

"Men who are successful have a terrible life," he says. "Success is always riddled with problems: troubles, headaches and pressures. Dressing in an elegant outfit gives a man the added dimension of pleasure. And I say why not?"

Lamp Nostalgia Casts New Glow

By Jean Barnes

In the '30s on the farm "filling the lamps" was a privilege bestowed to the most responsible child and usually was performed as part of the "before school" ritual. Then, when chores were done and supper dishes were cleared away, the brightest lamp was set in the center of the table and homework was prepared for the next day.

More often than not in the midwestern states that lamp was a Coleman and many are still in use today.

In 1901, W. C. Coleman acquired the patent, contract and materials for the Efficient Lamp. Setting up his plant in Wichita, Kan., he began marketing, not lamps, but a lighting service to acquaint the public with his remarkable product. Unlike most lamps of that day the Coleman burned gasoline under pressure, producing a brilliant (300 candlepower) and safe light.

Those early lamps took time and effort to light. A torch generated the vaporizing unit. The torch required alcohol, an alcohol jar and a match, plus a minute to heat the vaporizing unit to produce light.

In those first years the lighting system was perfected which allowed business houses and homes to use a series of lamps fed from a single fuel tank outside the building. Fuel was fed to the lamps by means of a one-eighth-inch copper tube. It wasn't until 1908 that

Coleman manufactured the first completely portable lamp.

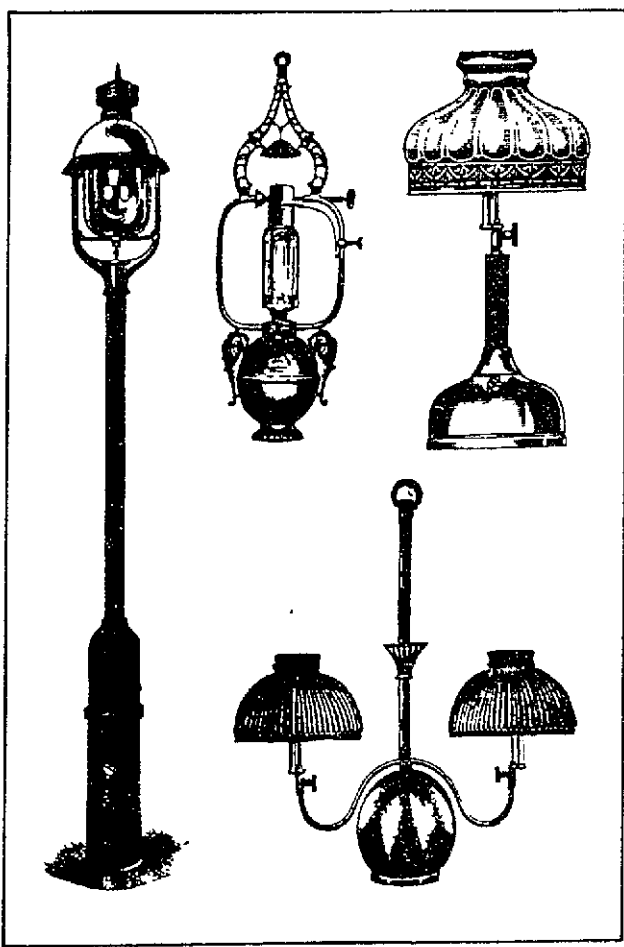

Constantly seeking improvements he patented the Quick-Lite lamp in 1913 which made the alcohol torch obsolete. His quest for "instant lighting" was rewarded. In 1929 a patent was issued for the Coleman Instant Lighting lamp.

A 1920 catalogue of Coleman products shows that the Quick-Lite was the lowest in price, selling for $11.50 new. It was 20 inches tall and fitted with a white opal shade. The nickel-plated fount held three pints of fuel.

If you wanted something with more class you could purchase for $18 a lamp with handpainted shade decorated with a four-inch crystal fringe. But the portable lamps were not really meant to be ornamental. They are functional in design and the design has changed very little in the past 50 years.

Coleman lamps were made in the United States as late as the 1940s and in Canada until last year. There are many, many Coleman lamps available to today's collectors. But with the public seeking alternate sources of energy and the present trend of "nostalgia" collecting this will undoubtedly affect the supply in the future.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

The Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross, a United Way Agency, is now prepared to offer courses in Home Nursing (offered for the first time in 25 years)—Home Health Care, Mother's Aide, and Good Grooming to all persons interested. With home care of the sick and elderly being recognized as desirable in contrast to institutional care, knowledge of good home nursing practice is expected to be increasingly in demand.

Mrs. Sophie G. Hamilton, RN, Director of the Nursing and Health Programs for the Eastern New York Division of the Red Cross taught the courses in which the following persons were authorized as volunteer instructors in Good Grooming: Mrs. Lucille Canino, RN, of Highland, NY; Mrs. Florence Carroll, LPN, of High Falls, NY; and Mrs. E. Lorraine Lazala, LPN, of Shokan, NY, and in which the following were authorized as instructors in Home Nursing and Mother's Aide: Mrs. Arline Breitling, RN, of Saugerties, NY; Mrs. Lucille Canino, RN, of Highland, NY; Mrs. Florence Carroll, LPN, of High Falls, NY; Miss Denise Rahm, RN, of Hurley, NY; Mrs. Madeleine Wanda, LPN, of Kingston, NY; and Ms. Nadja Spassenko, Executive Director of the Ulster County Chapter.

Church or senior citizen groups, 4-H clubs, Scout troops, other groups, and interested citizens are invited to call the Red Cross office 338-7020 to request enrollment in the course of their choosing.

May Takes Control for Indiana

By UPI

Top-ranked Indiana attracted a New York record crowd for a college basketball game and almost paid dearly for it.

The Hoosiers, teetering on the brink of disaster with four of its starters on the verge of fouling out, grittily hung on for a 76-69 victory over St. John's and the Holiday Festival championship.

As a crowd of 19,694 in Madison Square Garden screamed wildly for a St. John's upset, Indiana's Scott May took control of the game in the last five minutes to break a 65-65 tie and lead the Hoosiers to their ninth straight victory of the season.

Kent Benson, Quinn Buckner, Bob Wilkerson and May each was playing with four fouls when the All-America forward put the Hoosiers ahead, 67-65, on a short jumper. May then sank five free throws in the final 1:24 to guarantee the victory over 11th-ranked St. John's, now 9-1.

Bobby Knight was questioned about keeping his four foul-plagued players in the lineup with eight minutes to go and the Indiana coach replied, "When you get into the last eight minutes of a game like that, you've got to play the best you got."

The best proved to be May, who finished with 29 points and the tournament's Most Valuable Player award.

George Johnson. Alagia kept a tight reins on the pace of the St. John's offense and finished with 16 points, while Johnson scored 23 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and was responsible for Benson's foul problems.

The second-ranked Terrapins had a much easier time

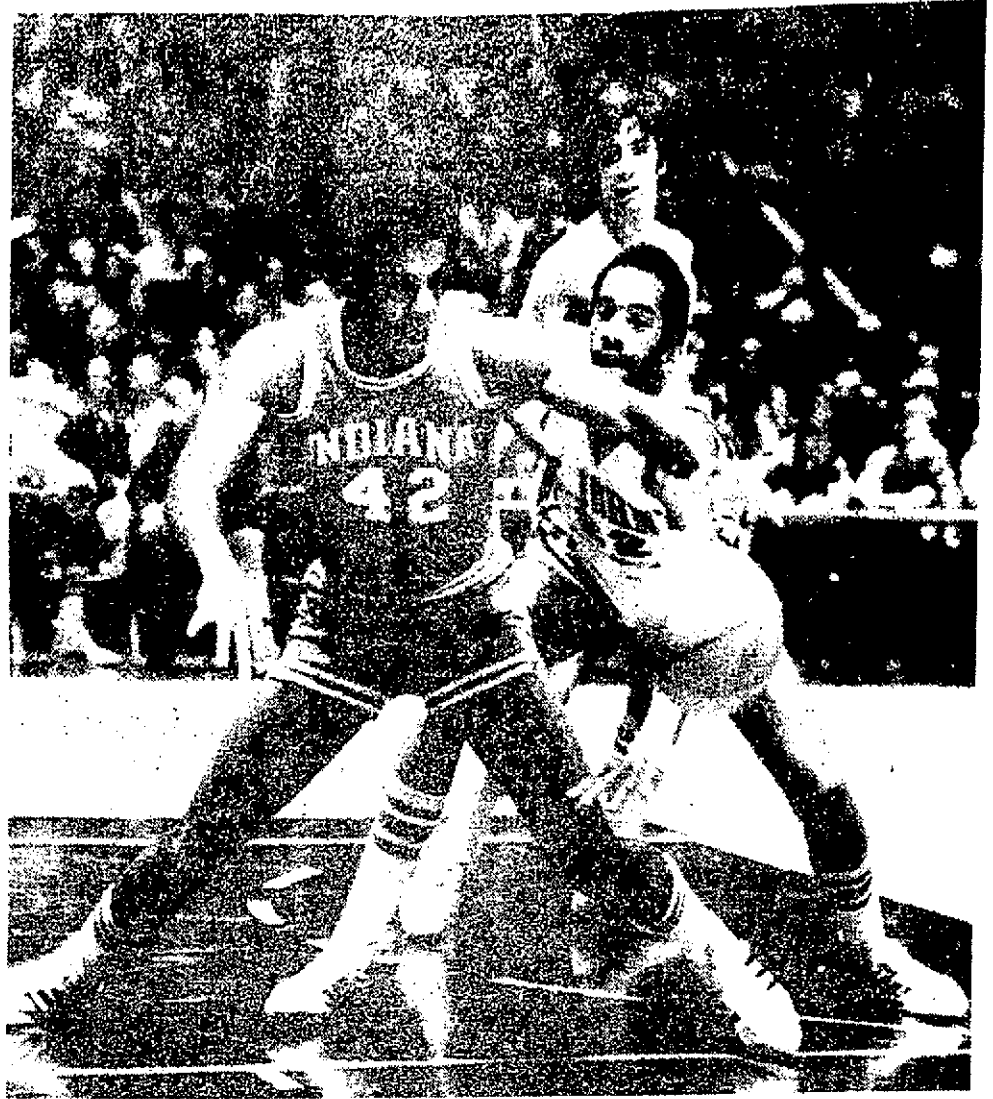

52-48. Marques Johnson's 18 points led the Bruins, who will meet Purdue in tonight's title game. The Boilermakers topped St. Louis, 80-77, behind freshman guard Kyle Macy's 24-point performance. No. 5 Marquette got 17 points apiece from Earl Tatum

the Far West Classic final with a 70-57 victory over Northwestern. The Huskies, led by Clarence Ramsey's 17 points, will meet Texas Tech, which scored an easy 78-65 victory over No. 19 Duquesne.

No. 13 Tennessee had little trouble capturing the Sugar Bowl championship as Ernie Grunfeld and Bernard King combined for 73 points in a 97-73 victory over Tulane. King finished with 37 points and Grunfeld 36.

No. 14 Cincinnati continued to have problems in the Rainbow Classic, dropping its second game of the tournament, a 66-65 consolation loss to Holy Cross. But No. 18 Iowa remained unbeaten and earned a championship berth opposite Southern California with an 82-80 victory over Arizona on Dan Frost's two free throws with no time left.

No. 16 Rutgers also remained unbeaten as the Scarlet Knights belted The Citadel, 96-73, in the Poinsetta Classic. Hollis Copeland scored 21 points to lead the Scarlet Knights, who will meet Georgia Tech, a 98-81 victor over Furman, in the title game tonight.

SCOTT MAY (L), BEAVER SMITH GO FOR LOOSE BALL

SPORTS TODAY

Asked why Indiana never let up on its aggressive man-to-man defense and switched to a zone to protect its players from fouling out, Knight said, "We don't have a zone."

May played just as aggressively with four fouls as he had earlier in the game and explained, "At that time, we had no choice. We just had to play that way to win."

St. John's, 11th-ranked nationally, almost pulled off the big upset behind brilliant performances by 5-9 guard Frank Alagia and slender 6-7 center in their own Maryland Invitational tournament with a 104-69 rout of Seton Hall, but in the other first-round contest No. 7 Alabama was handed its first loss of the season by Princeton, 61-59.

John Lucas scored 21 points to pace the Terps' romp, while Armond Hill scored 20 points as the Tigers used a deliberate offense to knock off Alabama and set up tonight's championship game with the Terps.

No. 4 UCLA had to scramble to get by the first-round of its Bruin Classic, coming from behind to edge Santa Clara, and Bo Ellis to defeat Miami of Ohio, 79-52, in the first-round of the Milwaukee Classic and set up a title game with Wisconsin, a 70-64 victor over Wisconsin.

Ninth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas was another team enjoying its own holiday tournament as Eddie Owens scored 28 points and the Rebels rolled over Houston, 116-92, in a first-round game. However, Las Vegas will take its 11-0 record into the final against No. 15 Michigan, which topped LaSalle, 86-71.

The Thrill of Victory

Maryland coach Jerry Claiborne (L) is hoisted on the shoulders of his victorious Terrapins after they upset Florida in the Gator Bowl Monday night while at right the agony of defeat is etched in the face of Florida cheerleader Sharon Atkins. The final score was 13-0. (UPI)

It Was 'Mistake-Free Football'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — "We knew we had to play mistake-free football and we did."

Jubilant Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne explained that was why his "no-name" Terrapins upset Florida, 13-0, Monday night in the Gator Bowl football game.

"We knew we had to play good defense and we took time to prepare," said Claiborne. "The team played just super. They played a great defensive game and our offense moved the ball when it had to."

The fired-up Terrapins, seven-point underdogs, intercepted three passes, turning two of them into scores, and 225-pound freshman running back Steve Atkins rushed for 127 yards on 20 carries, allowing Maryland to control the rain-plagued game.

The lone touchdown came with 8:45 gone in the first period on a 19-yard pass from quarterback Larry Dick to wide receiver Kim Hoover. Place-kicker Mike Suchko got the other points with a conversion and two field goals, a 20-yarder in the second period and a 27-yarder in the fourth.

Suchko also handled Maryland's punting, averaging 40 yards in the rain.

Claiborne noted that Maryland didn't turn the ball over a single time on interceptions or fumbles.

"We had good pass coverage, good hitting, good pursuit, good pass rush," said Claiborne. "The interceptions and sacks were super plays. I think we convinced people we can win against Southeastern Conference teams."

The Terrapins lost to SEC teams in their two previous bowl outings, bowing 17-16 to Georgia in the 1973 Peach Bowl and 7-3 to Tennessee in the 1974 Liberty Bowl.

While Maryland's defense played near flawless football, the hapless Gator offense failed to mount a serious drive on the rain-soaked turf until the final moments when the clock ran out with the ball on Maryland's 10-yard line.

Florida coach Doug Dickey, unable to win a bowl game at Florida since he began coaching there in 1970, said the Gators "just played terrible."

"It was very frustrating. The harder we tried, the worse we played. We are a much better team than we showed, but there is no question that Maryland was the better team tonight and deserved to win."

Claiborne, who has called his 1975 Terrapins "a no-name team" because of its lack of big stars, refused to single out any players, calling the win "a team effort."

"There's no big stars on this team, but they've got a lot of heart. They've also got a lot of pride. They wanted to convince people we belonged here and I think we did."

Atkins was modest about his Monday night performance. "I guess I got a little daylight."

Atkins said he didn't pay much attention to the criticism of Maryland as a Gator Bowl foe for 14th-ranked Florida, top offensive team in the SEC, but defensive guard Paul Divito, a 230-pound senior, was not at all reticent in expressing his feelings.

"They said a lot of things about us — that we didn't belong in the same league with Florida," said Divito, who caused and recovered a Florida fumble and sacked Florida quarterbacks three times. "We proved to them that Maryland can play with the best of them."

Tarkenton: NFC Player of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton is gradually putting his name at the top of the list in all major National Football League passing categories and now stands just one category away from asserting himself as the greatest passer in the history of the game.

Tarkenton, who won the first passing title of his 15-year career this season, pushed Johnny Unitas off the top of the list in three major lifetime passing categories this year and should better the former Baltimore Colt great in the only other major record—most total yards — sometime midway through next season.

Tarkenton completed 273 passes in 425 attempts for a 64 per cent completion rate, an NFC high 2,994 yards and an NFL high 25 touchdowns last season to take over the all-time lead from Unitas in passes attempted, passes completed and touchdowns.

For his performance in leading the Vikings to a 12-2 record this year and their sixth National Football Conference Central Division title in the last seven seasons, Tarkenton has been named United Press International's player of the year in the NFC.

Tarkenton was the overwhelming choice of the UPI selection panel, polling 27 of a possible 39 votes. The panel is made up of three writers from each conference city.

Fellow Viking Chuck Foreman, who led the NFC in scoring and pass receiving, finished second in the balloting with six votes, followed by Washington quarterback Bill Kilmer and St. Louis running back Terry Metcalf each with three votes.

Since he broke in with the Vings in 1961, Tarkenton has thrown 5,225 passes with 2,931 completions for 291 touchdowns. The 2,994 yard he passed for this season marked the 15th consecutive year he has bettered the 1,000 yard mark, breaking Bobby Layne's mark of 14 seasons. It was also the 14 consecutive season he has thrown for more than 2,000 yards, topping another Unitas record by one season.

"Johnny Unitas will always be the best in my mind," says Alan Ameche, who played with Unitas on the Baltimore championship teams of 1958 and 1959. "But I'll tell one thing — Fran Tarkenton has proved a lot of things to a lot of people."

"I for one never thought a rollout quarterback could do the job in pro football. I thought a quarterback had to stay in the pocket to be a success. But Fran has proved me and a lot of other people wrong."

"Francis is thinking on his feet, not running for his life," Minnesota Coach Bud Grant emphasized. "He doesn't have to wait until the next play like most quarterbacks because he'll make the adjustment right in the middle of a play."

Tarkenton is 1,399 yards short of Unitas in total yards but scrambling Francis has a better lifetime completion rate than Unitas, 55 per cent to 54 per cent.

Tarkenton becomes the second Minnesota player ever to win the player of the year award, joining defensive tackle Alan Page who won the honor in 1971.

Pearl Sparks Streaking Knicks

CHICAGO (UPI) — "It's a real accomplishment when you can score that many against a Chicago team and Jerry Sloan," said guard Earl Monroe.

The "that many" referred to the season-high 37 points he scored Monday night to pace the New York Knicks to a 94-93 victory over the Bulls.

Monroe canned 16 of 22 field goal attempts and was five out of six from the free throw line.

"When you hold Monroe to making 50 per cent of his shots, you have a good chance of winning," said Sloan. "But tonight he was outstanding. The only thing I could make him do was work for his shots."

Sloan was assigned to guard Walt Frazier, but the continual switching of the Knicks' guards saw him facing Monroe very often.

The "Pearl" was averaging 20 points, but by halftime he already had 16 as the Knicks led 49-46.

Then, Monroe scored 13 points in the third quarter.

Chicago's rally fell short in the closing minutes after Monroe scored the Knicks' last basket with 2:32 left. The Bulls could score only four more points and when the Knicks rebounded the Bulls' missed shot with one second left, the victory was sealed.

"We're developing a lot more poise and confidence in these close games we're playing," said New York coach Red Holzman. "I think we played well as a team. We played good defense, especially towards the end of the game."

"I wouldn't say that our backcourt beat their whole team. After all, (Bill) Bradley and (Spencer) Haywood scored some points and played good defense and John Gianelli held Bob Love well for a while."

Love had 15 points, all in the first half. "This was the best I saw Monroe," said Chicago coach Dick Motta. "Monroe had 37 points tonight, and except for a layup, Norm Van Lier had his hand in Monroe's face for each shot."

In the only game in the American Basketball Association Monday night, Kentucky held on to beat the New York Nets, 110-102.

Penguins on Defeat: 'We Were Nervous'

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Penguins and the Soviet Wings exchanged small tokens of good will Monday night and then got down to work.

Or at least the Wings did. The Penguins spent the first period being nervous hosts and gawking at their visitors before they began earnest play. That, not coaching or talent, is the reason the Wings' chalked up a 7-4 exhibition hockey victory in their North American debut, according to the Penguins.

"I don't think they can say they beat us, because we dominated them," said Pierre Larouche, who drew a misconduct penalty for complaining about the officiating of Soviet Victor Dombrowsky after scoring the Penguins' first goal. "We were nervous and throwing the puck away in the first period."

"I'm not saying they're not good, but I'm not saying they are better than us."

Team captain Ron Schock agreed neither the Penguins' loss or the New York Rangers' 7-3 defeat by the USSR's Central Army team Sunday night should be interpreted as meaning the two Soviet teams will be unbeatable during their eight-city tour.

"If the other (NHL) teams benefit from what happened to us and the New York Rangers, they will beat them," Schock said. "But I guarantee if they stand around and watch, this team has players who can skate and shoot."

Three forwards borrowed from the Soviet team Spartak — Vladimir Shadrin, Victor Schlalimov and Aleksandr Yakushev — directed the initial attack.

Shadrin set the pace when he stole the puck from Dennis Owchar after the opening faceoff and tried to score on a breakaway. Penguin goalie Michel Plasse blocked the shot, but succumbed to the steady pressure by the Wings.

The Wings were leading 5-0 before the clock had even ticked off two minutes of the second period, and members of the Spartak trio had a hand in four of the goals. They each ended up scoring one goal each, while Shadrin and Schlalimov also had three assists each, including assists on two goals by defenseman Yuri Liapkin.

Larouche put the Penguins on the board with 5:35 elapsed in the second period, and the hosts were a different team after that.

"I think after the first period the Penguins got the right instructions from their coach," Wings Coach Boris Kulagin said through an interpreter. "They started to play more in the zone of the Russians, and they were more aggressive. They always had two Penguin players on the most dangerous places on the ice."

The Penguins, who had gotten only five first-period shots compared to the Wings' 15, outshot the visitors 25-20 and outscored them 4-3 over the last two periods.

Canadiens Appear Ready for Soviets

If Canadian fans will forgive the comparison, the Montreal Canadiens looked almost as good Monday night as the touring Russian teams which have embarrassed National Hockey League clubs in two straight games.

The Canadiens, traditionally the best skating team in the NHL, skated rings around the Washington Capitals in a 6-0 victory, which gave Montreal a 26-5-6 record and 58 points for the season. The Canadiens now lead Los Angeles by 16 points in the Norris Division of the Wales Conference.

The two visiting Soviet teams have made NHL rivals look bad in their first two games — the Soviet Army team beating the New York Rangers 7-3 Sunday night and the Soviet Stars whipping the Pittsburgh Penguins 7-4 Monday night. The Soviet teams have done it with the same elegant skating and close pass patterns which have been the mark of Montreal Canadiens teams over the years.

The Canadiens failed to score in the first period at Washington, but blew open the game with four goals in the second period. Steve Shutt scored two goals and Guy Lafleur and Yvon Lambert added one each during the blitz.

The goal by Lafleur raised his season total to 22 and gave him 55 points. Pete Mahovich and Doug Jarvis added goals for Montreal in the third period as the Caps' non-winning skein was extended to 14 games.

After the game, Milt Schmidt, the veteran hockey man who accepted the tough task of making the expansionist Caps a winner, resigned as coach and general manager.

"All-in-all, perhaps a change is for the best and it would be a shot in the arm if someone else did take over," Schmidt said.

The Caps called a 2 p.m. news conference today to announce Schmidt's replacement or replacements.

The Toronto Maple Leafs defeated the Atlanta Flames 6-2 and the Minnesota North Stars edged out the Kings 2-1 in the other Monday night NHL games. There were no games in the World Hockey Association.

Leafs 6, Flames 2

A pair of goals and two assists by Lanny McDonald paced the Leafs to their win over the Flames. McDonald scored his goals at 1:18 and 9:14 of the first period as the Leafs crept to within 10 points of the idle Boston Bruins in the Adams Division. Atlanta is 12 points behind Philadelphia in the Patrick Division.

Stars 2, Kings 1

Tim Young's power-play goal at 17:20 of the second period broke a 1-1 tie and Cesare Maniago's fine goaltending made it stand up for the victory as the North Stars snapped a five-game losing streak. The Stars also have a seven-game home winning streak in December.

Pearson No Longer Anonymous

DALLAS (UPI) — Drew Pearson, sheathed in a crew, open neck shirt and a pair of those jeans that look well worn but cost a modest bundle, sank back into his well-padded couch and smiled the smile of contentment.

"You always look back to where you came from," he said. "Things have fallen into place for me. I'm lucky to be in this situation."

It has been a bit of a whirlwind existence for Drew Pearson these past three years. But things appeared to be slowing down a little until last Sunday.

During the regular season Pearson had caught 16 less passes for 265 less yards than he had in 1974. Through three quarters of the Cowboys game against Minnesota last Sunday Pearson was the primary receiver only twice and did not touch the ball on either occasion.

But Pearson's recent stretch of anonymity is officially at an end. The catches in Bloomington saw to that.

"Things go in cycles," Pearson reflected, "and after a while they come around again."

"I was seeing more double coverage this year," Pearson said. "But there are times when they can't double you and I've been open sometimes."

"We've been spreading our passes around this year — to Golden Richards, Jean Fugett, Billy Joe DuPree and to the backs.

"I've just been trying to do my job and get open when I can. I can't complain. After all, we have been winning this year."

"I make suggestions on the sidelines when I think a pattern will work. But I haven't sat down and talked to the coaches or anything like that about it. It's not for me to start anything. I certainly don't want to be the cause of any controversy. Winning is the main objective and if you win the individual honors will come your way eventually."

Pearson has realized a lot of dreams since he showed up on the Dallas roster as a free agent out of Tulsa University. He now lives in a large home in an affluent section of northeast Dallas, is the idol of the neighborhood youngsters and is fast settling down as a family man.

At his leisure he can step down into a large game room and shoot a fast game of pool and he has just spent a memorable Christmas during which he and his wife spoiled their 17-month old daughter with half a toy store of gifts.

"I'm fairly content with life," he said. "Getting this house is something that I've dreamed of."

"But I'm not satisfied to just sit on what I've done. I want to continue to progress."

And that means Pearson would like to become known as something more than a man who makes miracle catches — like the 83-yard touchdown reception from Roger Staubach late in the game that clinched a first-round playoff game against Los Angeles two years ago, like the 50-yard catch he made from Clint Longley to beat Washington on Thanksgiving Day last season and, finally, the 25-and-50-yard catches which brought the Cowboys the win over Minnesota.

"I don't really want to be known as a big play man," said Pearson. "I would rather be known as a consistent receiver."

"When you make the big plays you are just lucky. It's wonderful to be a part of a big play, but when you are it just means you were at the right spot at the right time." And being in the right spot is becoming a bit of a habit.

To get to Pasadena for the fourth straight year, Ohio State beat Michigan 21-14.

"I've never been able to out-talk Woody except when we're talking about officiating," replied Duke.

Although his team is a 14-point favorite and beat UCLA 41-20 on Oct. 4 at the Coliseum in Los Angeles, Hayes denied his players were taking the Bruins lightly.

"I haven't seen any complacency at all," he said. "None whatsoever. We've got great respect for UCLA. We know they're quite a bit better now than they were in October."

"Of course, I always figure we'll win. I never think any other way although I always figure our games will be close. But it won't be easy against UCLA and there are a lot of ways you can lose."

Vermel was asked about a so-called players' revolt. Bruin players complained to their coach that they were working too long and too hard for Ohio State.

"Very few people like to work," Vermel said. "I was probably wrong when I told the team in the beginning we would enjoy the Rose Bowl. The only way I know how to enjoy something is to win and you have to work like hell to do that."

"I don't think the players anticipated that. They came to me and asked me to restate what I meant by enjoying the Rose Bowl. But all the problems are settled now."

Steelers Start Drills

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The World Champion Pittsburgh Steelers began preparations today for Sunday's American Football Conference title showdown against the invading Oakland Raiders.

Perhaps the most important question was whether quarterback Terry Bradshaw and full-back Franco Harris be ready in full strength for the game.

The team was given an extra day's rest Monday to ease trainer Ralph Berlin's task of getting several injured starters back in shape.

Berlin's major priorities were Bradshaw and Harris. Both suffered injuries in Saturday's 28-10 victory over the Baltimore Colts in a semifinal playoff game.

Bradshaw injured a knee when he was cartwheeled by the Colts' Lloyd Mumphord just before halftime. Harris aggravated an ankle injury, which he had when he rushed through Baltimore's defense for 153 yards.

The injury to Bradshaw, traditionally a quick healer, was diagnosed as only a bad bruise and he said he would be ready for Sunday's game, which has a berth in the Jan. 18 Super Bowl in Miami at stake.

"I don't think his injury will affect us offensively," Coach Chuck Noll said. "He'll be ready. We will not give the other quarterbacks any additional work this week."

In general, Noll said, the injuries to other Steelers "are not too bad for the type of game we had against the Colts, which was a very physical one. The extra day of rest will help us."

"Our guys come back," Berlin said. "And if someone is down, somebody else always takes up the slack. That's the way this team is."

Joe Greene, the keystone of the defensive line, did not play against the Colts and probably will not be ready for the Oakland game.

Greene has made only a token appearance in the past six weeks and could be out for the rest of the year with shoulder and groin injuries.

Noll said Greene "is a day-to-day, week-to-week situation."

"I can't tell if he will be ready or not," he said.

Regarding next Sunday's game, Noll said: "Our rivalry with Oakland is a fun thing. something that is good to have. Our players look forward to these games and like them. We enjoy playing the Raiders and I imagine they feel the same way about us."

"But I also want UCLA to win on New Year's Day because my obligation is to my own football players. We want to leave the Rose Bowl with our heads high and I believe we can."

Hayes was loose and jocular at the session. When Wayne Duke was introduced and it was noted that Duke was here instead of in Miami where Michigan faces Oklahoma on New Year's night, Hayes quipped to the Big Ten commissioner:

"In other words, you've got to go with a winner, huh?"

To get to Pasadena for the fourth straight year, Ohio State beat Michigan 21-14.

"I've never been able to out-talk Woody except when we're talking about officiating," replied Duke.

Long Wait for Woody

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Woody Hayes and Ohio State haven't won a national championship since 1956.

That was the season the Buckeyes, led by quarterback Rex Kern, beat University of Southern California in the Rose Bowl 27-16.

"You don't get to be 11-0 and not have any motivation," he said Monday when asked about a national crown for his No. 1-rated Buckeyes. "We'll just continue doing the same things we've been doing all season."

Hayes appeared at a news conference with his Rose Bowl coaching rival, UCLA's Dick Vermeil.

"I'd like to see that happen because I think they deserve it," said Vermeil when asked about Ohio State's bid for a national title. "And if you're going to lose, I'd rather lose to coach like Woody Hayes. He's very much like my own father."

Bit of Olsen Philosophy

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Merlyn Olsen, a defensive star with the Los Angeles Rams for 14 seasons, thinks football teams should learn from their losses and all-pro linebacker Isiah Robertson agrees.

"This is it for us — our whole season and sanity will be on the line," Robertson said. "We still haven't forgotten last year's loss to Minnesota."

"That one has affected our minds and pocketbooks for a year. I don't want to go through that again."

The Rams will host the Dallas Cowboys, a team they bowed to in their season opener in September 18-7, for the NFC championship Sunday. The Cowboys were surprise 17-14 winners at Minnesota.

"It's great that we now have the home edge," Olsen said. "But we can't forget that Dallas beat us earlier in the year. We're going to have to be at our best."

By VIC WATIA
(UPI Outdoor Expert)

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hunters and target shooters with itchy fingers for new firearms to add to their collections should be warned that the prices are climbing again in 1976. One only has to flip through the new gun catalogs for the news, wander among the booths at a local gun show or talk to a gun dealer.

In many instances, suggested gun prices for 1976 represent an increase of 10 per cent or less, especially for moderately priced guns such as 22 caliber rifles. However, increases of more than 20 per cent also are shown, especially on some popular firearms, such as over-and-under shotguns.

A visit to a local gun show will reveal that not only are new guns increasing in price, but used firearms are bringing premium prices — in some instances more than the new models are selling for.

Some consumers are blaming the increasing prices of guns, especially premium prices on used pistols and revolvers, to continuing campaigns to ban handguns and for tighter gun control.

Obviously, it has had some effect on the used gun market and consumer demand.

But used shotguns are another matter. The attitude that "they don't make things like they used to" is reflected in the prices of quality smoothbores.

For instance, I recently visited a show in Illinois where dealers from several parts of the country were displaying their wares.

"How much are you asking for that used Winchester Model 12 trap gun," I asked one of the dealers.

"I've got three," he said, looking me over similar to a used car salesman. "The one on the top of the rack is a Model 12 with pigeon grade wood (not a pigeon grade, just pigeon grade wood). Only $700 for that beauty. The next is a Black Diamond, and not too many were made. Only $625 for it. The third used Model 12 you can have for $425."

Now, according to suggested prices for 1976, a new Model 12 for trap shooting with a Monte Carlo stock should list for about $470. Last year, the same gun listed for about $435.

But, some shooters believe that when Winchester first revived the Model 12, it wasn't as good as the earlier models. Thus, of course, is a matter of opinion. "I've talked to Winchester spokesmen who said the new Model 12 is as good as it ever was, and shooters who agree.

However, the more popular the gun, the more difficult it is to find on the used market, and those available command higher prices.

For instance, a Parker double with modern steel barrels, depending on grade and condition, can sell for upwards of $1,000.

The continuing popularity of over-and-under shotguns also is reflected in suggested new price lists. For example, the field model Browning Citori was supposed to sell in 1975 for about $325. In 1976, that suggested price jumps to about $395.

The novice who is interested in purchasing a used gun, should take a few precautionary steps.

First, he should find an experienced friend who knows about guns to take shopping with him. Often, the friend can point out faults in the firearm the novice may overlook in his excitement to purchase.

Regardless of how good a used gun may look, it is best if the purchaser can test fire it before he buys. This is not always possible, especially if the firearm is purchased at a gun show. But, often when buying from a local dealer, the gun can be test fired.

One of the most important points is to know if the gun fits the purchaser. Of course, a gunsmith can alter a gun to make it fit, but that's an added expense that must be taken into consideration.

The novice who purchases a new gun has the advantage of a warranty, and he can return the firearm if something goes wrong during the warranty period. Also, a local dealer can insure a new gun will fit properly before money exchanges hands.

Would You Believe, a $3,000 Baseball Card?

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Big news on the baseball card front.

Three enthusiastic collectors believe they have found "the most valuable baseball card in existence" — worth perhaps $3,000.

Can a baseball card — those little pictures of ballplayers you get with bubble gum, tobacco and other products — be worth $3,000?

"That's right," says Bob Rathgeber, 29, one of several hundred serious adult collectors around the country and part-owner of the card in question. "This card has got to be worth from $2,500 to $3,000, maybe more."

The tiny, one-inch by two-inch card was issued in 1910 by the Piedmont Tobacco Co. and depicts Pittsburgh Pirates Hall-of-Famer Honus Wagner in a batting stance.

Up until now, another Honus Wagner card from the same set of Piedmont cards had been considered the most valuable of all the millions of cards in existence — worth about $1,000.

"Our card appears to be a sister card to that one," says Rathgeber. "Until now, our card was never known to exist."

A little background information is needed to explain why a Honus Wagner card is valuable.

It seems that Wagner did not appreciate his name linked with tobacco and told the Piedmont people to remove his picture from the set of some 500 cards they issued in 1910. As in stamp collecting and many other hobbies, a "legend" and the rarity of an item often make it valuable and so the 25 or so "Wagner tobacco" cards that managed to get out before Wagner complained are now worth about $1,000 each.

"But our Wagner card is much more valuable because it depicts him in a new pose," explains Rathgeber. "All the other Wagner cards were the same picture — just a straight portrait. Ours shows him batting — a card nobody even knew existed."

It was not unusual for some players in the Piedmont set to be depicted on several cards in different poses, says Rathgeber.

Rathgeber, who has several hundred thousand cards, says he and co-owners Dick Reuss and Tom Wickman of Manassas, Va., "lucked into" the new Wagner card.

"We bought a set of 300 old cards for about 40 cents a card from an antique dealer in Virginia," he recalls. "We had no idea it was in there. Our first reaction was, 'No, it can't be,' because no one had ever heard of such a card."

"So, we took the card to a paper restoration expert in Washington, and he authenticated it."

The card, a color lithograph made from an apparently retouched photograph, is in "good" condition, according to Rathgeber, and is now in a safe deposit box in Washington.

"We're going to take it around to some baseball card collectors conventions early next year," says Rathgeber. "We plan to have it in Indianapolis in February, in St. Louis in April and in Chicago in May."

"I don't know what we will eventually do with it, maybe sell it or trade it," he adds. "But right now, we're going to show it off."

Retains World Title

UCLA Hero Remembers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "I can still remember the officials placing the ball on my side of the field and thinking, 'Oh no, they're coming my way.' It was an awful feeling."

Bob Stiles, UCLA's undersized and unlikely hero in the 1966 Rose Bowl, was reliving the past. And there's nothing to relive like old football glories.

"It looked like the whole Michigan State team was coming in my direction around their right end," he continued. "Bob Apisa, their fullback, had the ball and he looked as big as a house I thought, 'Oh, my gosh,' and then one of our linebackers, Dallas Grider, grabbed him by the shoulder on about the three-yard line."

"Dallas held him up long enough for me to get an angle and somehow we were able to bring him down on about the three-inch line. It was an incredible experience."

At 5-9 and 175 pounds, Stiles stopped Apisa's two-point conversion attempt with 31 seconds left to preserve the Bruins' 14-12 upset of the national champion Spartans.

He was knocked unconscious by his leaping tackle but Apisa didn't make it and the Rose Bowl erupted into delirium. The Bruins' left cornerback was voted the Player of the Game.

Ten years later, Stiles is an actor still struggling to make it. He lives in an apartment in Westwood and is able to get by by making commercials. He's also done stunt work.

The biggest part of his seven-year acting career came in the movie "Dollars" starring Warren Beatty and Goldie Hawn and shot in Hamburg, Germany. He played a young West Point Army officer.

Stiles admits he's "sort" of a film nut. "Sort of" is an understatement.

"I once saw a different movie 63 nights in a row," he said. "I just simply love the film industry. I love being around it and I love being a part of it. I wouldn't want to do anything else."

"But I wouldn't suggest it for anybody. It's a helluva lot harder than being the Player of the Game in the Rose Bowl. The anxieties and frustrations are tremendous. Of course, it's different if you're working all the time but I don't work all the time."

"I'm able to pay my bills because I do commercials. I even did stunt work for awhile. The last stunt I did was three years ago. I went out a window and dropped 12 feet to the ground. I hobbled off and I haven't done another stunt since."

Stiles, 32, made the last tackle of his football life when he stopped Apisa on the goal line but he didn't lose his enthusiasm for the sport. Or for his old school.

He may be the loudest UCLA fan on New Year's Day when the Bruins, in their first Rose Bowl appearance since 1966, take on No. 1-ranked Ohio State. The Buckeyes are two-touchdown choices.

Once you pass the Utica Club Bar Exam, you're ready to try a case.

We think every beer should have its day in court. Or tavern. Or whatever.

To that end we've devised what we consider a fair trial.

We call it the Utica Club Bar Exam.

All you do is take any two beers of your choice. And one of ours. Utica Club. Pour them into mugs and mix the mugs up. Or, better yet, have someone blindfold you. Just to make sure you taste the beers, not the labels.

Before you judge the beers, we'd like to plead our case.

We make sure nothing but whole grains go into a Utica Club. Anything less would make for a lesser beer.

And the water that goes into a Utica Club is good enough to bottle and sell by itself.

Besides, everyday Utica Club makes the grade with the toughest testers we know of. Us.

If you don't prefer our beer to the others, we fail.

If you can't tell the difference, declare it a mistrial.

If you do prefer Utica Club, you're ready to go into practice. And, as your first official case may we suggest a case of Utica Club. It's one of the few things we know of that's better than a bottle or can of Utica Club—24 times better.

A case of Utica Club.

Because if you pass the Utica Club Bar Exam, you deserve to do yourself justice.

Penn Central Reports Some Very Big Losses

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Trustees of the Penn Central Transportation Co. have reported a net loss of $172,194,651 for the first 10 months of 1975, more than $52 million over the amount lost during the same period of 1974.

The trustees said Monday the net losses include a credit of $107.5 million in federal grants received this year, and $9.8 million received during 1974, under the Regional Rail Reorganization Act (RRRA).

These funds, the trustees said, were required to continue railroad operations. The net loss for the 10-month 1974 period was $120,393,683, according to the trustees financial statement.

Penn Central's losses before federal grants were $279,694,651 for the 10-month period this year and $130,187,525 for the 1974 period.

Not included in the trustee's financial report was an additional $20 million from RRRA which was received earlier this year and placed in escrow at the direction of the Federal Railroad Administration to be available for purposes designed by FRA.

Penn Central also received $96.9 million under the RRRA

for program maintenance costs, but under Interstate Commerce Commission accounting instructions these funds are not included in the statement either as revenues or expenses. The trustees said the railroad actually applied $87.1 million of this amount to program maintenance funded under the RRRA through October, 1975.

Welch's Remains Come Home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of Richard S. Welch, who was CIA station chief in Greece before he was murdered two days before Christmas, was returned to the United States for burial today and was accorded full military honors.

Top administration and White House officials as well as a military honor guard were on hand when the C141 Air Force cargo plane bearing Welch's body touched down about dawn at Andrews AFB, Md., outside Washington.

President Ford has authorized Welch to be buried at Arlington National Cemetery. The funeral and interment were scheduled for Friday.

It was a rare procedure for a CIA agent. Usually, the death of a CIA agent does not attract wide public notice.

Welch, 46, was shot outside his home in front of his wife, Kiki, as they were returning from a Christmas party given by the U.S. ambassador in Athens Dec. 23. The assailants escaped.

The Greek government Monday offered cash rewards ranging from $30,000 to $180,000 for information leading to the discovery of the killers.

Presidential counsel Philip Buchen, Assistant Secretary of State Arthur Hartman and Welch's first wife and their daughter were at Andrews when the plane landed. Welch's oldest son, Marine Corps 2nd Lt. Patrick T.

Welch, escorted the flag-draped casket on the flight from Athens.

An eight man honor guard carried the flag-draped, aluminum casket from the plane and placed it inside a hearse for the trip to a downtown Washington funeral home.

Welch's widow is ill in a Naples, Italy hospital. A State Department spokesman said if Mrs. Welch was well enough she would return to Washington Wednesday.

Welch was gunned down after he was identified as a CIA agent by an English-language newspaper in Athens.

Hearings On Gas

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Public Service Commission today scheduled hearings on a $29.3 million, or 11.3 per cent, natural gas rate increase proposed by the National Fuel Gas Distribution Corp.

Commission examiner Lawrence A. Gollomp will conduct the hearings Jan. 21 in Jamestown and Jan. 22 in Buffalo.

National asked for approval to increase all charges by a uniform amount of 2.08 cents per 100 cubic feet. However, the commission noted that such a uniform boost would "continue the rate tilt... during times of serious gas supply shortages."

The commission suggested that "declining block rates may no longer be a suitable means of recovering revenue requirements. Serious consideration should be given to the establishment of flat rates for all consumption in excess of the minimum allowance." National serves about 466,000 customers in all or parts of 11 western counties.

Idea Is Melting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — That new ice age which some experts have predicted may not be developing after all, according to two government environmentalists.

Donald Wiesnet and Michael Matson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration reported Monday snow and ice cover in the United States and Canada has not changed significantly in the past nine years.

Their findings were based on satellite pictures of snow and ice in the northern hemisphere since 1966.

Extension Refused

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Appellate Division of state Supreme Court has refused to push back the deadline for holders of short-term city notes to swap them for long-term bonds of the Municipal Assistance Corp.

Julie, David In China

HONG KONG (UPI) — Chinese Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua met today with visiting Julie Nixon Eisenhower, daughter of former President Richard M. Nixon, and her husband David Eisenhower in Peking, the New China News Agency said.

The Eisenhowers arrived in China Monday. Their trip was arranged in 1972 when Nixon visited China.

From Memory

James Shock, 21, of St. Clair Shores, Mich., puts the finishing touches on his snow statue of Abraham Lincoln. Shock, a former commercial artist now employed by Chrysler, was visiting at the home of his in-laws when he decided to make a snowman. It ended up as a sculpture of Lincoln. A relative says Shock made the sculpture without reference—using only his memory of Lincoln's appearance. (UPI)

Arms Aid Affect Readiness of U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arms shipments to Vietnam and Israel between 1972 and 1974 created shortages in the military arsenal of the United States that are still being felt, according to a classified government audit.

A General Accounting Office audit on the effect of some $8.5 billion in U.S. weapons shipments to the two countries concluded Monday that the arms aid "adversely affected overall U.S. readiness."

It said that "actions are currently underway to try to alleviate many of these shortages," but added that "for such items as tanks, production capability is limited... Thus, inventories for several important items will remain depleted for a long time."

The details of the classified audit was disclosed by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson, but a declassified summary of the report was released by the GAO. The report found that: —Because of large quantities of tanks and armored personnel carriers shipped to Vietnam and Israel, the Army as of June 30, 1974 had a shortage of 4,943 tanks and 1,822 APCs. —The Army withdrew 368 M60 tanks from equipment maintained for emergencies in Europe as well as 500 APCs. —"On-hand, available stocks" were depleted by the Air Force to supply Israel, leaving it "far short of the computed war reserve requirements in several instances." —During the 1973 Middle East War, 400 air-to-ground missiles were withdrawn from stocks and sent to Israel, amounting to 5 per cent of the missiles on hand.

A Repeat Walk for Jackie

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis waits to have her hand luggage searched at the Salt Lake International Airport. She set off a metal detection device as she entered the airport terminal following a flight from Sun Valley, Idaho. Mrs. Onassis was asked to walk through the device again. She and her children joined Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and other members of the Kennedy family for a ski vacation at Snowbird Resort in the Wasatch Mountains. (UPI)

Survivor Charged

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — W.T. Zeigler was the only survivor of Christmas Eve shootings that killed his wife, in-laws and a customer at his furniture store. Today, he faced charges of murdering all four.

Police said statements by two witnesses and "a preponderance of physical evidence" led Monday to the arrest of Zeigler, himself wounded in the stomach.

Zeigler's attorney, Ralph Hadley, said following the arrest, "I'm probably as surprised as my client is."

Zeigler was transferred from West Orange Memorial Hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment, to Florida Hospital in Orlando, an Orange County sheriff's spokesman said.

Sheriff Melvin Colman declined comment Monday night on whether Zeigler's wound was self-inflicted.

He said statements by two witnesses, whom he did not identify, "coupled with a preponderance of physical evidence" still being processed by the FBI crime laboratory in Washington, led us and the Orange-Orlando state attorney's office to believe there is probable cause to charge Mr. Zeigler with these killings."

Zeigler was charged with the slayings of his wife, Eunice, 32, her parents, Perry Edwards, 72, and Virginia Edwards, 52, of Moultrie, Ga., and Charles Mays, 35, a customer.

If you've ever been stumped about finding a good mechanic, here's the book for you.

Where to Find Certified Mechanics for Your Car

Published by MOTOR Magazine

There are lots of them around, but until now you couldn't tell a good mechanic just by looking.

Now you can. Just by looking in a new national directory that tells you exactly where to find a skilled mechanic. Here in this area, or anywhere in your travels.

That's because the key organizations concerned with repairing automobiles joined to form the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (NIASE). And the result is a first-time directory titled "Where to Find Certified Mechanics for Your Car." In it you'll find a list of new-car dealerships, service stations and repair garages employing mechanics whose skills have been certified by the Institute. These are expert mechanics. They've proven it by passing tough tests developed and administered by the Educational Testing Service—the same people who conduct college entrance exams.

The new directory is 170 pages, will fit in your glove compartment and costs $1.95. To get a copy, send a check with your name and address to:

National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence
1825 K Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006

It's a sure way for you to find a good mechanic when you need one.

Your Astrograph

For Wednesday, Dec. 31, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) As the day wears on you tend to become a bit more serious. Let yourself go if you can, or you could spoil the good times of

those around you

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Conclude your business before early afternoon. By then you'll be in a more festive mood and won't be worried about tying up

loose ends

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you're going out this evening and plan to share expenses, have a clear advance understanding as to who pays for what.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be too opinionated this evening. Be prepared to make concessions especially to your mate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The way a situation works out today may stick with you some last minute chores. Plan ahead. You can handle things and still have fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Go where the bright lights are tonight, but avoid crowds. You'll be better off with a small group of friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll have a better time with pals at home tonight. If you must go out, make it in early night and then bring the gang home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If there's someone older you'd like to visit to wish Happy New Year, make sure you do it before you get caught up in the

swirl of activities

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't feel that a high price tag guarantees you'll excel in the pursuit of pleasure tonight. You'll just flatten the wallet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You tend to get peppier as the day wears on. Don't alter or cancel tonight's plans just because the early part of the day has a few lumps in it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The novelty of the funny hats, the confetti, and the noisemakers will soon wear off tonight. Celebrate quietly with the one you love.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) By late afternoon you'll want to take a brief respite and let your hair down. No reason why you shouldn't.

your birthday
Dec. 31, 1975

New ambitions will be awakened in you this coming year. Begin now by laying firm foundations that could advance your work or career.

TEEN FORUM

ASHAMED: (Q) I used to go out with Donald. I really liked him a lot. Last week he called and asked me to meet him. I said yes, but now I regret it all. He tried to get something off me, and, without thinking, I let him. Now I'm ashamed of myself. I can't face him. I avoid him, and when I can't do that I ignore him. Is this natural?—Damaged in Pennsylvania

(A.) It is quite natural to feel ashamed and guilty when we do what we know or think is wrong.

If you want to remain friendly with Donald, tell him so, but tell him also that what you did was wrong and that you are ashamed of it and do not plan to do it again. That will make you feel better.

And always think first—never do anything that you do not feel right about.

CLOSENESS: (Q) I am afraid to get close to a guy. I really like Jonathan but am almost scared to touch him. I am 13. What is the matter with me?—Touchy in Oklahoma

(A.) There is nothing the matter with you. You are simply not ready for closeness. Lots of girls aren't ready until they are several years older than you are now.

Do not fret about it. You can like Jonathan without his even holding your hand. At 13 it's a good idea not to be too close. In time you will change your feelings and you won't mind being close to a boy.

West cashes one heart and stops to think. It is obvious that South started with just one heart. It is also obvious that his trumps will be solid so West shifts to a trump. South still uses that ace of clubs to get to dummy to lead a second heart and runs off all his club and diamond winners but the squeeze fails to operate. East hangs on to his jack of hearts and West to his king-jack of spades.

The Economy

The most significant story of 1975, as selected by American editors participating in a UPI poll, was The Economy. Here, in Chicago, spiraling unemployment was a reality on Jan. 13 when more than 2,000 persons stood in line at City Hall Civil Service Commission office for federally-funded jobs.

Reviewing the Blue Laws . . .

The following is the first in a series of three reports on the blue law situation in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York State's "blue law" concerning Sunday sales has been violated so often it would be more apt to call it the "Black and Blue" law.

Like hay fever, however, breaking the blue law is mostly a seasonal malady — just as the sneezing season comes when the pollen count is high in early autumn, the "open-on-Sunday" season comes when wallets are high the month before Christmas.

Every year in various parts of the state there are concerted efforts by one district attorney or another to crack down on violations of the Blue law. By and large, the efforts are greeted with yawns by other law enforcement officials and the merchants halled into court for alleged violations.

The pressure starts just before Thanksgiving, when the stores that have decided on Sunday sales announce their plans. It ends the Sunday after Christmas, when the Sunday sales "sales" are held.

After that, the Blue law is packed away for another year somewhat like putting away the Christmas tree stand. Unlike the stand, however, the law, Section Nine of New York State's General Business Law, can always be found again.

Usually, it can be found clutched in the hand of a legislator who has just devised the "perfect solution." At last count, at least a billion "perfect solutions" had been introduced to correct the law whose roots go 300 years deep.

In the past five years, three such "perfect solutions" have been passed by the lawmakers, only to be vetoed by former governors Nelson Rockefeller and Malcolm Wilson. They rejected them mostly on the ground that the "perfect solution" was just as unworkable as the present statute.

The Court of Appeals has upheld the constitutionality of the Blue law on various occasions but the state's highest court has indicated rather clearly in recent years it is getting a little tired of dealing with the statute and has hinted broadly that the legislature should get around to changing it.

Last July, for example, the court overturned the conviction of a violator on the ground that the law was enforced so sporadically that the conviction represented "selective" prosecution.

Three of the judges voted to throw the law out entirely but four upheld its validity.

The law itself bans "all manner of public selling or offering for sale any property upon Sunday ... except" — and there is a long list of exceptions.

For instance, meals can be sold, caterers can serve meals, tobacco, bread, milk, eggs, ice, soda-water, fruit and flowers can be sold.

You can sell a cemetery monument, gasoline, oil, tires, drugs, medicine, and surgical instruments.

Between certain hours it's OK to sell and deliver prepared food — "elsewhere than in cities and villages having a population of 40,000 or more" which would indicate people in bigger cities don't get hungry. Fishing tackle can be sold — but no rifles. You can sell beer, but no bottle liquor.

Incidentally, don't try to sell uncooked food — that's a violation punishable by a fine of $10. The minimal fine, incidentally, is why most businesses that do violate the law merely shrug when they are hauled into court.

Souvenirs can be sold, leading to some interesting items listed as souvenirs. Several years ago a man bought a "souvenir" in an Albany area store one Sunday and argued that his purchase — a power lawn mower — was certainly "memorable." There was a foot of snow on the ground.

Most district attorneys in the state prefer not to get involved. Because the law is on the books, most don't want to flatly say they won't enforce it. But most privately will admit that local law enforcement agencies have enough to do without seeing to it that sales on Sunday fall within the allowable limitations.

Many law enforcement officials would like to see a local option plan put into effect. That way, they say, a community could decide for itself if it wanted stores open on Sunday. Stores in communities opting against Sunday sales would be easy to spot and easy to close.

Said one legislator recently, "the Blue law is commercially convenient and it's like prohibition, not too many people really want it enforced."

OPEN ALL YEAR ROUND TO SERVE YOU

Alphabetically speaking, it was a very big year for B's on the area newsfront in 1975. Dominating headlines, B's left an indelible mark on local history in the year that was.

It was the year of Operation BABYLIFT, ending happily—after flights halfway around the world—for those Vietnamese orphans who found new homes in the Mid-Hudson Valley last April after adoption by new parents here.

And it was the hoop-happy year when the Kingston High School BASKETBALL team clinched the DCSL Championship.

BEATEN at the November polls—and beaten decisively—were two issues affecting the local scene. The Equal Rights Amendment, strongly supported by the League of Women Voters, was buried by a nearly two-to-one vote . . . and a crushing defeat was the fate of proposed renovation expenditures for Kingston's Old City Hall.

The Daily Freeman

NEW YEAR'S EVE . . . 1975

It was the eve of the BICENTENNIAL, and "every middlesex, village and farm" began plans to celebrate the American Revolution. As each community weighed the merits of fireworks, parades and costume balls, the area Association of Native Americans returned us to pre-Revolutionary times with Indian song and dance festivals.

BOOKS, too, have been in the headlines since the Kingston Children's Library fire in mid-November. The generous impulses of many contributed more than $15,000 to a fund drive throughout the '75 holiday season to restore the library and replace burned books.

It was a bad year for BRIDGES, and controversies surrounded their closings. The Phoenicia span, aided and abetted by a truck, went down and out in late February—and its replacement is still on the drawing board. Two separate accidents damaged Chichester's Silver Hollow Bridge in early summer—and fire trucks refused to cross. Boiceville's Traver Hollow Bridge, closed in early June as "too risky," remains inoperative.

1975 . . . The Year That Was . . .

BUILDINGS also garnered newsprint space. Kingston's historic Senate House got a new, $35,000, wood shingle roof. Trailways Bus Company closed down long-time operations at its Central Broadway location; moved to its new terminal uptown on Washington Avenue. And, in early October, the Town of Ulster opened its new $405,000 Town Hall.

Another BUMPER corn crop was harvested in Ulster County, the sweet corn capital of the world, after a late August tour of the thriving fields by some 100 state agricultural officials, politicians and consumers.

BUREAUCRACY helped write a story of pathos across local headlines this year, when the saga of an 11-month-old domesticated deer, raised from a fawn by the Jack LaFalce family of New Paltz, ended in the death of the doe after it was tranquilized and wrestled into a crate by conservation officers and state troopers.

BUSING brought problems to Ellenville as parents and students staged a protest march reminiscent of the '60s along Route 209 from Napanoch to Ellenville on the opening day of school to condemn cuts in bus transportation voted in the August school election.

But the B's did not totally monopolize the news in '75. Other top stories in the year that was: SENIOR CITIZENS proved an upwardly mobile and lively set as Ulster County fielded a new Office for the Aging, and the YWCA's Golden Age Club marked its 25th anniversary; SOCCER shared the '75 sports spotlight as Ulster County Community College routed Dutchess in regional finals; and an unexpected TORNADO, rare in these climates, left mobile homes in disarray—and scattered trees and utility poles like matchsticks—as it cut a mile-wide swath through the Lake Katrine-West Hurley-East Kingston area in late September.
